Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

The Soviet government, alarmed by its growing isolation in Europe, is planning to adopt a "two-power air standard," the United Press was informed yesterday.

Under the new policy, Russia intends to maintain a fleet of fighting planes larger than the combined strength of her two classic enemies, Germany and Japan.

Russia's move followed announcement by Italian government officials yesterday that Japan and Italy "see eye to eye against communism.

Secret Pact Denied.

While officials in Rome denied persistent reports of a secret pact among Germany, Italy and Japan against Russia and bolshevism in Europe and Asia, rumors of the three-party agreement gained credibility because of an article in the newspaper Il Gnornale d'Italia by the authoritative commentator, Virginio Gayda.

Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany have "decisively reared up against communism," he wrote, "and Japan adheres to their position."

Japan, meanwhile, announced to the League of Nations mandates commission that it was establishing a network of air lines throughout the former German South Pacific islands, now under Tokyo's control.

The report said the lines were being established entirely for civil purposes, but League circles pointed out that the resulting aviation bases also might accommodate fighting planes. Fortification of the islands is prohibited.

Danger of Communism.

"Der Fuehrer is convinced the only real danger for Europe and the British Empire as well is communism," he said upon his arrival in London.

Military classes of the years 1932, 1933, 1934 and 1935 were mobilized by the loyalist Catalonian republic yesterday and ordered to report for duty within 48 hours.

The Catalonian government also approved a decree militarizing the militia under mild discipline beginning November 1. Another decree ordered private individuals to surrender all rifles and shotguns within eight days.

A third decree provided for opening of a credit of 1,000,000 pesetas (about $130,000) for refugees of Catalonian provinces.

A charge by Portugal that Russia incited the Spanish revolt and attempted to carry out a plan to Sovietize the entire Ibereian Peninsula, including Portugal, was made public by the international neutrality committee.

Russia denounced the accusations as sounding like "The Arabian Nights," and proceeded with its plan to give the Soviet air supremacy in Europe.

Meanwhile, in Spain, whose civil war intensified the enmity between Fascists and Communists throughout Europe, rebel besiegers of Madrid waited momentary orders to close in on the capital.

Awaiting the "zero hour," rebel aviators yesterday again bombed Madrid's suburbs.

Insurgent leaders announced that rail communication from the capital was severed at El Escorial, northwest of Madrid, and at Aranjuez, to the southwest.

Steamers Pass Canal.

Three Russian steamers carrying munitions and provisions consigned to the Madrid government passed through the Suez Canal yesterday en route to Barcelona, canal authorities revealed.

The United States Embassy in Madrid was reopened as a place of refuge for Americans.

Two American and one English newspaperman, captured by rebels after being abandoned by their government escorts, were released and reported sent to Salamanca. They were Henry T. Gorrell, of Washington, D. C., United Press war correspondent; James M. Minifie, special correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, and Dennis Weaves, of the London News Chronicle.

Mrs. Whiffen, Tiny Grand Lady of Stage, Plays 'Buttercup' Again as Death Nears

By James Cullinane.

Outside her window autumn leaves are falling and foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia turn sere and brown, but Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, 91, "Amreica's grand old lady of the stage," lives again in the springtime of her career, in the fancies brought on by her illness.

Death is the stagehand who shifts the scenes of the dramatic triumphs of three score and ten years as Mrs. Whiffen, young and captivating once more, airly treads the boards of memory with the Drews, the Barrymores, the Templetons and the Cushmans.

All is quiet in the sickroom of the modest comfortable farm home near the little village of Montvale, Va., but to the tired little trouper on the bed comes the lilting music of Gilbert and Sullivan's merry operetta, H. M. S. Pianafore.

Feebly the lips of the sick woman—for Mrs. Whiffen is critically ill—move slowly and a nurse bends low to catch the words:

"Poor Little Buttercup."

Backward whirl the wheels of time—back to the gas-lit Standard Theater in New York. The year is 1879 and the fragile ladies and bearded gentlmen had turned out in force to be amused at the American premier of the new operetta that had taken London by storm.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.
MRS. THOMAS WHIFFEN.

91-Year-Old Actress, Sinking, Lives Great Roles of Past Anew.

Death, waiting patiently in the wings, shifts the scenes again and back spins time to the Royalty Theater in London. The year is 1865. Amercan is torn with civil war. It was the year Mrs. Whiffen, then Blanche Galton, 20, daughter of a London singing teacher, made her stage debut in "Turco the Terrible."

It was a debut that led to immortality in the theatrical annals of America and brought moments of laughter and tenderness and forgetfulness to millions.

For Mrs. Whiffen loved the theater and refused to retire even when she became the last of the valliant old troupers of her day. When she had passed 75 she was earning larger salaries than ever before had been paid her.

It was her love for the draughty backstage dressing rooms and the smell of greasepaint that finally broke Mrs. Whiffen's amazingly rugged health. She was stricken with pneumonia, while playing in "Just Fancy" in Chicago in 1928. It was then that she retired to her Virginia home, near Roanoke.

She never fully recovered from that illness. Now, so critical is her condition that only her children, Thomas and Peggy Whiffen, themselves distinguished in the theater as director and actress,

Wagner Law To Be Tested In High Court

Justices Agree to Pass on Cases Challenging Act's Validity.

Action on Press Service, Coach Company Suits Due in December.

By Felix Bruner.

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to pass upon the constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act.

In deciding whether Congress was within its rights in enacting the law, one of the most controverted of still-existing New Deal acts, the court agreed to hear two cases. One of them involves the discharge of an employe of the Associated Press in New York. The other concerns attempts to unionize employes of the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. Arguments in both cases are expeected to be heard in December.

The Wagner law, successor of the famous section 7 (a) of the national industrial recovery act, which was held unconstitutional by the court, guarantees the right of collective bargaining and sets up a board to supervise the election of representatives of employe groups to bargain collectively with their employers.

Questions arising in the two cases involve the right of the Government to supervise collective bargaining in industry not engaged in interstate commerce and also involve the due process clause of the Constitution.

Discharge Basis of Suit.

In the Associated Press case the question of right to regulate intrastate employment is raised. The Associated Press on October 18, 1935, discharged a news writer, Morris Watson. The American Newspaper Guild appealed to the National Labor Relations Board, charging that Watson was discharged because of union organizing activities.

The Labor Board upheld the contentions of the guild and ordered Watson reinstated and paid for the time lost following his discharge. The board also asked the Circuit Court of Appeals in New York to enforce the order. The Associated Press denied Watson had been discharged because of union activities and further contended that a news writer was not engaged in interstate commerce, holding that the only interstate activities of the news disseminating organization were conducted by its traffic department. The Circuit Court upheld the Labor Board.

The Labor Board also was upheld in the coach company case. The company had been ordered by the Labor Board to desist from discouraging its employes from organizing or from becoming members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. It also was ordered to reinstate 18 employes who had been discharged. The Circuit Court of the Fourth Judicial District was asked to enforce the order and it upheld the Labor Board

Due Process Question.

The coach company, in its appeal, admitted that it was engaged in interstate commerce, but it questioned the constitutionality of the law under the due process clause of the Constitution. It also contended that the discharge of the 18 employes had no connection with union activities.

It was considered significant that the Supreme Court, in its order provided that arguments in the Wagner law case should follow immediately the hearing of a case brought by the Virginia Railway Co. testing the law setting up the Railway Labor Board, which functions in relation to railroads similarly to the National Labor Board in relation to other industries.

It was believed possible that in setting the arguments for the three cases simultaneously the Supreme Court may be planning to render a consolidated opinion covering the general question of the right of Congress in enactment of labor legislation.

Other Cases on Slate.

Three cases appealed by the National Labor Relations Board and involving the Wagner act still are before the court for a ruling as to whether they will be heard. They involved the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., the Fruehauf Trailer Co. and Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing Co., Inc. In all of these cases the board was overruled by the lower courts. Last week the court refused to hear a similar case involving the Bradley Lumber Co.

After a brief session in which it issued its orders, the court adjourned until November 9, when it

Landon Assails 'Waste,' Pleads for a Free Rule; 20,000 Cheer Address

Two Parties Spend $9,016,973, Twice Total of 1932 Campaign

By the Associated Press.

As the major parties moved into the last week of the Presidential campaign yesterday, Congressional records showed that together they already had spent approximately $9,016,973—more than twice the reported cost of the entire 1932 campaign.

Congressional attaches estimated that expenditures by minor parties, independent organizations and individual candidates already had pushed the total campaign outlay above the $11,000,000 level.

Republican disbursements—including expenditures of the national committee, Senatorial committee, and Congressional committee—were set at $6,160,999 in reports filed with the clerk of the House.

During the entire 1932 campaign the major parties spent $4,378,000, of which $2,670,000 came out of the Republican fund and $1,708,000 from the Democratic.

Most costly campaign on record was in 1928, when the Republicans paid out $6,256,000 and the Democrats $5,342,000—a total of $11,598,000.

Both parties this year have lavished money on the radio. Broadcasting has cost the Republican National Committee $224,641, while the Democratic National Committee has spent $130,502 for its time on the air.

Sound trucks, newspaper and magazine advertising, billboards, pamphlets and travel for speakers have absorbed most of the remaining expenditures.

Among expense statements filed

Nominee Renews Appeal for Preservation of Constitution.

Text of Gov. Landon's Address—Page 9.

By Robert C. Albright,
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Before a cheering mass of 20,000 persons assembled in this city's mammoth Convention Hall, Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight delivered an assault on New Deal "waste and extravagance" and what he called "open and impudent use of public money for political purpose."

Plowing eastward and northward into doubtful political territory, the Republican Presidential nominee chose Philadelphia, cradle of independence and hotbed of WPA controversy, to couple an attack on Administration relief spending with a new plea for "preservation of the Constitution and the American way of life."

Lending political flavor to his oath tonight "that the bell which rang here 160 years ago, shall not have rung in vain," Landon paused as he entered Philadelphia earlier in the day to pose for pictures beside the Liberty Bell, at Independence Hall.

Political Machine.

Tonight he counterposed the Constitution and the picturesque symbol of American Independence against what he called "the heavy hand of Government" and the machinations of "the most sinister political machine of our history."

He said the campaign issue can be reduced to one question—whether "we want a free and popular Government or a Government which concentrates increasing power in the Chief Executive."

Rain-drenched crowds greeted him along the way here and fringed the streets of Philadelphia through which he drove by a circuitous route to temporary quarters in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. Ticker tape and confetti mingled with the drizzle.

The same weather conditions prevailed at Baltimore, where, earlier in the day, the Republican nominee told 3,000 bedrizzled hearers that a strange group of advisers is weaving a "foreign pattern" for President Roosevelt to follow toward misery, poverty and "the hopelessness out of which dictatorships arise."

Adopting there a new punching style, Gov. Landon hammered away at what he called the New Deal's "jig-saw puzzle" and the coterie immediately surrounding the President.

He exuded confidence and, after paying tribute to Baltimore as "the best place in America to eat," declared that after next January he would be a "neighbor" and "you can expect me over now and then to get some really high-toned rations."

In Philadelphia, in the same chair, on the same table and in the same room in which Washington presided over the Constitutoinal Convention and John Hancock made his famous flourish, the Republican nominee inscribed his name in the visitors' book.

"Alf M. Landon, Independence, Kans."

Speaks at Wilmington.

At Wilmington, Del., en route here in a "back porch" appearance he told a New Deal boondoggling story and thanked those who had waited in the rain to see him.

In Wilmington he again promised, if elected, to furnish relief to those in need of it, but promised "it should be administered without waste, without absurdities and, above all, without politics."

In Philadelphia, he rested all afternoon in his hotel rooms, receiving only intimate friends before the night's major address in a pivotal State. That over, he boarded his train for Pittsburgh.

The Governor's itinerary in New York on Thursday meanwhile was revised to include a pilgrimage to Sagamore Hill, home of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Two children of the former President, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., and Alice Roosevelt Longworth,

Japanese Stage Games in China; War Fears Rise

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Tientsin (Tuesday), Oct. 27.—The threat of conflict between Japan and China increased today as thousands of Japanese infantrymen swarmed over the North China plain and War Minister Gen. Hisaichi Terauchi, in Tokyo, belligerently asserted that Japan should not hesitate to break off diplomatic relations with China if necessary.

The Japanese war games, timed to coincide with diplomatic pressure being brought on the central Chinese government in Nanking, started at 4 a. m. Monday. They embrace the whole of the vital Tientsin-Peiping area of North China, including the British-owned railway linking the two great cities and extending northeast into the Japanese-controlled state of Manchukuo.

Trains Commandeered.

Railway trains were commandeered and stations occupied in Peiping, Tientsin, Fengtai, Tangshan—near the British-controlled coal mines—and Tangku and Taku—down-river ports of Tientsin.

Simultaneously, Japanese News Agency dispatches from Tokyo quoted Terauchi as telling newspapermen the time for vigorous action in enforcing Japan's demands on China had arrived.

Thousands of Japanese soldiers were in action around Tientsin. The maneuvers will continue a week and will culminate in a grand military review in Peiping.

Attaches Not Invited.

Contrary to custom, United States and European military attaches were not invited to attend the maneuvers, which have aroused widespread anger and fear among the Chinese.

A thousand Japanese troops were billeted in the former Belgian concession here. Chinese householders were forced to evacuate to provide shelter for the Nipponese. Japanese officers refused to receive a protest from the Hopei-Chahar Political Council, Chinese administrative organ for the northern provinces.

Object of the maneuvers, Chinese said, was to give the Japanese army

London Informed Archbishop May Spurn Role in Coronation

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

London, Oct. 26.—On the even of Mrs. Ernest Simpson's divorce at Ipswich, Fleet street—London's "newspaper row"—tonight was startled by a report that the Archbishop of Canterbury has decided it may be impossible for him to officiate at the coronation of King Edward next May.

According to the report, the archbishop's decision is "personal," based on the fact that he not only is head of the Church of England but also is the spiritual adviser of Queen Mary, as he was to the late King George. He is distressed at his inability to influence the present sovereign, the report added.

It is known that the aged ecclesiastic is opposed to the King's association with Mrs. Simpson. The archbishop, the report said, has concluded that his only possible course is to withdraw from the coronation lest his participation be interpreted by the British public to mean that he is willing to over look the King's attitude.

York May Officiate.

The Archbishop of York, who is not a spiritual adviser to the royal family, presumably would be in a less difficult position and might officiate in the place of the Archbishop of Canterbury by placing the crown of England on Edward's head. But, while this would make the coronation decorous and thoroughly seemly, it was conceded that substitution of York for Canterbury would be a world sensation.

Mrs. Simpson's brief divorce hearing in Ipswich Assizes will be called promptly at 2:15 p. m. (9:15 a. m. E. S. T.) tomorrow and 10 minutes later—if there is no hitch—King Edward's American friend will have discarded her second husband.

Justice Sir John Anthony Hawks, attorney general to the King when the Sovereign was Prince of Wales, worked through his criminal and civil docket today, right down to the Simpson case. Then he adjourned court. As he is the essence of punctuality and Mrs. Simpson's case is the first on the list, it is safe to say the hearing will start promptly at 2:15.

Divorced persons may not remarry in England until the decree is made final, six months after it is granted. Mrs. Simpson's friends say she is not contemplating marriage with the King, but a large part of the Mayfair circle, in which they have been seen together so often, believes otherwise.

Md. Jury Asks Study of Bond Racket Charges

The Prince Georges County grand jury, after a 5-day study of the evidence, late yesterday recommended "trained investigators" be employed to make a "thorough investigation" of the alleged racket whereby police and bondsmen of the county have been grafting at the expense of Washington motorists.

The grand jury made its recommendation to Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, of the circuit court, now sitting in Upper Marlboro. He would appoint the trained investigators.

The grand jurors further recommended that, once the investigators have gathered their evidence, the jury be called back into a special session to take appropriate action.

Meantime, three Washington motorists, who complained they had been victims of a police-bondsman "shake-down" racket, reported they had been approached by men who offered them bribes to "forget it."

The grand jury, in its report to the circuit court, had this to say about gambling in Prince Georges County:

"The gambling situation seems to be well in hand. Diligent inquiry failed to disclose the presence of any professional gambling establishments in the county at this time. * * *"

The elaborate gambling casino formerly operated by Jimmy La Fountaine, it was learned last night, is running as usual. In the past, Jimmy's has closed down while the grand jury was in session. This time it failed to close, a circumstance which habitues explained by saying those who now control the casino are more greedy than Jimmy used to be.

As was forecast by The Post, the grand jury returned no indictment

Senator Carter Glass Rises to Protest

"I note from today's Post that my daughter has aged 20 years over night from supporting Landon."

This characteristic telegram from Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, following the announcement that his youngest daughter, Mrs. Issac Watlington Digges, of Bedford, N. Y. had come out for the Republican candidate for President, led to an investigation in The Post city room. It was discovered that a copy reader's illegible "of" had been translated as "56" in the composing room, thus making the Senator's daughter 20 years older than she actually is, although the original story made no mention of her age.

Friends of Virginia's favorite statesman in Washington got as spontaneous a chuckle out of the caustic message as the venerable Senator undoubtedly enjoyed as he penned the message from Annapolis.

'Father in 30,000' Calm on News Wife Gave Birth to Girl Triplets

Into the corral at Columbia Hospital, where expectant fathers are herded, an excited young nurse rushed yesterday morning to breathlessly inform Howard Armstrong, 28-year-old commercial artist, that he had become the father of girl triplets.

More than 30,000 babies had been born in the District since the last triplets arrived in 1933, but Armstrong took the news calmly, although some of the others there, awaiting the stork's arrival, almost fainted.

"Oh, I knew there would be triplets some time ago," Armstrong explained. "You see, we had an X-ray."

Assured that his wife and the babies were doing fine, Armstrong had the temerity to ask to see his new family.

Nurses and doctors looked at the new father aghast. He might have been one father in 30,000, but he was still a mere father to the nurses.

"They wouldn't even let me see the babies," Armstrong explained when he arrived home at 1820 K street northwest.

The babies, perfectly formed, weighing about 3 pounds each, were taken to an isolation ward and placed in incubators under the watchful eyes of Dr. Harry Donnelly, baby specialist.

Columbia Hospital officials explained they were taking no chances with the lives of the youngsters, so rare is the birth of normal triplets, but added, generously, Armstrong might be allowed to peek through a glass door at the babies in a day or so.

At the Bureau of Vital Statistics records revealed that the last living triplets were born in September, 1933, but lived only a few days.

Dr. E. W. Titus, who officiated at the birth of the Armstrong triplets, said his medical textbooks reveal that triplets occur once in about every 7,000 births.

No complications developed, Dr. Titus said, and Mrs. Armstrong had "a comparatively easy time."

Mrs. Armstrong, who is 27-years-old, was "delighted" to learn she had given birth to triplets. They are her first children.

Several weeks ago Dr. Titus suspected there would be a multiple birth, and an x-ray revealed the triplets.

Germans Sign Transatlantic Flight Contract

Pan-American, Lufthansa to Establish Regular Service Next Year.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—Carl Von Gablenz, technical director of German Lufthansa, announced today that a contract had been signed with Pan-American Airways to establish regular transatlantic plane service.

The United States and British governments have given permission for ten such flights next year, he said, and all preliminaries have been completed.

The statement was made in connection with today's announcement that Lufthansa's two Dornier flying boats, the Aeolus and the Zephir, each squipped with two Junker 250-horsepower Diesel engines, had completed eight crossings of the Atlantic to New York, covering 20,460 miles.

In announcing that the United States had sanctioned ten transatlantic flights next year, Von Gablenz revealed that British Imperial Airways had given permission for German flying boats to cross northern Ireland, formerly forbidden.

He said the Aeolus and the Zephir would be used on a route from Gavemuende via the Azores to New York City. He explained that the use of the catapult aboard the mother ship Westphalia, now located in the Azores, makes possible the long flight from the Azores to Gavemuende, the German base. The catapult saves approximately two tons of fuel for the 2,000 kilometer flight, as compared to a start from the surface of the sea.

This is due to the fact that two tons of fuel are needed to drive the plane a maximum of 600 meters through the water, where the going is very heavy, before attaining sufficient speed for a takeoff.

Comstock Refuses To Back Roosevelt

Detroit, Oct. 26 (AP).—Former Gov. William A. Comstock, for years leader of the Michigan Democratic Party, announced tonight he would not support President Roosevelt for re-election.

The former Governor's announcement was made while introducing former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri at a political meeting. At the same time, he expressed approval of the Administration of Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican incumbent.

Comstock, who led the party ticket in Michigan in 1932 by 60,000 votes but was defeated for renomination in 1934, split with party leaders last spring over patronage.

Train Wreck Delays Kreisler; 4,000 Await Him in Hall Here

While Fritz Kreisler paced the aisles of a Pennsylvania Railroad car stalled behind the wreckage of two freight trains at Menlo Park, N. J., last night, 4,000 music lovers waited impatiently in Constitution Hall to hear the magic notes of his violin.

At 9 o'clock, a half hour after the concert was scheduled to start, it was announctd from the stage that Kreisler would not appear for another hour and those who did not care to wait could get refunds for their tickets. About a fourth of the audience took advantage of the offer, and Mrs. Dorothy Dorsey autographed their tickets, explaining they could be exchanged for cash today.

At 10 o'clock Kreisler's train arrived in Union Station. He dashed to a waiting car and raced across town behind the warning sirens of a police escort.

Engineer James Goodfellow, of Trenton, was killed and three others injured in the Menlo Park wreck. Hours after the accident Pennsylvania trains were two and four hours late arriving in Union Station. The Congressional Limited was in the latter group.

Roosevelt Cites American Faith At Howard U.

President Roosevelt, dedicating a new chemistry building at Howard University yesterday, told a crowd of 4,000 persons, students and visitors, that "there should be no forgotten men and no forgotten races."

Keys to the new building, erected by the Public Works Administration at a cost of $626,000, were turned over to trustees of the institution by Secretary Ickes, who told of the many public works projects erected all over the country by the New Deal for the benefit of the colored race.

Founding of Howard University many years ago, President Roosevelt said, "typified America's faith in the ability of man to respond to opportunity regardless of race, or creed or color."

The speech, which was broadcast, was described at the White House as nonpolitical. It was the President's first talk to an all-colored audience since the beginning of the campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt said the Government's provision of three new structures for the university, of which the chemistry building is one, "represents the happy conjunction of two important Federal Government programs to meet the difficulties of the depression."

"They are a part of our Nation-wide projects to reduce unemployment by building useful public works," he said. "They are also a part of our Nation-wide program to insure the normal maintenance and necessary expansion of educational facilities for youth even in a time of depression."

Secretary Ickes told the cheering crowd the entire public works program for Howard University involves a spending of $3,000,000. He pointed out that this was only a part of the Government's plan for colored education. Public works money, he said, has made possible construction of more than 200 new buildings for colored students, costing a total of $6,250,000.

"Nor have benefits to Negroes from the Public Works Administration been restricted to the field of education," he said. "The health of our Negro citizens, which is so intimately associated with their general welfare, has been given consid-

Tag Applications Go Out Today, But Not to Violators

If you are one of the almost 10,000 motorists who failed to heed traffic violation tickets, you better investigate immediately.

Yesterday, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer announced his department would begin mailing applications for 1937 tags today. Those who have not posted collateral on tickets will not receive an application, Van Duzer said.

Van Duzer said nearly 10,000 warrants have been issued. Their applications will be held up until the warrants are satisfied.

The new tags are the reverse from the colors used this year—orange letters on a black field. Applications will be sent to about 200,000 car owners, which Van Duzer said is about 14,000 more than last year.

Tags will be mailed out November 16 while issuance over the counter at Ford Building will begin November 30.

Md. Jury Asks Study of Bond Racket Charges

in the Corinna Lorning murder case. Its report said:

"We spent nearly an entire day reviewing the vast volume of evidence that has been accumulated in the Loring case. The State's attorney, Lieut. Joseph H. Itzel and Sergt. Leo Vogelsang deserve a world of credit for the great amount of painstaking work that has been done.

Indictment Felt Unwise.

"We did not deem it wise at this stage of the investigation to return an indictment, but we feel confident that ultimately the perperator of this heinous crime will receive his just desserts."

Lieut. Itzel, after appearing before the grand jury, told reporters he had a definite suspect, but that he had not gathered sufficient evidence to take the case to trial.

The grand jury, reviewing causes of law violation in the county, made two important recommendations, one to discourage thirsty trouble-makers from coming in from Washington and the other threatening offenders with road-building and other hard labor.

"Our investigation shows," the jury said, "that much of the law violation of the county is due to the fact that the present law permits the sale of beer and light wines until 2 a. m. and on Sunday.

"This causes an influx of toughs, rowdies and disreputable persons in the county after the Washington saloons are closed. These are a constant source of trouble to our police and a menace to our citizens.

Urges Law's Amendment.

"We recommend that the existing law be amended, making it illegal to sell any form of intoxicating liquor between the hours of 12 o'clock midnight and 8 a. m., and between 12 o'clock midnight on Saturday and 8 a. m. Monday, and that any person licensed to sell intoxicating liquor be required under heavy penalty to keep his place of business closed during these hours."

Should this recommendation be adopted, the Prince Georges County taverns would have to close two hours before Washington drinking establishments on week days. The "deadline" for drinking here on week days is 2 a. m. On week-ends, places here must stop serving liquor at midnight Saturday, with only beer and light wines allowed on Sunday.

Apropos of hard labor for convicts, the grand jury said:

"Our investigation has convinced us of the futility of our present system of fines and imprisonment as a crime deterrent. The former so often entails great hardship upon the innocent and unoffending families of the offenders, and the comfortable quarters in our jail offer no terrors to certain classes of law breakers.

Urges Road Work.

"We believe that the only universally effectual punishment is one that carries a measure of physical discomfort. Therefore, we recommend that our laws be amended to require convicts to be employed in road building or some form of useful labor."

Simultaneously, Capt. Vinton D. Cockey, member of the County Board of Commissioners, announced he would seek to have the board start an investigation of the police at its meeting today.

"The State's attorney may not find sufficient evidence to secure convictions," he said. "In my opinion, the commissioners should hear the evidence and if they see fit discharge or suspend any officers who are proven to be involved in corrupt practices."

Chairman of the Board Perry Boswell said:

"If anything is wrong I'm for thrashing it out if we can get at it. That is as far as the police are concerned. We have no jurisdiction over the bondsmen or the justices of the peace."

The three men who said they had received offers to remain silent about the alleged police-bond racket yesterday told attorneys for the Keystone Automobile Club who are conducting the investigation how they had been approached.

Iannucci Charges Bribe Move.

Raymond R. Iannucci, 308 Sirth street northwest, said a man, whose name he refused to disclose, had called at his home Sunday night to offer him $140 if he declined to press his complaints.

Iannucci has filed suit for $140 against Elmer Pumphrey, bondsman living in Suitland, Md. The $140, Iannucci charges, represents the difference between $151.70 which he alleges he paid to Pumphrey for bond fee and fines and costs on a speeding charge, and $11.70 which court records show was paid to the county treasury for the same offense.

Two others, whose names were withheld, said similar offers had been made to them. One said he had been offered $500 for a receipt which shows $151.70 was paid to a Maryland bondsman.

Heavy Increase in Registrations Offers Most Perplexing Question in Forecasting Verdict.

By Franklyn Waltman

ONE of the most perplexing questions in any effort to appraise the probable outcome of this year's Presidential election is the meaning of the large increases of registered voters in every part of the country. The Associated Press estimates the total registered voters in the country on the eve of the election as 55,427,000

WALTMAN.

If that estimate be correct it means that there will be between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 voters eligible to vote this year who did not go to the polls in 1932. It means, if the weather is fair, a total vote cast this year in the neighborhood of 45,000,000, or more than 5,000,000 in excess of the ballots cast four years ago.

With his additional or new vote scattered throughout the country, it is obvious that it may be the dominating factor in the election. If this new vote leans strongly to one side or another it conceivably could swing victory to the side it prefers. If it is evenly divided between the two candidates, it conceivably could cut down or increase normal party majorities of the past. But what it will do is not celar.

Politicians in power fear unusual outpourings of voters. In control of the party machine, they fear the casual or independent voter. The reason is that usually—but not always—an outpouring of voters is inspired by a desire to protest against the "ins," against those holding office. Aside from those affiliated with political machines, voters are stirred more readily by anger against or dislike for some officeholder than they are by a desire to reward good work and administration.

For instance, in the 1928 election about 7,700,000 more votes were cast than in 1924, chiefly because of the intense feeling over prohibition and religion engendered by that year's campaign. But the party in power won. In 1932 the registration total jumped over 4,000,000 above the 1928 figure and approximately 3,000,000 more persons voted than in the spirited contest four years before. The latter clearly was a protest vote.

It is in this light that the Republican spokesmen interpret this year's huge registration increases. They see it as a "protest vote." The Democrats, on the other hand, profess to see in these additional voters, especially in the large cities, the rising of another army to support them. They contend it means the masses of the people have been aroused by the attacks on Mr. Roosevelt and have shaken off their indifference to their right of franchise in order to keep a people's President in office.

Perhaps so. But neither of these contentions is worth the paper on which it is written because it is not based on any study of the identity or circumstances of the new voters. Such contentions are what party leaders are supposed to say. But none knows what proportion of these added registrants are young men and women reaching their majority since 1932; none apparently knows how many are men or women; or how many have passed the age of 50 or why these people went to the trouble of registering this year.

Consequently an inquiry made by the New York Times last week to learn some explanation for the unprecedented increase of 560,000 in the registration total in New York City is significant. The Times found that "thousands of citizens who had not voted since the days of Theodore Roosevelt or Woodrow Wilson or even earlier, and many who had never voted before (although well up in years) flocked to register so that they could qualify as voters."

The Times selected a list of names of persons 35 years old or more, especially those above 45 years, living in various parts of New York and sent out a corps of reporters to question these persons. The results of 28 interviews were published by the newspaper. Of this group 10 were men, 18 were women, 21 were over 45 years old, 5 were under that age and the ages of two were not given.

Thirteen of those questioned said they would vote for President Roosevelt; ten named Gov. Landon as their preference—spiritedly gave their reasons for wishing the President's defeat; four said they had made up their minds how they would vote, but declined to reveal their decision; one woman said she has not yet made up her mind.

The interviewers with those who declined to state their preference indicated that they would vote for Gov. Landon. For instance, one was a dentist, who had an office in a strong Democratic neighborhood and presumably depended chiefly on Democrats for patients. There seems no reason why he should be secretive if he plans to vote for the President; but there appears ample reason why he should decline to answer if his choice is Gov. Landon.

Thus the box-score on this group would stand, assuming that those who declined plan to support Gov. Landon, as follows: Landon, 14; Roosevelt, 13; one in doubt. Even if the four, who declined to answer were equally divided between the two candidates the ratio of Roosevelt support to that of Landon is much less than is shown, for instance by the Literary Digest poll, which gives the President two votes to each for Gov. Landon in New York City.

The New York Times group may not be a good sample. Indeed, it is subject to the criticism of including almost twice as many men as women. But certain things are significant. One is that those advanced in years who are registering for the first time—or after a period of indifference to voting—divide fairly even between the two candidates. In a city like New York that favors Gov. Landon. In a Republican community it would favor President Roosevelt.

None of those questioned mentioned the Townsend Old Age pensions, but several aged persons said they would vote for Mr. Roosevelt because of the social security act and because they hoped to get their old-age pensions soon. The Landonites explained their stand, not on anything he has said or promised, but on the ground that Mr. Roosevelt had stirred up class hatred, or was spending too much money, or had sponsored the NRA or had flouted the Constitution or for something else he has done.

Still another disclosure is that some people are reluctant to state how they plan to vote. This accords with reports received from other sources to the effect that many persons who plan to vote for Gov. Landon do not wish to reveal their preference because they live in Democratic neighborhoods, or they are in business and fear retaliation, or because someone in the family is on WPA or works for the Federal Government or hopes to do business with the Federal Government and they do not wish to do any harm to such a relative.

This aspect of the situation might be important, as it creates an unknown quantity in many of the straw ballots and therefore increases their margin of error. The Gallup poll, which shows President Roosevelt in the lead, reports that about 60 per cent of youths, just past their majority and voting for the first time favor President Roosevelt; that those past 45 years old, in general, lean toward Gov. Landon and that President Roosevelt is stronger among women than men. These are factors which make it important to know their characteristics in seeking to determine how the new voters, young or old, will vote. Without that information it is a guess.

eration. By means of PWA allocations, 3,050 additional beds have been established in hospitals for Negroes in the South."

Ickes presented the key to the new building to J. R E. Moorland, oldest member of the board of trustees of the university.

Mordecai W. Johnson, president of the University, in opening the program, said he was particularly proud that the new building was originally planned by a colored man, Dr. Percy Julian, and that the architectural work was done by a member of the same race, Albert I. Cassell.

"It is highly significant," he said, "that this building has been erected by the United States Government, which demonstrates her greatest glory when she gives the best in education to the humblest of her citizens.

"Democracy has here demonstrated its intent to give to the children of former slaves the precise education which it gives to its best citizens."

Works on Speeches.

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt worked before a roaring log fire in the seclusion of his second-floor White House study last night, drafting five speeches, one nonpolitical, that he will make during the final week of his campaign for re-election.

The Chief Executive put the finishing touches to an address that he will deliver tomorrow at the Statue of Liberty ceremony, in New York, and made steady progress on major speeches scheduled for Harrisburg, Brooklyn, New York and Hyde Park on election eve.

During the day Mr. Roosevelt spent several hours in the executive offices discussing business and politics with half a dozen visitors. His first callers were three New York brokers, E. A. Pierce, E. H. Simmons, former head of the Stock Exchange, and Duke Wellington.

They declined to state the purpose of their visit.

The President went over details on his trip into Pennsylvania that is scheduled for Thursday with Senator Joseph Guffey, Democrat, o fthat State, and later heard reports of the WPA from Harry Hopkins and Federal housing activities from Administrator Stewart McDonald.

Off at Midnight.

Mr. Roosevelt will hit the campaign trail tonight at midnight. He will arrive at Bayonne, N. J., Wednesday morning and board a ferry for Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor to speak in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the raising of the Statue of Liberty.

From New York Wednesday night he will proceed to Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg and Philadelphia and thence to Camden, N. J., and Wilmington, Del. His special train will return him to Washington Thursday night.

After a few hours in the Capital, the President will set out again Friday to be gone until after election. He will speak at the Brooklyn Academy of Music Friday night and at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

The last speech of the campaign will be made Monday night from Hyde Park, N. Y., where on November 3, Mr. Roosevelt will cast his ballot.

Confidence Trick With Old Envelope Nets Pair $3,000

The age-old envelope trick, most ancient of confidence flim-flams, was pulled again yesterday and a 65-year-old colored woman lost $3,000—her life savings.

Approached by two colored women in Seventh street northwest, Mary B. Wise, of Brentwood, Md., told police, the women showed her an envelope bulging with money.

Mrs. Wise told detectives the women said they had just found the money and rather than have it taken from them by police they were willing to give her half. That is, if she could show she had money and knew how to take care of such a large sum.

The elderly woman said she went to her building and loan bank and drew out her savings. When she returned, she was told to put her money in the envelope with the other bills so an even split could be made. The women then fled with the $3,000.

Chicago, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Whether it likes it or not the Democratic Administration is going to be contested in the present campaign by money it gave out as aid.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Edith K. Roosevelt, widow of President Theodore Roosevelt, says the "liberalism" her husband represented "in no way resembled the policies of the present Administration in Washington."

Her reply to a letter from James R. Garfield, who was Secretary of the Interior in her husband's Cabinet, was made public by the Republican National Committee. Garfield's letter expressed resentment that Senator Vic Donahey, of Ohio, in a recent speech, had likened President Franklin D. Roosevelt to her husband.

"The Progressive Party which my husband founded 24 years ago was built on American principles," Mrs. Roosevelt wrote. "Its liberalism was in accord with our theories of democracy and personal liberty and in no way resembled the policies of the present Administration in Washington."

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP).—Chairman John Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee, issued a statement today charging James Roosevelt, son of the President with "a disregard for the facts" of the Kansas school situation.

"Not a Kansas school child has been deprived of schooling under the administration of Gov. Landon," Hamilton said. "Not a Kansas school teacher has had a pay cut under Gov. Landon. * * *

"I am not surprised at James Roosevelt indulging in misrepresentation. * * * Perhaps he realizes that if his father were not Jresident * * * and it were not for the extraordinary powers to annoy, persecute and overcharge corporations and individuals which is in the hands of the Bureau of Internal Revenue under President Roosevelt * * * Mr. James Roosevelt would quickly lose the prestige of being the No. 1 insurance salesman of America."

St. Louis, Oct. 26 (AP).—Sterling E. Edmunds, secretary of the National Jeffersonian Democrats, said today a survey by the organization indicates "not less than 3,000,000 true Democrats will desert the New Deal candidate for the Presidency, as he has deserted the principles of their party, making a difference of at least 6,000,000 votes in the final count."

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 26 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, in a speech prepared for delivery today at a Democratic campaign meeting, forecast sufficient national income "within a year or two" to permit a balanced budget and a start toward reduction of the national debt "provided the Administration then in power has the courage to collect a fair share from the taxpayers according to their ability to pay."

"The Federal Government has gone into debt since 1933 because State and local governments were without resources, because it could borrow at lower interest rates and finally because Federal expenditures would mean a lighter tax burden on the farmer and home owner."

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26 (AP).—Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to Woodrow Wilson when he was President, told dissident Democrats tonight they would have Republican applause for a while, "but in the cold, gray dawn of the morning after, a great regret will live with you."

Using a Democratic rally for his forum, Tumulty asked:

"Will the friends of Al Smith feel comfortable and at home within a party, some of whose members contributed their money to spread the poison of religious hatred upon him, helping to deny him his place in the political sun because of the way he worshipped his God?"

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., Eastern manager of the Republican national campaign, asserted tonight that the New Deal was "now hurriedly engaged in distributing $9,000,000 in benefit checks under the new program in States where their political overlords need assistance."

In a statement issued by the Republican National Committee, Martin said:

"We have heard repeatedly in recent campaign speeches by President Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes that the emergency is over and recovery is here—but Mr. Ickes suddenly discovered a few days ago that he had about $10,000,000 additional he might hand out in grants and loans before election. He is now doing so, with the President's written approval. * * * PWA prefers to shell it out—and is doing so—in States allegedly 'doubtful.'"

* * * *

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP).—H. R. Tolley, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, declared today the Administration's farm program had aided both business and agriculture.

In what he termed his first "political" address of the campaign, given over a Midwestern radio hookup, he contended Republican farm proposals would "invite a drastic price decline."

Tolley said mistakes had been made. He added:

"The administration of the triple A has been far from perfect. But occasional mistakes are never a good reason to throw away careful and conscientious work."

By the Associated Press.

Confidence that Gov. Landon will win only one vote from the traditionally Democratic family of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, was expressed yesterday by Mrs. Blair Banister, sister of the Senator.

The Republican National Committee had quoted Mrs. Isaac Watlington Digges, of Bedford, N. Y., the Senator's daughter, as saying she "most assuredly" would support the Republican Presidential candidate.

Mrs. Banister, Assistant Treasurer of the United States by appointment of President Roosevelt since 1933, said Dr. Meta Glass, president of Sweetbriar College, and two other sisters of the Senator residing in Virginia are staunchly Democratic.

Just about the most ardent Roosevelt partisan of the family, she added, was Mrs. Carter Glass.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Oct. 26.—Bishop James Cannon, jr., formerly one of the major prohibition leaders of the country and prominent in the Virginia Methodist Church, urges the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon to the Presidency in a letter to The Sun today.

Now living in California, Bishop Cannon declared he fully agreed "with the position which the Jeffersonian Democrats have taken" in opposition to President Roosevelt's re-election, adding that "Mr. Roosevelt is not the candidate of the Democratic Party." and that the New Deal has been "a at repudiation of the Democratic principle of State rights."

He also thought it "amazing to find myself lined up with such men as Alfred Emanuel Smith, Bainbridge Colby and James A. Reed," but added that while he disagreed with their views on the liquor question, "I am one with them in my opposition to the continuance in office of such a pledge-breaking, unbalanced and sulf-sufficient man as Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself to be."

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26 (AP).—Calling the New Deal "a crazy quilt of broken promises and demagogic delusions," Representative Bertrand H. Snell tonight declared the campaign against it was "a crusade to protect your home, your church, constitutional government and American liberties."

The New York Representative and Republican leader in the House quoting President Roosevelt as saying "the merit system has been and will continue to be, extended during my Administratioin," declared:

"He has some nerve to continue to make that statement in the face of the record. * * * The percentage of the jobs not in civil service has risen from 19 to 39 per cent during the first three yars of the Roosevelt Administration."

Cold Prevents Talk by Landon At Depot Here

Nice, Other G.O.P. Notables Board Special for Trip North.

Gov. Alf M. Landon for the first time in his campaign for the Presidency came to Washington yesterday and paused for a few minutes. But due to a severe cold from which he has been suffering he was confined to the drawing room of his private car under a physician's orders and did not make a public appearance.

The Landon Sunflower Special paused for several minutes at the Baltimore & Ohio Langdon station in northeast Washington, while en route from the West to Baltimore, in order to permit a Maryland reception committee, a delegation from the District of Columbia and a group of newspapermen to board the train.

Several hundred Republicans from the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia gathered around the tiny station in the hope that the Republican Presidential nominee might make an appearance on the rear platform of his car and, perhaps, say a few words of greeting. When the special stopped, this crowd ran to the rear of the train and cries of "Landon, we want Landon," went up.

Henry J. Allen, former Kansas Senator and former Governor of that State, said Gov. Landon could not come out and added "for several reasons." But he did not explain. Gov. Landon's failure to appear during the brief stop, at which an appearance had not been scheduled, seemed to disappoint many in the crowd.

Follows Out Orders.

Gov. Landon expressed deep regret that he had been unable to appear at the Langdon stop. District of Columbia Republican National Committeeman Edward F. Colladay subsequently said. Colladay was one of the Washingtonians who boarded the train for the ride to Baltimore.

The Republican nominee, according to Colladay, was adhering strictly to his physician's orders that he spare his voice and conserve his strength for the speeches in Baltimore and Philadelphia later in the day and evening, and especially in view of the inclement weather yesterday. Thus Gov. Landon still was in bed when his train reached Washington, Colladay said. Those aboard the train did not know that any except those who planned to board the train would at Langdon station.

It was at this place that Gov. Harry W. Nice and Maryland Republican leaders joined the Landon train. They arrived from Baltimore in the special car of Charles W. Galloway, vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio, a few minutes before the Landon train arrived.

With the Maryland Governor was Harry O. Levin, William P. Lawson, Republican State chairman; William F. Broening, former mayor of Baltimore; Republican National Committeeman O. E. Weller, Daniel O. Ellison, Republican candidate for Congress; Gen. J. Craig McLanahan, Harry W. Sleeman, of Montgomery County; Walter A. McClean, Baltimore election supervisor, and a number of other Baltimore Republicans.

Others In Group.

The group of Washington Republicans, in addition to Colladay, included Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Mrs. Virginia White Sheel, James C. Wilkes, chairman of the District Republican Committee; Clyde D. Garrett, secretary of the State Central Committee; Paul F. Lesh, president of the Landon-Knox Campaign Club; Mrs. Mildred Reeves, Col. Ord Preston, Mrs. Ruth Colladay, president of the Young Republican Women; E. E. Colladay, Francis Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Rhodes, Mrs. George Hart, Mrs. Bruce Hoggson, Dr. Camp Stanley, Mrs. Anabell Lee Frye, Alanson D. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain, Ferry K. Heath, and Judge Gus A. Schuldt.

Various local Republican organizations were represented at the station by Mrs. Bishop Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Rhodes, Mrs. Emory Wheeler, Mrs. Gordon Edmonds, Mrs. Ralph Walker, C. Melvin Sharpe, Malcolm Sharpe, Albert Conradis, James McGarrity, Dillard Groff, Mrs. J. H. Branson, Edna M. Patton and Mrs. Pearlie Jones.

From Arlington County, Va., and the Eighth Congressional District came Grayson Ahalt, chairman of the Arlington County Republican Committee; Mrs. Alane Chricher, Clarence Ahalt, E. W. Woods, jr., Mrs. Marion Hagan, William Smith, president of the Arlington County Young Republicans; Mrs. Christine Sramek and A. B. Eaton, of the Virginia State Executive Committee.

State Investigates Death of Dameron

Refusing to accept the theory that Hervey E. Dameron, 49, former secretary to Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, was killed five miles from Richmond, Va., on the Washington highway Sunday, by a "hit-and-run" driver, Larkin W. Glazebrook, special investigator for the Virginia State Motor Vehicle Commission, yesterday was investigating the possibility of murder.

"One of the peculiar angles of the case," Glazebrook explained, "is that long deep gash across the stomach. It could have been made with a knife. Another is the man's belt, still buckled, but cut in two in the back, found 15 feet from the road behind a tree."

Coroner J. H. Scherer, of Richmond, termed Dameron victim of a hit-and-run driver after finding particles of glass, which matched fragments found on the highway, embedded in his skull.

Richmond police advanced the theory Dameron was struck while hitch-hiking to Washington, but Glazebrook pointed out an unused airplane ticket good for a ride to Washington was found in the victim's pocket.

were in Philadelphia today and completed arrangements for the trip to Oyster Bay.

Closeted in his hotel suite most of the afternoon conferring with city, State and national G. O. P. leaders and civic officials, Gov. Landon took a few minutes out to address a gathering of Republican women, assembled in the hotel ballroom to hear Col. Roosevelt.

Col. Roosevelt referred to President Roosevelt as "my fifth cousin, about to be removed."

M. Harvey Taylor, State chairman, introduced Landon to the cheering, flag-waving throng tonight as "a man that you can believe," and a real ovation followed that lasted for five minutes. Landon stood waiting for the cheering to subside, but it started up anew when a fife, drum and flag bearer portraying the "Spirit of '76" marched across the stage.

Hundreds Turned Away.

Outside the hall red flares and parading brightly uniformed bands added festival color, as hundreds turned away from the auditorium waited to catch another glimpse of the nominee.

While President Roosevelt in Washington was dedicating the PWA-financed Howard University chemistry building, Emmet J. Scott, secretary of Howard University, in a prelude to the Landon address, called on members of the Negro race to support the Republican ticket.

Scott said the Negro race owes its original grant of freedom, its present independence and educational advantages to the Republican Party, and appealed for colored support of a party he said would assure the continuance of "religious and racial tolerance," which said went "hand in hand."

Asks Five Questions.

Landon asked five questions and answered them all himself. He asked who would pay for New Deal spending, who is paying the $12,000,000,000 the Administration already has collected, who would pay for $13,000,000,000 in additional borrowing, who would pay if "extravagance" continued, and, lastly, who is going to end the extravagance.

His answer, in two words, was "we are."

After Landon had shouted his second "We are," the audience joined in the refrain, and as he posed his last query 20,000 voices boomed with him in response a mighty "We are."

"When I take office as Chief Executive I shall put an end to the use of relief funds for political purposes," he said. "And I shall put an end to the use of public funds for political purposes. And I shall put an end to the use of public funds for the building and maintaining of a propaganda machine in Washington."

Contending that checks and balances under the Constitution, "a practical document," had been upset by Administration "spendthrift" policies, he demanded that the Budget Bureau and the Office of Comptroller General be restored "to the proper place in our Government." He pointed out that both offices now are filled by "acting" officials.

Part of Machine.

"The bureau has become a part of the White House spending machine," he said. "I intend to restore this bureau to a position of independence with a competent director at its head."

He said the Comptroller General is the "watch dog over expenditures," and "every one knows what happens when the boss is away." If elected, he said, he would assure the "protection of a determined, nonpartisan Comptroller General."

He said the country needs "an administration that realizes even Uncle Sam can go broke."

Landon reiterated his charge of "hidden taxes," burdening the consumer, and quoted from the same letter in which the President assured a "breathing spell" for business.

Quotes President.

In this letter he said the President wrote these words:

"In 1929 consumers' taxes represented only 30 per cent of the national revenue. Today they are 60 per cent."

Landon told Quaker City voters not to be fooled into thinking that the rich "are going to pay the piper."

"They haven't that much money," he said.

"If the Government last year had confiscated every penny of all incomes above $5,000 it would not have had enough to pay the cost of our Federal Government. The bulk of the money always comes from the men and women who labor in our workshops, on our farms and in our offices."

The Republican Presidential aspirant said he was not raising a political "bogey man" or telling "fairy stories" or 'bedtime tales" when he described "boondoggling" projects ranging from counting Pennsylvania trees to erection of a giant concrete checker board."

"But," he went on, "taking up a water main on one side of the highway and laying it down again on the other side is not as bad as taking up people from one part of the country and putting them down in another."

He said $275,000,000 had been allotted for this resettlement purpose, a price greater than the cost of "the whole standing Army."

"If we continue our spendthrift course," he admonished in conclusion, "if we continue our unbalanced budget, if we refuse to cut out the waste and frills of Government, our day of reckoning will come sooner than many imagine.

"The lesson of national bankruptcy is clear for all to read."

Capital Will Shiver Today With Storms Along East Coast

As storm warnings were hoisted along the Atlantic Coast from the Virginia capes to Sandy Hook, the Weather Bureau last night warned Washington to prepare for the coldest weather since last spring.

Rain and cold winds, forecasters predicted, would force the temperature down to 38 degrees before sunrise. Today will be fair and chilly, forecasters said. The temperature early yesterday dropped to 43 degrees.

"Graupel," which the dictionary terms "granular snow particles, soft hail," fell in Chicago yesterday. Amateur observers called it "snail," a combination of snow and hail.

Storm warnings were hoisted south of Sandy Hook after the Weather Bureau received word that disturbances over the lower St. St. Lawrence Valley were moving east, accompanied by strong, shifting winds which were expected to reach gale force.

American Newswriter Rumored Slain in China

Sian Fu, Shensi Province, China (Tuesday), Oct. 27 (AP).—Missionaries here today received a report, not confirmed in other sources, that Edgar Snow, American newspaper man and magazine writer of Kansas City, Mo., had been killed near here.

Snow had been in this vicinity for two weeks.

600 Strikers Tie Up Plate Glass Plant

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 26.—The Clarksburg plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company today was at a complete standstill as the result of a strike of 600 workers, which began Saturday midnight. The plant was being picketed peacefully and the company has not attempted to bring in other workers.

Approximately 450 members of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers are out, and cutters, who belong to another union, went out in sympathy, bringing the number of strikers to 600.

Lodge to Celebrate Sen. Davis' Birthday

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 26.—The birthday anniversary of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania and the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of Mooseheart, national lodge home for orphan children, will be celebrated tomorrow night by the local lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose with an open house at the lodge hall on West Main street.

Davis, as director general of the order, founded the home in Illinois, and it has grown to house more than 1,000 dependent children of deceased members of the Moose.

Knox Outlines Labor Program Of Republicans

Workers' Best Interests With G.O.P., Illinoisan Says at Dayton, O.

By the Associated Press.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Col. Frank Knox, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, told Ohio labor tonight "its best interests lie with the Republican Party."

Only unconstitutional or unsound measures, Knox said, have been given labor by the Roosevelt Administration. He held up the prospect of "work for all" and "real recovery" under a Landon-Knox regime.

"Recovery is on its way," the Chicagoan said in an address here, "but it is still burdened by fear and uncertainty and debt and taxes."

Predicts Victory.

"Real and final recovery will begin a week from tomorrow, when the people throw off the weight of Federal interference with freedom of enterprise, when they elect Alfred M. Landon.

"And the ones who will benefit most from the restoration of free enterprise will be the working man."

The social security act, the handling of farm labor and domestic help, the NRA, the AAA and the Guffey act, all were included as Knox attacked the Administration's labor record.

Assails Security Act.

Making the social security act his special target, as he did earlier in the day during a tour of Ohio cities, Knox said it would take billions in taxes from working men and make them "the plaything of Federal boondoggling."

Earlier in the day Knox called the act a "fake."

"Exactly nothing," Knox said tonight, "has been done for 'the forgotten men and women of our times,' the farm hands and domestic servants."

"They can not be herded to the polls at election time," he said. "The favored plan is to let them go on the dole and reach them through the WPA straw bosses."

Gillilan to Direct 'Election' by Meter

Strickland Gillilan, humorist, will be master of ceremonies tonight at the Shoreham ballroom when voteless Washingtonians will have the opportunity to cast a ballot for their Presidential candidate.

Of course, the ballot won't count in the election. Voting will be by handclapping and votes will be measured by an applause meter Neither major party candidate will be present, but society-girl models will take their places.

Nebraska's Extra Cash Prompts Foreign 'Bids'

Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 26 (AP).—Nebraska's State treasury surplus is becoming an international problem. For the second time in as many weeks, State Treasurer George E. Hall has received a foreign offer to help the State get rid of its idle dollars. Each time $5,000 was mentioned as a nice round sum which could be used to good advantage.

Today's request came from Alexandrive Jaracanof, of Shalac, Yugoslavia, who said she was a refugee from Russia and had two children who needed money to go to a gymnasium. Hall said he was a bit annoyed by this request until he learned a European gymnasium is not exclusively an athletic hall, but an institution comparable to an American high school.

Swasey Wins Hoover Medal

Cleveland, Oct. 26 (AP).—Ambrose Swasey, Cleveland scientist and a builder of machine tools and telescopes for 67 years, will receive the Hoover Gold Medal, "awarded by engineers to a fellow engineer for distinguished service," at the annual dinner of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at New York, December 2, the Hoover medal board announced today.

Supreme Court Agrees to Pass On Wagner Act

is expected to hand down the first of a long list of opinions.

With its decision to rule on the labor law, the court brought to a total of eight the cases involving New Deal legislation now pending before it. Other cases involved the public utility holding company act, the law authorizing PWA loans and grants for publicly owned hydroelectric plants, a tax on silver profits made before the silver purchase act became effective, the Ashhurst-Sumners law requiring labeling of prison-made goods, an embargo on sale of arms to Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco war, and whether a rental contract is affected by the Congressional resolution barring payment of obligations in gold.

The court, among its orders, denied an appeal to speed up hearing a petition by Communists to prevent distribution of election ballots without the names of Communist candidates. This case cannot now be heard before November 9, six days after election.

Associate Justice Stone, who has been confined to his home with an intestinal ailment, was absent from the court session.

3 Floridians Held For Browder Riot

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 26 (AP).—The second unsuccessful attempt of Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, to speak here reverberated today in the State courts.

Albert Simmons, Florida secretary for the International Labor Defense, swore out warrants charging three men with breaking up the candidate's Sunday political rally.

Simmons' action came shortly after four Tampa posts of the American Legion disclaimed any responsibility. Men wearing Legion caps broke up the rally.

The warrants listed Constable Fred Newberger, Deputy Constable John Parrish and former Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Ponder. All were arrested on charges of assault and battery, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and affray. They were released on $1,000 bond each. A hearing date was not set.

Weirton 'Terror' Charges Studied

By the Associated Press.

A special Senate investigator was ordered to Weirton, W. Va., yesterday to study union charges that the National Steel Co. had opened "a campaign of terror" against union organizers.

The La Follette committee investigating civil liberties violations announced Ernest C. Dunbar, of Pittsburgh, had been directed to begin "an immediate inquiry" at Weirton, site of one of the company's mills. Dunbar is serving both as a Senate agent and as acting regional director for the National Labor Relations Board.

$14,000,000 Fur Racket Defendants Go on Trial

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Two men charged with being leaders of a rabbit fur monopoly racket which had a $14,000,000 turnover in 1932 and 1933 in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, went on trial in Federal Court today after 23 other individuals and corporations indicted with them pleaded guilty of violating the act.

The defendants accused of being behind a "protective" which "organized" the fur processing industry in New York, New Jersey and cities elsewhere through assaults on individuals, robberies, stench-bombing and acid throwing, are Louis Buchalter, alias Lepke, and Jacob Shapiro, alias Gurrah. They also were under Sherman act indictments.

Beltsville Bridge Contract Awarded

Contract for the construction of a bridge over the grade crossing on the road to the Agricultural Experiment Center at Beltsville was awarded yesterday by the State roads commission to P. Reddington & Sons, Baltimore. Their bid was $34,276.61.

Plans have been approved for the erection of a four-span steel eye-beam overpass.

Construction has long been under consideration. It was strongly urged by hundreds of employes of the Government Experimental Farm.

Judge Seeks Authority To Hold 'Legs' Suspect

Boston, Oct. 26 (AP).—Judge Hugh D. McClellan in Federal Court today ordered District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing to submit by Thursday further legal authority to hold Oscar Bartolini, 50, Quincy chef, in $50,000 bail as a material witness in the murder of Mrs. Grayce Asquith.

Bartolini has been in Dedham jail for two weeks after being in police custody from October 8, three days after Mrs. Asquith's legs floated to the surface of Boston Harbor.

in North China actual practice in move it will make if hostilities start.

These moves would include control of all North China railways and strategic centers and the cutting of the railway lines from Peiping to Hankow and Tientsin to Pukow-Nanking. It would be over these lines that Chinese armies would move in event of fighting in the north.

Meanwhile, the deadlock in diplomatic negotiations in Nanking continued. Japanese Ambassador Shigeru Kawagoe and Chinese Foreign Minister Gen. Chang Chun were in conference Monday, but neither would make concessions.

Party Prank Fatal.

Chicago, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Robert Cheators, 34, gave a party last night. The guests were in high spirits and as a parting prank padlocked the host in a room when they left. Today Cheators died of injuries from a second-story fall. Police believed he lost his balance when he raised a window to call for help.

Ralph Rites Today; Died in Boat Upset

Requiem mass in the Church of the Blessed Sacrement will be celebrated at 10 a. m. today for Howard E. Ralph, attorney, of 3618 Rittenhouse street northwest, who with three others drowned in the Chesapeake Bay yacht tragedy near Bloody Point, Md., October 11. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Born in Washington in 1901, Mr. Ralph received his high school education at Gonzaga High School. Later he was graduated from the Notre Dame University Law School and Georgetown Law School. He was employed as an attorney in the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Marine office. Active in Catholic Church work, he was a member of the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus.

Couzens Is Buried In Tomb of Family

Detroit, Oct. 26 (AP).—The body of James Couzens rested tonight in Woodlawn Cemetery in the family mausoleum, banked deeply with floral tributes.

Hundreds of persons, including representatives of city, State and Nation, massed about the spacious Couzens home in suburban Bloomfield Hills to hear funeral services for the Senator.

Henry Ford, with whom Couzens joined at the turn of the century to organize the automobile company that became an industrial colossus; Dr. Hugo A. Freund, president of the Children's Fund of Michigan, established by a $10,000,000 gift from Couzens; Maj.-Gen. Charles E. Kilbourne, personal representative of President Roosevelt; members of official delegations from the Senate and House of Representatives, and other pallbearers sat in the drawing room where the casket rested.

Merriman to Direct St. Augustine Plans

Dr. John C. Merriam, president of Carnegie Foundation, was elected temporary chairman last night, of a committee studying proposed restoration plans for St. Augustine, Fla., oldest city in the United States.

Historians, engineers and members of the National Park Division of Historic Sites from all parts of the country who made up the committee were told by Dr. Merriam he considered St. Augustine, "one of the most important cities, if not the most important from the standpoint of historic restoration."

John Pickrin, of St. Augustine, was appointed temporary chairman. Several members suggested making evacuations in the area of old Fort Marion, which still stands near the ruins of the romantic original city gates.

Britons Look to Tiny Princess As Second Queen Elizabeth

Approaching Marriage of King Edward Viewed by Subjects as 'Let Down'; 'Lillibeth' Trained from Birth to Take Throne; York's Daughter Favorite of All.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Whether Edward VIII marries Mrs. Wallis Simpson, of Baltimore, or not, Old England has its heart set on a second Queen Elizabeth.

The chances of the Baltimore woman becoming a queen has stirred America, but the little lady in whom the dreams of the average British subject are centered today is the curly-headed, blue-eyed 10-year-old duaghter of the Duke and Duchess of York.

No one knows better than the King himself, her "Uncle David," how fondly his subjects look forward to the day when she may reign. Her training from the day she first answered to her pet name —"Lillibeth"—has pointed that way. If the King should make a woman twice divorced their Queen, there is no doubt that many British subjects would feel they had been let down," as they say, by their ruler. But if he should abdicate to marry "Wally," Elizabeth would become Crown Princess. She is second in line for the throne after her father, who will be 41 this December 14.

Because both her father and uncle are over the boundary of normal middle age, Elizabeth is a generally recognized royal heiress. But if "Wally" became queen, any children of that union would take precedence over both Elizabeth and her father.

The average person in England doesn't even know what "Wally" looks like, although her face now is familiar to most Americans. But do they know Elizabeth? Cheering crowds gather for her every appearance and British newspaper photographers are on her trail at every opportunity.

The idea of another Elizabeth as queen is charged with high voltage for the average Englishman. The Virgin Queen symbolized the Golden Age to them, when England became mistress of the seas by smashing the Spanish Armada, when Raleigh and other explorers began building the empire, when Shakespeare and others ushered in a brilliant literary era.

When "Lillibeth" grew her first tooth it was an event of greatest national importance. When she had mumps, every mother from lands end to John o' Groats talked of it.

The glamorous Princess Marina was a thrilling novelty when she came from the Balkans to marry Prince George, but Elizabeth almost stole the show as her littlest bridesmaid. Even at the late King George's jubilee last year, the milling crowds from all parts of the empire would have been grievously disappointed if they had not seen Litle Elizabeth standing in the open carriage with her parents in the state parades.

Death Claims Joseph McCoy, Investors' Aid

Missourian, Long Active in G. O. P. Ranks, Lived Here 6 Years.

Joseph McCoy, 75, director and counsel of the National Invested Savings Corporation, died unexpectedly in the Everett Hotel Sunday. He had been a resident of Washington for the past six years.

A native of Columbus, Ohio, McCoy spent most of his life in Missouri. Active in politics there, he was, at one time secretary to the Republican State committee.

During the World War he was associated with the War Labor Board, and in the Administration of President McKinley he was district attorney of Oklahoma.

He was a close friend of former Gov. Lowden of Illinois and traveled through the country in the interests of his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination. He was a Mason.

Surviving McCoy are a son, Joseph C. McCoy, of Reading, Pa.; a daughter, Mrs. Julian Harvey, of New York, whose husband is executive secretary of the New York Safety Council, and a sister, Mrs. S. H. Woodson, of Independence, Mo.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Labor, Peace Tie-up Urged by Speaker

Closer co-operation between the peace movement and the labor movement was urged yesterday by Miss Eleanor Fowler, vice president of the District Trade Union League, in an address before the District branch of the Women's International League, in session at the Friends Meeting House.

She listed various factors, "the growth of fascism," the depression, the Nye investigation, the industrial mobilization plan of the War Department and the membership of the United States in the international labor organization, as contributing to make labor more peace conscious.

Miss Fowler also said a strong labor movement "is important to peace," emphasizing that "the peace movement should go to labor in a wholly co-operative spirit."

Ship's Captain Convicted.

Boston, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Capt. Adelbert C. Wickens, of the excursion steamer Romance, which sank off Boston Harbor without loss of life after a collision with the Eastern steamship liner New York, was convicted late today on four charges involving negligence and "inattention to duty," it was announced here. Wickens' license was suspended for six months.

Death Fall of Girl And Father Ruled Murder, Suicide

By the Associated Press.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 26.—A man identified as J. A. McPherson, 45, Chicago advertising man, and his 10-year-old daughter, Joan, fell to their deaths today from the twelfth floor of a hotel.

The girl fell first, striking near an entrance. A crowd gathered about her body. The spectators scattered screaming a moment later when McPherson followed.

The two registered at the hotel Saturday night. Police disclosed they had been asked by St. Louis police to arrest a man named McPherson and his daughter in connection with the disappearance of a motor car there.

Hopkins Scores Suit to Disclose WPA Records

Declares Attempt by Edge, 3 Others Is 'Frivolous, Political Move.'

Attacking attempts of four prominent Republicans of New Jersey to force the Works Progress Administration to open its books to public inspection, Harry L. Hopkins, administrator, in District Court yesterday termed the suit "frivolous, scandalous and impertinent and solely for political purposes."

The answer was filed in rebuttal to a request by the four petitioners, one of them being former United States Senator Walter E. Edge (later Ambassador to France) that the WPA be compelled to open its records so that the general public could see where the vast sums of money being spent was actually expended.

The petitioners claimed they were denied access to the New Jersey records, while Democrats were being given the privilege of seeing them, and were using them for political purposes. These charges were denied in the answer. The Government, through John S. L. Yost, special assistant to the Attorney General, denied the further allegation that there was "breach of trust" in the handling of the WPA funds or that there was "gross waste and extravagance" by officials charged with the spending of the huge funds.

Speedy Action Doubtful.

As matters shaped up last night, it appeared to experienced court observers that the petition for mandamus could not be reached for a hearing until after the election. Attorneys for both sides admitted additional formal legal pleadings would have to be filed by both sides, and since the election is but a week away, they seemed to think the polls would be closed before the suit could be settled. At any rate, one of them said, even if the mandamus is granted, the work of preparing it for the court would take more time than exists before election.

Meeting the charge that the Jerseyites had been refused access to the books, the answer stated that all proper information had already been made public and that the names, addresses and salaries of employes was a matter of confidence that could not be betrayed by publication. Fear that such information would be used "for political purposes" was expressed in the Hopkins' answer.

Charge Is Denied.

Another charge in the suit, namely, that information obtained from WPA's records were being used by the President or any of his supporters, was flatly denied. The only information given out was available to any one, it was asserted.

Meantime, Edge and his colleagues lost in District Court an oral motion to supplement their suit by inserting affidavits. They insisted that the affidavits bore directly upon the issues of the case and asked that they be incorporated in the charges.

Justice Joseph W. Cox, after learning that the Government objected to the affidavits, denied permission to file them. It was understood the usual right of defendants to "meet their accusers and cross-examine them" had resulted in the decision, since by the filing of the affidavits, the affiants would not be subject to interrogation before a complete hearing could be had.

Workers Alliance Trio to Face Trial

Three members of the Workers' Alliance of America, arrested Saturday following a demonstration in front of WPA headquarters, will be arraigned in Police Court this morning.

David Lasser, president of the alliance, charged with parading without a permit, said last night he would demand a jury trial on the count. Through Attorney Fred A. Ballard, Lasser said, he will attempt to show that police planned the arrests in order to break up the demonstration.

Arrested with Lasser were Herbert Benjamin, organization secretary, and John Kelly, Pennsylvania member of the alliance. They were charged with disorderly conduct. The men are free under collateral totaling $65.

Waiter Pleads Guilty In Weyerhaeuser Case

Seattle, Oct. 26 (AP).—Edward Fliss, 30-year-old waiter, whose confession stated he spent most of his "cut" for exchanging Weyerhaeuser ransom bills for good times in Pacific Coast night spots, pleaded guilty today to a Federal charge of attempting to pass $285 of the money in a Seattle bank last February.

He pleaded innocent to another Federal charge—carrying a life imprisonment maximum—of being an accessory after the fact in the $200,000 kidnaping which sent William Dainard, alias Mahan, and Harmon Waley and his wife to prison on long terms.

Blum Presents Two Measures To Curb Press

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Oct. 26.—Premier Leon Blum, a former newspaperman, has set out to "clean up" the French press.

Blum, once a dramatic critic and editor of the Socialist newspaper, Populaire, until his assumption of the premiership, announced his government would present two bills to Parliament:

1. Providing restrictions "to put an end to personal defamation."

2. Requiring newspapers to make known their sources of revenue.

The premier promised his measures would not limit the liberty of the press.

"We wish simply to put an end to personal defamation," he said. "The press is an industry and we want that industry to work in broad daylight. There is not a journalist worthy of the name nor a publisher who can protest against such measures.

"It is necessary that public opinon, often naive and credulous, cease to be at the mercy of interests which often lean almost to treason."

The bills, to be presented to the regular session of Parliament meeting in November, were not explained in detail.

Political sources expected the first to tighten France's present loose libel laws, providing more effective means of action against extremist newspapers which spare few words in heaping abuse on their political opponents.

The second measure, by exposing finances of the press to public view, would be designed to make known the extent to which opinions, interspersed freely with the news in the French press, may have been purchased by private interests.

Woman Plans Orchids For Outside Gardens

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP).—Prof. Margery C. Carlson plans to have orchids for the average man's garden if it takes her all her life.

Her vision, as she outlined it today, was an orchid that can be grown in the garden and approach the costly commercial varieties in beauty.

Prof. Carlson has been trying for three years to develop two native species, the "grass pink" and the "moccasin flower." She has about 3,000 cultures growing in her laboratory at Northwestern University.

They are just "test tube babies" now—1½ inches high—but in a couple of years, she said, they might be hardy enough to be placed out of doors to finish their growth to an expected 18 inches.

Deputy Arrested Trying to Serve Writ on Coughlin

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—A deputy sheriff attempting to serve a summons on the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin was arrested today by police guarding the priest upon his arrival here for an address tonight.

The summons had to do with the suit of John H. O'Donnell, of Pittsburgh, seeking to oust Coughlin as head of the National Union for Social Justice, appoint receivers and obtain an accounting of the organization's funds.

Walter Kiewell, deputy sheriff, boarded the train at a suburban station, and after Coughlin had alighted at the terminal here, attempted to rush between the priest and his police escort.

"Father, here are some papers for you," he said.

The detectives quickly shouldered him away, and rushed him up against a nearby wall while Coughlin made his way to a taxi. Kiewell was led away in custody.

Dogs Join Hunt for Boy Missing in Mountains

Stevensville, Mont., Oct. 26 (AP). Bloodhounds nosed through the Sapphire Mountains near here today as search continued from the air and on the ground for 9-year-old Murray Miller.

The boy disappeared Saturday when he went to get a drink at a creek in the Burnt Fork district, where he had gone with his father, Ray Miller, a farmer.

Yesterday about 300 volunteers and 125 soldiers from Fort Missoula, led by Sheriff James Oliva and the boy's father, scoured the rugged region in vain. An airplane flew over the area without finding any trace of young Miller.

BelgianArming Of French Line May Be Sought

Radical Action Would Be a Part of Proposed Neutrality Plans.

By the Associated Press.

Brussels, Oct. 26.—Parliamentary circles tonight debated the possibility that the Belgian government, which until recently has had a strongly pro-French foreign policy, will ask Parliament tomorrow to fortify the French frontier as it has the German border.

Such a radical departure from Belgium's traditional stand, it was asserted in some quarters, will be brought forward as part of Belgium's new modified neutrality plans which the government intends to define at a special parliamentary session opening at 2 p. m.

Usually informed sources forecast, however, the cabinet pronouncement probably will affect the government's desire to stand by its existing accords together with an equal wish to keep out of any new alliances.

The government's statement was expected to be an "interpretation of King Leopold's interpretation" of Belgium's foreign policy, made in a speech October 15.

A proposal for fortification of the French frontier, informed persons [illegible] concessions to the Fleming people, whose land lies along the German border and whose sympathies are more pro-German than those of Belgium's other residents.

The Flemish assert that since the German border has been fortified, the French frontier should be, also. The Flemish have recently had an increasingly heavy influence in the government.

The special parliamentary session was called to vote extraordinary rearmament funds and to increase the term of compulsory military service from 12 to 18 months.

The domestic situation, meanwhile, was complicated by renewed defiance of Leon Degrelle, leader of the Fascist Rexist Party who spent last night in jail after street fights between his followers and Brussels police.

Degrelle reiterated his plan to march on Brussels with 150,000 supporters to lend strength to his campaign to overthrow the government sponsored by moderate Catholics and Socialists and substitute his own corporative state.

Court Disbars Hall, Attorney, On Fee Charge

Holmes Hall, Richmond, Va., attorney, yesterday was disbarred from practice before the United States Supreme Court, the tribunal asserting he "has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the bar of this court."

The court's action sustained a report submitted by a committee of three Washington attorneys appointed to make an investigation. Hall's name was ordered "stricken from the roll of attorneys admitted to practice before the bar of this court."

A dispute over fees granted Hall while he was acting as special master for the Western Missouri Federal District Court, was the basis of the court's action. Hall, formerly of Sedalia, Mo., was directed by the Federal court there to take testimony in an oil patent dispute between the Universal Oil Products Co. and Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Hall, it was charged, had been paid more than $120,000, and, when the suit was compromised, to have been granted an additional $12,000. The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals ordered him to return $44,700.

Maritime Strike Due Tomorrow, U. S. Is Advised

Pacific Coast Union Fixes Deadline Unless Demands Are Accepted.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—Union officials notified the United States Maritime Commission today that a strike affecting 37,000 Pacific Coast maritime workers would take place at midnight Wednesday unless agreement is reached on "fundamental issues."

The notification was given by the Joint Union Negotiating Committee in reply to a lengthy telegraphic message received earlier today from the commission, in which the Federal agency asked both employers and unions to:

"Answer unequivocally and without qualification" whether they would continue shipping operations until the commission's investigation of their dispute has been completed.

The reply, signed by F. M. Kelley, secretary of the negotiating committee, also disclosed that returns from the membership referendum indicate 95 per cent of the union men have voted to give the committee authority to call a strike.

T. G. Plant, answering the same commission telegram for the Coast Committee of Shipowners, said:

"If your commission is unable or unwilling to cause the unions to comply with your demands that the agreements be observed and that strikes do not occur, we must be free to proceed as we see fit to protect our interests."

The two replies were dispatched after the commission's first hearing in its inquiry into the dispute was adjourned five minutes after it opened today by Admiral H. G. Hamlet, commission representative here.

Cops Play Cowboy In One-Cow Rodeo Along 5th Avenue

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Fifth avenue traffic policemen found themselves playing cowpuncher today in lively pursuit of a young heifer that scampered up the avenue in true rodeo fashion.

Where the heifer came from nobody seemed to know, but it suddenly appeared at the corner of Twenty-ninth street and Fifth avenue and started up the street, dodging traffic like a real New York pedestrian.

At Thirty-second street one patrolman had it cornered between two taxicabs, but only for a moment, as the animal backtracked, made for the sidewalk and then dashed out into the street again.

Without regard to traffic lights, the heifer proceeded up New York's fashionable shopping street, with police cars and taxicabs in pursuit.

The chase came to an end under the canopy of a large department store at Thirty-ninth street when Patrolmen George Reynolds and John Boyle, who admitted they were new at that sort of thing, managed to corral the beast and tie it up as hundreds of onlookers cheered.

It wasn't long before a truck from the S. P. C. A. came along and took the young heifer away.

The police believed it had escaped from a slaughter house along the East River.

Stalin, 'Dead,' Asks Press to Let Him Enjoy Other World

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Oct. 26.—Dictator Joseph Stalin went Mark Twain one better tonight.

In a simple little note to the Associated Press Moscow bureau, he asked the world to believe reports that he was dead and "don't disturb me in the calm of the other world."

The note, signed in blue pencil in Stalin's own hand, was in reply to a written query from the Associated Press submitted to the Kremlin October 22 asking if reports Stalin were dead had been, like those of Mark Twain in another era, "grossly exaggerated."

Stalin's reply:

"Mr. Charles P. Nutter,
Chief of the Associated Press Bureau, Moscow.

"Dear Sir:

"I know from the reports of the foreign press that I long ago abandoned this sinful world and moved into the other world.

"As one cannot doubt such foreign press dispatches unless he wants to be expelled from the list of civilized people, I request you to believe them and don't disturb me in the calm of the other world.

"With respect,
"J. STALIN."

The Associated Press' query had been written following widespread reports he was dead, or dying, or was going to the United States for a serious operation.

Army Surgeon Is Shot At Dayton; Suspect Held

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Dr. Edward M. Clark, 52-year-old Army surgeon surgeon at the Soldiers' Home, was critically wounded tonight as he started to enter his car, parked in front of a beer garden near the home.

Police immediately took into custody Sylvester Schaeffir, 53-year-old resident of the home, who, they said admited firing eight shots at Clark.

Escort Service to Provide a New Deal For Capital's Legion of Lonely Girls

Washington maids and matrons who go in pairs to the theater and to concerts, who attend most of the "hen-parties" and miss most of the dances because there are five women for every two men in the Capital, are going to get a break.

They are, that is, if they can pay the price—$5 to $8 an evening, depending on whether a dinner jacket or a "white tie" is in order. It's all a matter of calling Adams 1600 and talking to Lewis A. Nucklos who manages the newly organized "Erudite Guide and Escort Service," and who on a moment's notice can supply a suitable male for any occasion.

LEWIS NUCKOLS

Thirty-eight persons recently answered an advertisement for "college graduates! Remunerative, evening employment for several personable young men. Must be conversant on current topics and able to furnish satisfactory references." Out of the lot, Nuckols picked 18 potential escorts.

Each of these is a college graduate. From Princeton, the U. S. Naval Academy, Dartmouth, Temple, Alabama, North Carolina, Southern California and the University of Rome have come letters verifying their collegiate backgrounds and the date of each degree. Nuckols can vouch for the fact that all his employes are of good character. He has checked every reference. The easiest of all to get a line-up on was the young man who works at the Department of Justice. Every fact about him from birth to the present is on record over there, Nucklos said. It was pretty easy, too, to find out about the former college professor who was teaching philosophy this time last year.

Nuckols is a former student of William and Mary University. Last summer when he was visiting in Rye, N. Y., he got the idea for this, his first business venture. He met a friend who had worked for the New York escort service, which, incidentally, has been so successful it is opening up a London branch.

"I thought Washington would be an ideal city for such a service," Nuckols said yesterday. "The ratio of five females for each pair of males makes it pretty hard on the girls here. I thought this would give them a break.

"Why did I call it 'The Erudite Guide and Escort Service?' Well, it was this way. I thought 'erudite' added a certain dignity to the title. Then I went out on the street and asked five people at random what the word meant. Only one of the five knew, but all were impressed. Then I was convinced 'erudite' would do.

"No, I don't expect to be 'on call' myself," he went on. 'I gure I'll be pretty busy answering the telephone and sending out the other fellows. That'll be a job in itself, getting just the right escort for every client."

Arrangements will be carried out on a strict business basis, he explained. Clients will be instructed to inclose money for fees and expenses for the evening in a white envelope to be handed to the escort as soon as he arrives. An additional dollar will be added to the original fee for every hour past midnight. Tips for especially satisfactory service will not be turned down. Cars are not included in the service.

The manager, incidentally, gets 50 per cent of the fees. He intends to use his profits toward a medical education. "But that's irrelevant," he said, dismissing that part of the subject with a flourish of the hand. "My first aim is to give good service, whether I agree to send a man to help fill up a stag line, to attend a dinner or a deb party, or to take Aunt Gertrude for a drive or the Pekinese for a walk."

He'd like it understood, however, that his "Erudite Guide and Escort Service," specializing in "personable college graduates for any time, any occasion" is not made up of gigolos or smooth young men who have no other employment.

"Every man on the list has a regular job," Nuckols said. "And every man is a bargain. The ones who dance, do it well. The ones who play bridge or golf are good enough to make the game interesting. All are nice looking and can talk; some, in fact, can say sweet nothings in three or four languages."

For the last few days, Nuckols has been conferring with society leaders, night club and hotel managers and possible customers with the idea of getting his business under way. With the social season now coming into full swing and the dearth of men as distressing as ever in Washington, it would seem his erudite agency might be the logical answer to the lonely spinster's prayer.

New Marine Subsidies

Cleveland, Oct. 26 (AP).—United States Senator oRyal S. Copeland, of New York, said tonight that legislative compromise on the merchant marine act of 1936 have prevented wholesale revival of American shipping by limiting Government subsidies to "cases where foreign advantage is already entrenched."

Senator Copeland said the "so-called equilizing subsidies" of the act which provides that aid may only be granted to equalize an operating cost advantage held by a foreign line over its United States competitor do not go far enough.

Sometimes, now, she forgets the identity of her son and daughter as her memory lapses and she talks of the days long before they were born.

Mrs. Whiffen made her last appearance in Washington in 1926 with John Drew in a revival of "Trelawney of the Wells." Mrs. Whiffen had the role of Mrs. Mossop.

As the two old veterans trouped the country, John Drew dared Mrs. Whiffen to smoke her first cigarette and laughed when she choked on the first two puffs. Their tour ended in Seattle when Drew collapsed behind stage and died.

That left only Mrs. Whiffen to carry on. She made her last public appearance in 1932 when the Columbia Broadcasting Co., persuaded her to motor to Roanoke to appear in a radio production.

Toured U. S. in 1868.

Mrs. Whiffen made her American debut the day after she landed in New York in 1868. Then she toured the country under the management of John Templeton. In 1887 she joined the Daniel Frohman Company at the Lyceum Theater, New York, and played in "The Wife," "Sweet Lavendar," "The Charity Ball," "The Amazons," "The Benefit of Doubt" and others. Then she became a member of the Charles Frohman Company. She played with Mary Mannering for a season, later joining Eleanor Robson's troupe. In 1905 she starred with Margaret Anglin in "Zira." From 1905 to 1907 Mrs. Whiffen, Miss Anglin and Henry Miller were in "The Great Divide."

Among the more important plays she appeared in between 1909 and 1928 were "The Builder of the Brdige" and "The Brass Bottle," "Electricity," "The Melody of Youth," "A Man on Horseback," "The Indiscretion of Youth," "Chains," "The New Secretary," "Tante," "A Scrap of Paper," "The Beautiful Adventure," "The Golden Night," "Just Suppose," "The Goose Hangs High," "Two Orphans," and finally "Just Fancy."

When she retired to live in Virginia, Mrs. Whiffen had played in more than 400 roles. She soon found contentment on her Virginia estate and two years ago on her birthday told reporters:

"I think Virginia is a beautiful State, a very lovely State. The trees are beautiful in the fall. I think the fall is the nicest time of the year."

White House Reveals Post Offered Couzens

By the Associated Press.

The White House said in a statement yesterday that President Roosevelt had requested the late Senator Couzens, of Michigan, last September 17 to become chairman of of the new maritime commission next January 1 and that Couzens told the President he would "talk the matter over with him after the election." Couzens, who died last Thursday, was defeated in the recent Republican primary for renomination.

Security Law 'Simple, Sure,' Green Asserts

A. F. L. Head Sends Letters to Unions Explaining Act's Provisions.

Taking cognizance of widespread criticism of the social security act that have crept into the election campaign, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, last night sent letters to all union labor organizations throughout the country giving what he called "the truth" relating to provisions of the act.

The letter, written "free from bias of any kind," was addressed to State federations of labor, city central bodies and local unions. It followed attacks on the social security law by Gov. Alf M. Landon, Col. Frank Knox and other Republican speakers, and reports that numerous large employers were inserting in pay envelopes of employes statements considered by backers of the law to be derogatory to that measure and likely to cause resentment among the workers. Gov. Landon, in his Milwaukee address on September 26, termed the security law "unjust, stupid and a cruel hoax."

John G. Winant, former chairman of the Social Security Board, in a radio talk last night said that the source of "misleading" information on the security act which he said was inserted in workers' pay envelopes, had been "traced to Republican headquarters at Chicago."

Green's letter said it was issued because "there is grave danger that widespread confusion and serious misunderstanding may occur in the minds of working people and their friends regarding the act," and particularly to provisions for grants to States for old age assistance.

He said in the letter that "the wage earners of the Nation are the beneficiaries of the act, through which "they will be permitted to face old age with a feeling of security" through the guarantee of an annuity ranging from $10 to $85 per month.

"Because this is not merely an old-age assistance measure," he wrote, "but instead, a form of old-age insurance, beneficiaries are required to pay a small percetnage of their earnings, beginning January 1, 1937, into a fund created by the Federal Government, out of which future annuities will be paid. Employers of labor will be required to match the amount paid by the workers into this annuity fund."

Apparently referring to criticism by Gov. Landon, the labor president wrote that "the fund will be carefully supervised and administered by the Federal Government. Nothing could be more secure than that."

The Republican Presidential nominee has insisted that creating such a large fund would only encourage Government spending, that the fund would be dissipated on "current deficits and new extravagances" and that when the time came to pay off the workers the Government would be able to pay only with bonds, "its I. O. U.'s."

Answers Criticism.

Much of Winant's address was devoted to answering Gov. Landon's criticism of the security act.

Winant contended that Republican "strategy is not to give the workers social security but to defeat President Roosevelt and to scuttle social security."

"Gov. Landon has made the problem of social security a major issue in this campaign," he said after asserting that President Roosevelt had proposed the problem be "worked out in a nonpartisan spirit as a humanitarian measure."

"The social security act is not a party's answer, but America's answer to a great human need," he said.

Farley to Visit Ireland 'Incognito' After Nov. 3

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, announced today that after the election he will take the first boat to Ireland.

"I'm going to get as far away from politics as I can," he said.

When it was suggested that a man of his prominence might find himself involved in the ever-recurring controversies in the old country, "Big Jim" said:

"None of that for me. I'm going incognito."

Cafemen Plan For Own Plant If Milk Goes Up

Restaurateurs to Buy Directly From Farms if Price Is Boosted.

If the price of milk goes up, as is contemplated, Washington's leading restaurateurs will build and operate their own pasteurization plant and deal directly with distributors, instead of buying milk from the dairies, representatives of leading cafes and hotel dining rooms, in session at Sholl's Cafe, decided last night.

This decision was reached after the cafe men had heard a report from Ralph Scott, chairman of the milk committee. Scott then was delegated by the restaurateurs to study plans for the pasteurization plant and present them at a special meeting next week.

At present restaurant owners are paying 3 cents for a half pint of milk, Robert J. Wilson, representing the cafe and dining room men, said.

1-Cent Rise Planned.

The proposed raise would increase the price of milk fully 1 cent per quart.

Committees to prepare for the convention here at the Mayflower early in December were named.

If milk producers serving the Washington area are granted the 4-cent per gallon price increase they are seeking, retail prices for the District will rise more than 1 cent a quart, A. L. Thompson, president of Thompson's Dairy, told AAA officials earlier in the day.

Thompson asked for modification of producers' demands in a brief striking at proposed amendments to the District milk-marketing agreement. He said in part:

"It is earnestly submitted that the order should be so amended as to result in an increase by the order, as amended, of an even 1 cent per quart. Such action would inevitably result in giving the producer the maximum benefit, 100 per cent, of what appears to be an inevitable increase to the consumer."

Cites Cost Price.

On September 21, when the milk-marketing agreement and order became effective, Thompson said, the cost of milk to him went up 11 cents per hundredweight. The proposed amendment, granting producers an increased price, will further boost his cost, Thompson added.

"Such an increase must be met by the consumer," he said. "The factors of increased cost which argue for increases to producers are equally applicable to distributors and some of these factors applicable to distributors do not bear directly on the producers."

Loyalist Officers Say Crew Revolts

Havana, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Seven officers of the Spanish steamer, Manuel Arnus appealed to the Cuban government for protection today, charging that a sailors' Soviet on the vessel had threatened to kill them.

The Manuel Arnus is on its way to Mexico to load arms for the Spanish Leftist government. In charges filed with the Cuban maritime police, Capt. Miguel Corbera Cepillo and other officers said a "revolutionary committee" of eight crew members took over control of the ship shortly after it left Barcelona.

A hundred Cuban sailors and port police, armed with rifles and sub-machine guns, were stationed at the Munson Line dock, where the Manuel Arnus is tied up. About 20 officers, including the captain, were reported to have left the ship because of conditions on board.

Klan Pickets Shop, Drives Out Owner For Slight to Flag

Atlanta, Oct. 26 (AP).—George Leoles, who has declared saluting the American Flag to be against his religious beliefs, yielded today to picketing by Ku Klux Klansmen and announced the sale of the hat cleaning shop he established here 30 years ago.

"I think I'll take a vacation," said Leoles, 43-year-old naturalized Greek. "Maybe I'll locate in some other city."

Leoles' stand against saluting the flag became known two weeks ago when the city school board officially refused his 12-year-old daughter, Dorothy, entry to class rooms because she held an identical view.

Picketing began immediately. Two white-robed Klansmen and an unidentified civilian paced the sidewalk in front of his shop today.

Go one way, return another —see twice as much!
To double the value and enjoyment of your trip, go west on one of our Four Scenic Routes and return on a different one. See twice as much of the West.
For example, go on our Golden State Limited through sunny Southern Arizona. Return on our Sunset Limited through Texas, the romantic Old South and New Orleans, or return straight across the continent on our Overland Limited or the swift Streamliner City of San Francisco. Or, for slight additional fare, go or return via Portland on our Cascade.

EXTRA!
Southern Arizona Dude Ranch season opens
The great migration of sun-worshippers has begun to Southern Arizona's guest ranches and the Southern California desert resorts at Palm Springs. If you join the flight from cold weather, you'll be assured of warm and happy days where summer spends the winter. You'll live the carefree life of a real western dude ranch, or the smart social life of the desert resorts.
Only Southern Pacific has direct, main line trains to the Southern Arizona guest ranch region and to Palm Springs: Sunset Limited and Golden State Limited.

For the first time in history, low first class roundtrip fares to the West—practically as low as summer fares—are in effect all winter! For example:

CALIFORNIA and back
$123.55 To Los Angeles. Go and return on the same route.

This is your chance to take a vacation in California or Southern Arizona, where summer spends the winter.
These fares are good in luxurious standard Pullmans (plus Pullman charge). Leave any day from now until May 14 next year. Return limit 30 days.

Low Coach, Tourist Fares

The National Symphony.

Sunday's concert in Constitution Hall was an auspicious opening for the National Symphony Orchestra's sixth season. Tito Schipa's generous and spontaneous gift of $500 was a practical embodiment of the enthusiasm shown for the musicians and their performance. If there remained any question of the orchestra's right to claim itself a Washington institution, it vanished before the first number had ended. Under Hans Kindler's direction, the orchestra after six years is attaining the full stature and distinction of maturity.

That the concerts to follow should hold up to Sunday's appeal is indicated by the list of guest artists engaged to appear. Particularly interesting is the announcement that a ballet will grace the program later, the first time that any has performed here to full symphony accompaniment. For this, and the other special attractions on the year's program, the city is indebted to an anonymous benefactor who, now for the sixth time, has provided the means for the visitors' appearances.

The orchestra's schedule for the season is worth study. This year it will travel far more extensively than ever before. Its ability is plainly becoming recognized throughout the country. It has proved its ability to break old moulds and set new patterns. In the fullest sense of the word, it is now a national symphony orchestra and one in which Washington, as its parent, may well take pride.

Where Liberty Ends.

At what point are democracies justified in clamping down on individuals and movements that openly or implicitly seek to destroy free institutions?

More and more, during recent years, democratic nations and governments have had to face this challenging problem. Sunday it was Belgium's turn. There the attempt of the police to suppress a Fascist demonstration, previously prohibited, led to violence and rioting in Brussels. Not long ago Great Britain was confronted by a similar problem when Sir Oswald Mosley, Britain's would-be Hitler, sought to hold a provocative demonstration in London's East End. Recurrently France has had to face similar disturbances.

In this country, which fortunately has neither a Communist nor a Fascist movement of any widespread importance, the problem has been less serious, but is by no means purely academic. It has arisen, for instance, whenever local authorities have been content to see Earl Browder, the Communist candidate for President, deprived of exercising his constitutional right of free speech.

The easiest answer to the question of how far democratic governments should tolerate expression or manifestation of subversive views is, unfortunately, one that does great violence to democratic precepts. It is to limit the right of free speech, press and assemblage only to those who are not opposed to democracy. This view is frequently justified on the ground that neither Communists nor Fascists, were they in control, would permit their opponents any liberties. But this implies the paradoxical attitude that the way to save democracy is to abandon its tenets.

Sometimes the authorities pay democratic precepts a left-handed compliment. They themselves carefully refrain from interfering with civil liberties while closing their eyes to action taken by a mob. In doing so they are clearly negligent in their duty of maintaining order. Indeed, the very essence of democracy is the protection of the rights of minorities against indignant majorities. The truest symbol of democracy is still the London bobbie standing guard in Hyde Park, protecting speakers who fiercely denounce any and every aspect of the British empire.

Sometimes, nevertheless, the exercise of those civil liberties that are the foundation stones of democracy will clearly lead to a breach of the peace. The answer then is clear. In that case it becomes not only the right but indeed the duty of the authorities to step in and maintain order. Anglo-Saxon law is a safe guide in this particular. It draws a distinction between speech per se and speech which endangers the public safety. It is the distinction between a man shouting "fire" out on a prairie and one who shouts "fire" in a crowded theater.

Obviously no government can survive if it cannot maintain order. But the point of distinction between the exercise of free speech and its legal abuse must be the overt act. Any other distinction, however well-meant, however patriotically motivated, plays directly into the hands of democracy's enemies.

Reply To A Correspondent.

In our letter columns today a correspondent calls attention to the relative news display recently accorded by The Post to types of campaign solicitations in nearby territory. It is pointed out that first-page space was given last Saturday to the request for contributions made of the University of Maryland faculty by the Democratic campaign committee for that State. On the other hand a disclosure of similar solicitations, sent by the Republican campaign committee of Maryland to members of the State police, was relegated to page four of this paper on Sunday.

Our correspondent maintains that some bias, or "distortion" of the news, is involved in the different treatment accorded the two incidents. He asks whether our editorial comment will "display the same indignation . . . now that the shoe is on the other foot." The answer is a decided negative, for the simple reason that while the feet are exactly comparable the shoes are of entirely different character.

The solicitation of the Maryland State Police, on the grounds that their numbers and pay have both been increased under the administration of Republican Gov. Nice, is of course indefensible. It would have been eminently proper and desirable if every member of the force approached had unhesitatingly refused to consider the exaction. Such resolute and concerted resistance by public servants is the most effective way to end all such petty political blackmail, wherever and whenever it occurs.

But in the case of functionaries like the police, whose duties are closely defined by statute and do not allow a great deal of discretionary power, political levies are more irritating than pernicious. They illustrate a deplorable lack of progress in eliminating the spoils system and the psychology responsible for it. But they do not exhibit the deeper and more far-reaching deterioration evident in any attempt to bring the teaching profession under political control.

A party organization which claims the political allegiance of teachers in return for material benefits extended is already well started on the road which the Nazis have followed to the ruin of German education. Indeed this attempt to corrupt the honor of the teaching profession differs in degree rather than in kind from the defamation applied by the German government to all educators who question its right to dictate the manner and content of public instruction. And when a major American political party begins to apply Nazi methods in a great American university, that is first-page news if there was ever anything worthy of the definition.

It is possible to imagine a State policeman showing political discrimination in the discharge of his duties. Unfortunately it is much easier to picture a professor in the employ of the State subtly varying his teaching in many ways to suit the edicts of the powers that be. Where the traffic cop discriminates the abuse is individual and limited. Where the teacher surrenders to political or other improper pressures the evil consequences are social and incalculable in extent.

The belief of our correspondent that the two cases should be regarded as identical is itself significant. It indicates how far we have gone along the steep descent which leads to arbitrary governmental control over free intellectual endeavor.

Eclipse For The Union Party.

Representative William Lemke has virtually dropped out of the news. A few months ago the Union Party candidate was the center of considerable political speculation. Of course, no one expected him to win the Presidency. But the possible effects of his race upon the contest between the major parties aroused both hopes and apprehension. Now his following has shrunk to a point where he falls easily into the class of the "also rans."

Apparently Mr. Lemke set out to duplicate the feat of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, sr. But his appeal to the electorate can scarcely be compared with that of the crusading Wisconsin Senator who challenged Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis in 1924. Mr. La Follette won 17 per cent of the total popular vote, although he carried only his own State with 13 electoral votes. Mr. Lemke seems to have no chance of carrying any State, not even his own, and he will be fortunate if he polls 3 per cent of the total vote.

The reasons for this collapse of the third-party movement are easily discernible. In the first place, the Union Party has no program worthy of the name. Its emotional appeal to hysteria lost any effectiveness it might have had when the improvement of business and employment became evident and some of the major candidates began discussing the real issues of the campaign. In the second place, no intelligent leadership has developed in the third-party group. Springing from an unnatural alliance of Coughlinites, Townsendites, followers of Huey Long and a sprinkling of disgruntled farmers and working men, this movement had only one chance of making an appreciable showing, and that lay in the emergence of a leader who could stir the public imagination. Mr. Lemke has failed pitifully in that attempt, the more so because he is now recognized as a stooge for Father Coughlin.

One other factor that works to the disadvantage of the Union Party is the diminishing size of the so-called "protest vote." A great majority of citizens either favor or oppose the New Deal, and most of the latter are eager to make their votes effective.

In spite of the eclipse which is impending over them, both Lemke and Coughlin continue their ranting. But they are like voices crying in the wilderness. The campaign has passed them by, leaving little prospect that their Union Party will ever emerge from its approaching oblivion.

Indefensible Electioneering.

The attempt of the Republican National Committee to discredit the social security law by inducing employers to disseminate misleading information about the new pay roll taxes is indefensible. In some cases standards of fair play have been grossly violated by failure to explain that the sums to be deducted from pay roll envelopes are really premiums paid into an old-age insurance fund for the benefit of workers, matched by employer contributions. Equally inexcusable is the attempt to arouse unjustified fears by groundless insinuations that Congress might refuse to vote the annual appropriations needed to discharge obligations to the pensioned.

There is ample ground for sharp criticism of specific provisions of the social insurance legislation of the Roosevelt Administration. It seems more than probable, for instance, that premium payments will prove to be unbearably high, taking excessive toll from persons with small incomes and from highly-taxed industries. Many cogent objections have also been raised to the methods laid down in the law for building up huge insurance reserves, that might tempt an improvident government to extravagant borrowing.

The Republican National Committee, however, is seemingly not interested in securing constructive revision of a law which even friendly critics acknowledge to be very imperfect and experimental. Its attacks are evidently directed against the very principle of contributory insurance. They are designed to bring about the downfall, not the reform, of the social insurance program. That is evident from the efforts made to arouse worker prejudice against the insurance levies, by fair means or foul. It is implied in the hostile characterization of old-age insurance premiums as taxes on consumers and on production.

It is, of course, true that sums collected from employers and employes under the authority of law are a tax upon the productive system which will in part be shifted to the ultimate consumers. But the cost of supporting many aged workers has to be borne in any case by taxes of one form or another. The real question at issue is whether this country is to follow the example of the socially enlightened nations that have made systematic provision for aged workers as a right, not as a form of charity, or whether we shall revert to a system that throws the needy aged upon the uncertain protection afforded by public and private doles. If the average worker were aware that this is the real choice open to him, he would be prepared to make substantial sacrifices to insure himself a decent competence in his old age.

If the maximum pay roll levies imposed under the old-age insurance plan exact too much from workers in the lowest income classes and impose too great a burden upon industry, they can easily be reduced without sacrificing the contributory principle. By demanding the repeal of all such levies or premiums, and by denouncing them as the "outrageous Roosevelt tax on wages," the Republican National Committee is, in effect, supporting doles and WPA methods against a more scientific form of social security.

Testing The Franc.

Devaluation of the franc has not set at rest fears for the future stability of French currency, growing out of the unbalanced state of the budget and the continuous rise in domestic living costs. With the Popular Front government committed to a program of social reform calculated to raise production costs, and with heavy rearmament outlays to finance, the Blum government faces a most difficult budgetary problem. Rumors that a capital levy might be imposed were, in fact, circulated last week, bringing temporary declines in security values and weakness in the franc.

Strengthened by the support of the Radical Socialist Party, Premier Blum is preparing to rush through the budget for 1937. His admission that it has the "characteristics of transition and precariousness" is far from reassuring—especially as the government promises tax relief, as an offset to rising living costs, at a time when increased revenue is greatly needed. Much depends upon the extent to which industry benefits by devaluation, and upon the relief to consumers afforded by the lowering of tariff restrictions.

Disturbed political conditions, unfortunately, hamper a restoration of confidence which is essential to provide investment support for the treasury and to stimulate business. The budgetary situation, serious though it is, will not be viewed with alarm if the French people re-establish faith in their political leadership. It is the lack of popular support that prevents vigorous action by the heads of governments and this hesitancy reacts to confirm the people's misgivings.

Thus France must show herself able to cut a vicious circle from which a mere act of currency manipulation will not of itself provide emancipation. Devaluation is only a first, and far from the most difficult, step that must be taken to make sure that the devalued franc will not again become overvalued by unsound fiscal policies, leading to domestic inflation and a progressive lowering of the purchasing power of the currency.

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

Thinks We Are Indefinite.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to commend you for your editorial of today entitled "No Reply To This Criticism." I have been a daily reader of The Post for nearly 20 years and on the whole I have admired the positive stand The Post has taken on important national questions, which has made The Post a really national paper in the Nation's Capital. But like many of your readers I have been disappointed this fall in the failure of your paper to take a definite, positive stand in this campaign.

I am sure that your able management knows that the worst thing about the New Deal is its philosophy. The New Deal thrives on class hatred; it encourages waste and extravagance in both public and private life; it continues to pile up the national debt, and encourages private citizens to live above their means and to become involved with obligations that they can not hope to pay; it has encouraged millions of our less fortunate citizens to believe that it is the duty of the Federal Government to support them; it has raped the Civil Service and has placed tens of thousands of people in office who are incompetent and with no sense of responsibility to the public who pay their salaries; it has attempted to intimidate the Federal courts and smear the character of those who oppose its illegal acts; it belittles our American institutions and scoffs at the Constitution of the United States; it has piled up the greatest national debt in history, and it has no program after three and one-half years in power.

Gov. Landon, Al Smith and John W. Davis have requested the President to tell us in plain words where he proposes to lead us next. The President ducks the issue and refuses to answer. The patriotic and liberty-loving citizens of America demand an answer. But we are not going to get an answer from Mr. Roosevelt. Our answer will be made to him on November 3 and that answer will be his defeat.

Recovery Credit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Logic should be studied more both in and out of school, to make our country safe for democracy. It seems to me the politicians are getting away with the most flagrant fallacies. People just don't seem to do any thinking or reasoning for themselves.

Once upon a time in North Dakota after a dry spell, a man came to visit us. It began to rain hard just before he came. "See the wonderful rain I have brought you," he exclaimed.

We all knew that was just a huge joke. But, it is not a bit more illogical than when F. R. stands before a large audience and says: "Compare yourselves now with 3½ years ago. If you are better off now, re-elect me."

If he has brought about this change he ought really to address himself to the whole world. For the depression was world-wide and recovery is more marked in many foreign countries. He ought really then to ask to be made world dictator.

But do the facts support his claim of working a miracle? Has he really brought about the higher farm prices? Here are some facts anyone can look up and verify:

Chicago wheat was higher than Liverpool under Hoover. Early in Roosevelt's regime wheat prices dropped sharply in Chicago the same month that they rose sharply in Liverpool. They have been trailing Liverpool ever since. A rise or fall at Liverpool (which is 6 hours earlier) is always followed by a corresponding rise or fall in Chicago.

Now what I want to know is: does F. R. really get up in the morning six hours before the rest of us and set those Liverpool prices?

Had Germany Won.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently I read Mr. Westbrook Pegler's article on the probable demands of Germany had she won the war.

Mr. Pegler allows himself to be quite prejudiced without much material to back him up. Had he studied the aims of the central powers, which President Wilson was so careful to conceal at the time of his term of office, I don't think Mr. Pegler could make such a rash statement.

As far as the treaty of Brest is concerned, I don't think that Germany's demands were any more selfish than when the Allies sent their armies up into Siberia to conquer the army of their wayward ally.

Nor do I think it is splitting hairs to state that Poland owes its freedom to the establishment of the Kingdom of Poland at the treaty of Brest-Litovsk. True, it was not a democracy with a hundred different parties as in France but it at least took the initiative which France's ally, Russia, and its Czar seemed to ignore.

Furthermore, if Mr. Pegler wished to form an unbiased opinion as to whether there should be a revision of the treaty of Versailles, let him read the accounts of Dr. Fay and Dr. Elmer Barnes as to the ultimate aims of our democratic allies, France and Russia.

Mr. Roosevelt's Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Roosevelt became Governor of New York in 1929, that State had a debt of $255,986,000. At the end of his term in 1932 he left a debt of $463,068,000. In three "short" years he nearly doubled the deficit, leaving his constituents with greatly increased taxes and, so far as I can discover, the biggest debt in New York's history.

Such was Roosevelt's financial record as Governor—a year before he was turned loose on the national money bag. He probably had an excuse for his extravagance then as he has now. Maybe he told New York citizens what he's telling us—that they would pay the taxes with greater incomes or that he would "soak the rich." However, New Yorkers had anything but bigger incomes when he finished his term in 1931, the worst year of the depression. And New York property owners, representing chiefly the small and middle class business men and farmers, by 1932 were bearing 70 per cent of the tax burden, although their property represented only 34.5 per cent of the State's total wealth.

We only have to look at New York to see on a miniature scale what's happening and will happen to us if this spending wizard remains with his hand in that once distinguished institution, the United States Treasury. As in New York, we the common people and not the rich are paying for his waste and extravagance, since the wealthy have a goodly portion of their money invested in tax-exempt Government bonds, and those who are not able to shift their tax obligations to the consuming public by a proportionate increase in the prices of their goods.

The consumers will be paying for Roosevelt's expensive failures and wealthy henchmen long after the rich have forgotten him.

Diogenes' Foresight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. J. O. Knott, in his letter in the Sunday Post, holds a brief for the New Deal "reliefers" and gives an outline of "expectations," which is a full equivalent of obligation to vote for the New Dealers. This is purely on the basis of having received charity at their hands. He approves of the specious arguments that Roosevelt and Hopkins are "facing a condition and not a theory." The "condition" they are facing is a buck-passing condition.

"Mr. Davis and his ilk"—who are they? Senator Carter Glass, former Senator Reed of Missouri, former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, former Gov. Ely of Massachusetts, former Gov. Murray of Oklahoma, Henry Breckenridge, the redoubtable Alfred E. Smith and many other distinguished Democrats. Some "ilk," wot? For they that be with Mr. Davis are more than they that be with Mr. Roosevelt.

Diogenes must have forseen these troublous times and this present crazy Administration when he said: "Bury me on my face." Asked why, he replied, "Because in a little while everything will be turned upside down."

Campaign Solicitations

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have before me a copy of The Post for October 24. It contains on the front page an example of a type of journalism which is not worthy of The Post. As one of your regular readers, I feel that this should be brought to your attention.

When I saw the four-column spread on the front page concerning the letter to employes of Maryland University, I immediately inferred that there must be some serious scandal, since this is more space than you frequently give to national campaign addresses. A careful reading of the article and the letter, however, did not reveal anything more than a somewhat untactful letter. There was no indication of pressure of an irregular sort.

It is my feeling that this constitutes editorializing in your news columns. This is ordinarily associated with very much lower-grade newspapers than The Post. It is not only the desire of most newspapers of high quality to avoid this, but their duty. Keeping news in its proper perspective during a campaign is difficult but not impossible.

It is my earnest hope that future actions of The Washington Post will indicate that this sort of thing is beneath them, and that my confidence in The Post will be merited.

RUFUS E. MILES, JR.
Washington, Oct. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I inclose three clippings from your paper of October 25, consisting of an editorial and a cartoon attacking the Roosevelt administration because of a letter purported to have been sent to members of the faculty of the University of Maryland asking for contributions to the Democratic campaign, and a news article headed "G. O. P. Requests Landon Fund of State Police." The latter is printed on page 4, as contrasted with the spread accorded to the Democratic letter on page 1 of yesterday's paper.

I am wondering whether your editorial page will see fit to display the same indignation over "these inexcusable attempts to make 'political' capital out of the lavish public spending" now that the shoe is on the other foot.

Will those leaders "who have viewed with great misgiving the entry of the Federal Government into educational fields formerly reserved to the States . . ." direct their misgivings toward the State police officials. Or, is it only Federal solicitation which is amiss, on the ground that this is one of the powers reserved to the States? Is it the means which you object to or only the end sought? Is there no limit to the distortions and misrepresentations which your "independent" newspaper will not (sic) resort to in its effort to beat Roosevelt at any cost?

The Post Impressionist

Fleas And Fame.

William Heckler died Sunday and the funeral will be held tomorrow in Brooklyn where he lived. Probably not many of the thousands who knew the white-mustached old man will attend. If by any miracle they all could, they would make up one of the most polyglot corteges ever seen. Dowagers and chorines would be in it and bums and bankers and bartenders—all people who, during the last 32 years, have paid a dime or quarter to see a flea circus.

Prof. Heckler—so he was always billed—for the last ten years or so had conducted just such a show in Huber's Museum on the south side of Forty-second street, just west of Broadway. Because of this unique attraction, the museum has become a Times Square institution. Sightseeing buses slow down in passing to give visitors a glimpse of it. Many a Washingtonian must have known Huber's and the Professor as well.

William Blake claimed he had seen the soul of a flea and, to prove it, painted it. Though no mystic, the Professor probably could have made the claim far more truthfully. At least, if he hadn't seen a flea's soul, he must have known its workings as well as almost any other man. He spent almost half his long life working with fleas.

Running away from home as a boy, he became a sailor. Fo'c'sle life brought him into regular and intimate contact with the little insects which, through the law of compensation, proved ultimately to be his principal support. Having much idle time to kill, he amused himself by capturing and attempting to train some of the pests. He made a merry-go-round to be turned by a flea; he fashioned tiny chariots to which he harnessed fleas and raced them; he put skirts on lady fleas and had them dance on a music box.

At every port his fame spread and people flocked to the wharves to see his exhibition. So successful was he as a part-time impresario that, when the St. Louis World's Fair was announced, he jumped ship, made his way up the Mississippi and set up a booth for the first regular performances of what he called his "tiny artists."

"Of the hunnert and thirty-four species of fleas" he would intone softly, the while he prodded a recalcitrant performer with a straw, "I have found only one—the pooolex irritans which lives on yoo-man blood—possessed of enough intelligence for training."

The "little fellows," it further developed, were fed regularly once a day. And if they kept their master alive, certainly their efforts were fully reciprocated, for he kept them alive—by baring his own arm to their hunger.

"If there is a volunteer in the audience," the Professor would peer seriously out over his glasses, "the performers will gladly avail themselves of an opp-or-toon-ity to vary their diet slightly."

There rarely was.

"It is a mark of distinction," he would wheedle, "as the fleas take blood only from a healthy person."

Usually, there still wasn't.

While the Professor was cracking the whip over his circus, a considerably younger man, dressed in a liver-colored suit and always referred to as my willing assistant," would "pass among" the audience peddling a small booklet which explained in detail the technique of training fleas. It cost 10 cents.

Its pages explained that a flea aspiring to a circus career (whether such individuals had run away from home was not vouchsafed) was first put in a narrow bottle in which he learned that if he jumped he bumped his head. An intelligent flea soon stopped jumping and went on to the next grade in the school but a stupid one kept on hitting his head and was eventually turned out into the world to shift for himself. Graduated from the bottle, a promising neophyte acquired a gold chain and collar which he wore during the rest of his active life.

This, according to the professor, usually ran from 15 to 20 years. "Take Paddy, for instance," he would say, holding up a wriggling speck between tweezers. "Paddy and I first met in a hotel in Dublin and that was in 1918, just after the war."

The obituary columns of the New York Times are a fair index to a man's achievement. Yesterday's page, in which the Professor's passing was recorded, carried also accounts of the deaths of a railroad president, an Army colonel, a British marchioness, a holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, and an associate of Thomas Edison.

The Army colonel was given almost a full column's notice, having been a chief of staff in the New York National Guard. Tied for second place, however, with three-quarters of a column apiece, were the railroad president and William Heckler.

There are, as George Herbert pointed out long ago, many ways to fame.

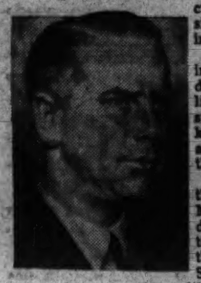
Republican Publicity.

THERE COMES to hand a Republican booklet called "Why I Am for Landon" which reminds me that the Republican Party this year has carried extra weight in the clumsiest publicity that has been cranked out of the machines since propaganda became an industry.



In this I am not considering the merits of the candidates but merely the publicity as such from the standpoint of one who knows many press agents and admires good work in this line.

The worst blunder was the piece out of Eastport, Me., about the 500 pies a day which were being thrown to Farmer Ed Pottle's pigs by the United States Army Corps of Engineers in connection with the Quoddy Dam project. The engineers denounced it as pure, unadulterated, malicious fake and the Republican press agents were stuck with their story because it simply was not so.

• • • •

THE SMART and disarming thing to do in such a case is to come clean and then change the subject. When you come clean you leave an impression of sincere embarrassment over an honest, if foolish, error, but the Republican press agents only made matters worse by arguing that if the engineers had bought 500 surplus pies per day they would have been thrown to Farmer Pottle's pigs.

Another case occurred the other day when Mr. Roosevelt was touring Connecticut by road and the Herald Tribune put querulous heads over the story, sounding a note of complaint because the turnout resulted in traffic jams in which some persons were injured. But Mr. Roosevelt is no policeman, and, anyway, more people are injured going to and from any routine football game at the Herald Tribune's favorite stadium in New Haven without ever a note of reproach to Yale University from the Herald Tribune. And if Mr. Landon had attracted such an outpouring of citizens and some had been hurt in the jam the Herald Tribune, if it had associated these casualties with the visit at all, would have taken them bravely as the unavoidable price of a great spontaneous tribute to the people's choice.

I COME NOW to the pamphlet written by Malcolm (Little Boy) Bingay, of Detroit, and distributed by the Republican National Committee.

"Roosevelt laughs and smiles all the time," Mr. Bingay says, forgetting that Mr. Roosevelt followed into office the sour-puss Presidents whose lack of gayety had been a matter of deep concern to their own managers. At Cleveland when Mr. Coolidge was nominated his sponsor spent considerable time explaining that he was not as sour as he looked, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth created no little merriment in Washington with her remark that he looked as though he had been weaned on a pickle.

Of course, it was really no reproach to either Coolidge or Hoover as Presidents that they did not smile readily, but there is no denying that when Roosevelt came along in 1932 he won many votes by the contrast of his smile in a parlous time. Thus it is easy to understand why the Republican National Committee should respect Mr. Roosevelt's smile as a strong factor, but it would seem incredible if it were not down on paper that the committee would actually put forward as a political criticism the fact that a President "laughs and smiles all the time."

• • • •

MR. BINGAY further complains that Roosevelt deals only with personalities and asks the voters to consider principles. He then proceeds as follows:

"To sit and watch both of these men smoke a cigarette is in itself a study of two strangely opposite characters. When Roosevelt smokes a cigarette it is an act. He waves his arms as though the thing were a conductor's baton. He puffs out his cheeks, throws back his head and blows smoke toward the ceiling, then laughs and smirks and winks. Waves his arms and blows again. One moment he has a cigarette holder and the next his cigarette is in his fingers. The ashes are constantly being flicked, even when there is no ash.

"Landon smokes his cigarette with the air of a man who enjoys smoking a cigarette. He lights it and holds it with a minimum of effort. You are hardly conscious of the fact that he is smoking." Incidentally, cigarettes have long been illegal in Kansas.

There we have the issue as presented by the publicity department of the Republican National Committee. They pay money for that and complain of boondoggling.

It is a good thing election day draws nigh. This campaign is developing into a serious knock on popular government.

The Foreign Vote

Philadelphia's 45 Per Cent Foreign-Born Or Foreign-Sired Population Objective Of Multi-Lingual Campaign Tactics.

By Eugene Pharo.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Philadelphia.

IF THE CAMPAIGN in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania begins to assume an international character, the fact is not surprising. New Dealers and Republicans are intent on carrying the town, but in order to communicate with large numbers of its residents, it is convenient to have command of 26 languages and several dialects, and at least a sketchy idea of extra-national ethics, loyalties and superstitions.

It is probably for this reason that a number of spelll-binders and naturalized patriots who were active in selling Liberty Bonds during the World War are busy enrolling workers for Landon or Roosevelt, or appearing on their behalf. Their knowledge of how to whoop up enthusiasm includes information of how to appeal delicately to national and racial loyalties, while an ability to inject religious and social innuendoes is considered no handicap.

They are assistad by a dispersed effort throughout the State, and especially in its less literate and sophisticated areas, to present President Roosevelt variously as an irresponsible spendthrift, as anti-Christ, as His Satanic Majesty in person, and as a purloiner of every American, or even human, right and liberty. The Democrats, being naturally on the defensive, have had to spend a lot of time either in debunking appeals to superstition, or in pushing them a bit further in the direction of absurdity in hope they would explode in gusts of incredulous mirth. Nor have they failed to find time for a counter-campaign devoted to the vast, international malignities and alleged demoniac advisers and sponsors of Alf M. Landon.

Mayor Wilson Forbids Appeal to Prejudice.

IT HAS BEEN necessary at times to restrain some activities in the Quaker City that would have stimulated prejudices unduly, and probably have led to violence. There was, for example, the projected parade of reputed Nazi sympathizers that was called off early in October, at about the time the New Deal press advertised on its front pages that Hitler had sent word that loyal American Nazis were to support the election of Landon. Mayor Wilson, who is registered this time as a Nonpartisan (although elected to office by the Republicans while still registered as a Democrat), canceled a police permit for the parade, which was to be by the German-American Volksbund, successors of the Friends of New Germany. Reports had it that the Nazis would parade in full uniform, with guns, and that a delegation from the Bronx would be in line.

The mayor's action was taken after protests had been made by representatives of the American League Against War and Fascism, and by the Communist party in Philadelphia. "It is," he explained, "the policy of my administration to refuse parade permits to any factional groups interested in controversies in other parts of the world." The original permit, he said, had been issued without his having full knowledge of the facts. As proof of his policy he referred to the fact that some months before he had denied permits for a parade by an Italian political group, and also one by sympathizers with the Spanish government.

That this policy is sound, as well as a customary one in Philadelphia, is demonstrated even by rules laid down by the New Year's Shooters, or Mummers. Their annual parade moves first through South Philadelphia, where the heaviest concentrations of Negro, Italian and some other races are found; and it is tabu to use foreign themes of a controversial nature in the buffoonery that characterizes its antics. Many a rich tableau to which the Ethiopian foray of Il Duce lent itself was killed last January.

Campaigners Careful To Avoid All Offense.

IN A YEAR such as the present there is particular care taken by workers of both major parties not to offend especially those interested in Italy, Russia, Germany, Ireland, or even the British Isles, while some go beyond this point and do all they can to appeal to ideas that are popular in some of the countries named, regardless of their application to purely American issues.

It is obvious, for example, that there is no general drive among either the 182,368 residents who were born in Italy, or of Italian-born parents, or the 131,328 who were born in Germany, or of immediate Teutonic parents, to persuade them to vote against President Roosevelt because he shows some of the stigmata of a dictator. Nor are the 176,068 Russians in this city, of foreign birth or parentage, being dissuaded from supporting Roosevelt on the basis of his sympathy for the land of the Soviets; for there is no knowing how many of the Russians are "white," and how many are incarnadined.

According to the 1930 census, besides the groups just mentioned, there are 184,356 residents who were born in Ireland, or whose parents were; 98,757 who similarly derive from England, Scotland or Wales, and 77,994 who are Polish. Including all nationalities there are 987,859 Philadelphians who were born abroad, or one or both of whose parents were born abroad. This is 45.5 per cent of the total population of the city. Obviously there is need to use reference not only to Washington, and Lincoln, and Jackson, but to Kosciusko, Pulaski, Lafayette, Bismarck, Kerensky, Christopher Columbus, Edmund Burke, Parnell, De Valera, Carl Schurz, von Steuben, Kris Kringle and Galileo, in the half a hundred political rallies that are convoked here daily. Whether the maxims of Confucius have been employed among the couple of thousand Chinese is a question whose answer can not be definitely reported, nor, if so, on the side of which candidate they may have been held to weigh.

Even among the church groups in Philadelphia a great variety of arguments is possible. Of the Lutheran church there are edifices devoted to the needs of the Danish, English, German, Italian, Letish, Lithuanian, Norwegian, Slovak and Swedish. War and peace and fascism are live issues in some of these and also in the five congregations of Dunkards, six of Mennonites, twelve meetings of Friends, or Quakers; one Mormon, the two congregations of the Apostolic Church of Armenia and the two of the Catholic Apostolic Church.

Religious attitudes as they involve Jews, Catholics and Protestants, and their leaning toward, or repulsion from, communist and fascist doctrine as associated with the Presidential candidates, present an equally confusing picture. Among 1,163,131 residents who reported their church affiliations in the last census were 488,838 Roman Catholics; 4,952 Greek Orthodox, including the Albanian Orthodox, Hellenic and Russian; 399,341 Protestants and 270,000 Jews.

Politicians Regard "Melting Pot" Cynically.

WHILE IT IS remembered ordinarily that America is a "melting pot" for all races, and that foreign-born inhabitants, or those of immediate foreign parentage, who have taken out citizenship papers, immediately become purely American, practical politicians or national leaders have never in time of war or of violent national dispute, relied too heavily on the reality of this conversion. The same lack of reliance is felt by those who are watching anxiously to see which way Philadelphia's vote will jump in the approaching election, and who are prodding it in the direction most congenial to them.

Not only are meetings being held among foreign groups, by both sides, under the auspices of local leaders of those groups, but, according to some reports, those who are, both through birth and alien allegiance, foreigners, are being enrolled as voters. Benjamin H. Ludlow, one of the leaders in the wartime Liberty Loan drives, and at present chief of the Landon Volunteers here, recently issued a statement based on information he reported receiving from John C. Bell, jr., leader of the Crusaders, in which he called attention to an alleged additional threat from the New Deal side against "the American form of government."

Said Mr. Ludlow, "Mr. Bell informs me that he has learned from a reliable source that scores of foreigners who have either their first papers, or no papers at all, were led to the registration centers on the three registration days past by Democrats." He broadcast an appeal to all the Landon Volunteers, to bring every specific instance of such tactics to his attention, so that legal steps might be taken to prosecute the offenders. As with so many of the 24-hour alarums that mark the campaign, there has not developed since any report of actual prosecutions.

No Royal Road

Let's Arbitrate!

IN ADVOCATING mediation and arbitration as the royal road to peace, as he did at Indianapolis Saturday, Gov. Landon was striking a nostalgic note. His speech stirred echoes of dim, forgotten, far-off things and polite tea-party battles long ago; of days when men were still hopeful regarding the future and believed that all evils could be dissipated by right thinking and sweet reasonableness. But in the face of the desperate realities of the present, the proposal made by the Kansas Governor has about as much to recommend it as would a proposal for more humane traps in a community beset by hungry and savage wolves.

There used to be an old lady who wept whenever she heard that blessed word, Mesopotamia. But those mellifluous syllables have now been transformed into something not quite so resounding. So has it become with "arbitration." It is no longer a word to stir the imagination with the high hopes that a more orderly world can be achieved by intoning it. Were every nation as intent on peace as Gov. Landon insists we are, arbitration would have its uses. It still has its uses in settling inconsequential disputes among nations unwilling to shed blood over them. But can it do more? Can it settle those disputes over which men will still fight? Obviously not. When national ambitions are aroused, when national passions are whipped to fever heat, arbitration is about as effective as a garden sprinkler at a raging fire.

ON THE VERY day that the Governor spoke, dispatches from Europe brought news of a deal made between Germany and Italy. One possibility arising out of that deal is that the Third Reich may again be encouraged to cut loose against the status quo. On the very same day ominous rumblings were also heard from the Far East. Well-informed observers insist that it will take little short of a miracle to prevent Japan and China from soon becoming locked in mortal combat. Can arbitration prevent the present clash of ambitions, either in Europe or the Far East, from developing into war? The Governor, to be sure, claims to favor compulsory arbitration. But as to who is to do the compelling he is completely silent.

It is no secret that Germany covets the rich wheat lands of the Ukraine, the mines of the Donetz, the forests of Siberia, the oil of Baku. No one would be better pleased than Hitler if these could be achieved peacefully, say by arbitration. But Russia, as we have so frequently been told, is a peculiar nation, unlike Great Britain, France, Japan and other lands, notably the United States, that are so ready to give up territory in order to preserve peace. Russia wants to keep the Ukraine and Siberia. So far as it is concerned, there is nothing, in the German demand for them, to arbitrate. Does Gov. Landon believe there is?

And how arbitrate that fundamental clash between Japan's expansionist ambitions and China's desire to remain an independent nation in possession of territory it has regarded as its own for many centuries? How arbitrate any dispute involving the ambitions of one nation to take over the territory belonging to another? "Americans," said the Kansas Governor, "have used this method (arbitration) with success scores of times for more than 100 years." But did we arbitrate with Mexico in 1846? With the South in 1861? With Spain in 1898? With Germany, when the unrestricted submarine campaign was launched in 1917? With the Indians throughout our long history?

THE GOVERNOR spoke of the failure of the League of Nations; of the failure of sanctions. In this he struck a note frequently heard. Nor is there any need of contradicting him, or even of pointing out that the failure of the League's first efforts to apply sanctions was practically written in the cards the moment when the United States, having followed William H. Taft and other eminent Americans of the League to Enforce Peace, refused to accept the Covenant.

In the Ethiopian as (to a lesser degree) in the Manchurian crisis, the League was clearly hamstrung by the complacent attitude of our people (in contrast to the Government) when we took the position that we had no interest in co-operating with the nations seeking to restrain an aggressor, even to the minor extent of letting it be clearly known that we would do nothing to interfere with the execution of a program designed to bring the aggressor to book. How else would the Governor have handled the Ethiopian problem than through collective action? By arbitration? Gen. de Bono, the first commander of Italy's invading armies, has now revealed that months before the Ualual episode, Mussolini had made up his mind to conquer Ethiopia. Could he have been arbitrated out of his desire for more territory, for martial glory?

But the probability is that Mr. Landon does not readily believe in arbitration at all, despite his perfervid espousal of that method as the royal road to peace. When it comes to a showdown he is an ardent sanctionist, without either admitting the fact or realizing it.

SHOULD WAR break out in Europe, he says, the United States will remain neutral. It will insist on the maintenance of neutral rights. But will that keep us out of war? Did it in 1917? Of course not. And yet he trusts that next time it will be different. "In view of our enormous potential strength," he says, "demonstrated in 1917 and 1918, I believe hereafter nations will be reluctant to violate any neutral rights upon which we insist."

Reluctant? No doubt any nation would be reluctant to incur our wrath, i. e., have us employ military sanctions against it. But if it is a question of observing American neutral rights and losing the war, or if violating them and at least opening up the possibility of winning that war before we could strike back, does anyone doubt that the latter course, the one followed by Germany in 1917, would be repeated?

Calvin Coolidge

Two Letters.

My friend, Mr. John Marshall Holcombe, of Hartford, has given me photostats of two extremely interesting manuscript letters written by Calvin Coolidge in his youth.

Apart from their interest as coming from one who was to be President of the United States, they illustrate the truth of the saying that nearly every important event in history almost didn't happen.

Mr. Holcombe has kindly allowed me to print these letters.

Hon. William Dillingham,
Montpelier, Vt.

Dear Sir: If I could get into a good office I am thinking of reading there for some time, or perhaps finishing my preparation for the bar, rather than going to a law school. Is there a vacancy with your firm?

If there is any hope of your considering the proposition favorably I should be pleased to go up to the city to talk with you or you can advise me by mail as to the terms you would make, if you can bother with students.

I am just out of college and am somewhat undecided between the school and office; can you give me any suggestions?

Could you take me after I had spent some time, say a year or two, in a school? Truly yours,

J. CALVIN COOLIDGE.
Plymouth, Vt.

No answer was received for over a month apparently, for here is Coolidge's second letter, written in response to the belated one from Dillingham.

Hammnd and Field,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
First National Bank Building.
J. C. Hammond
Henry P. Field
Northampton, Mass., October 19, 1895.

Hon. W. Dillingham,
Montpelier,

Dear Sir: Allow me to thank you for your very kind letter to me. I had noted some little delay, but knew you too well to think it arose from anything like discourtesy on your part.

You see I am settled for the present. I should, perhaps, prefer Vermont, but I could not better my place anywhere else out of the shadow of the green hills.

Thanking you again for your kindly interest I am,

Very respectfully, J. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Had Mr. Dillingham answered the first letter quickly or favorably, it is almost certain that Coolidge would never have been President.

Gov. Landon's Speech in Philadelphia

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—The text of the address of Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight follows:

It is not only a privilege—it is a great honor—to be speaking tonigh in the city where the Constitution of the United States was written. We are entering the last week of a campaign in which the fundamental issue is the preservation of the Constitution and the American way of life.

On November third we must decide if we want a free and popular government or a government which concentrates increasing power in the Chief Executive. That is the issue in this campaign.

The President says this issue is a fairy tale—a political "bogey man." He underestimates the American people. They cannot be thrown off the track so easily. They can see through reassuring words spoken in an election year. The record since March 3, 1933, is no fairy tale.

We know how "planned economy" was foisted on us without mandate. We know how the heavy hand of government forced its way into our daily news.

Has Ignored Safeguards.

We know how this Administration has ignored the constitutional checks and balances established by the men who sat in this city of Philadelphia in 1787.

Tonight I am going to discuss a policy that upsets these checks and balances—a policy that could not have been carried out except by ignoring these checks and balances—a policy that violates the Constitution. I am going to talk about the waste and extravagance of this Administration. I am going to talk about this Administration's open and impudent use of public money for political purposes.

Our Constitution is a practical document. One of its objects is to protect the public funds. It recognizes that the public funds are the people's funds—that they do not come by magic from some inexhaustible source. The only source of public funds is the people. Too many of us forget this.

We forget that the waste of this Administration is waste of the people's money—our money. The extravagance of this Administration is extravagance with the people's money—our money. And it is the people's money— our money—that has been used to create the most sinister political machine of our history. No words of idealism, no claims of good intention, can shift the responsibility for this machine. The responsibility rests upon one man—and one man alone. It rests upon the President of the United States.

Who Must Pay Bill?

Who is going to pay the bill for all this spending? We are.

Who is paying the $12,000,000,000 which this Administration has already collected? We are.

Who is going to pay the additional $13,000,000,000 it has borrowed? We are.

Who is going to pay if this extravagance continues? We are.

Who is going to put an end to this extravagance? We are.

We are the taxpayers and it is the taxpayer who foots the bill.

Speaking as a candidate for election in 1932, the President said, "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors." But speaking as a candidate for reelection in 1936 he would have us believe that taxes are paid only out of the coffers of the rich.

How forgetful the President must think we are.

Speaking at Worcester last Wednesday, he made the statement that consumer's taxes—the hiden taxes which fall much more heavily on the poor man than on the rich—had been reduced durign his Administration.

This is an amazing statement. It is an amazing statement because only a year ago, in a public letter dated September 2, 1935, he said exactly the opposite. This was the famous letter in which he offered a "breathing spell" to American business. In this letter he wrote these words: "In 1929 consumers' taxes represented only 30 per cent of the national revenue. Today they are 60 per cent."

Was Right First Time.

Just how forgetful does the President think we are? The record proves the President was right the first time. "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors."

It is not the well-to-do who are going to pay the piper. They haven't that much money. If the Government last year had confiscated every penny of all incomes above $5,000 it would not have had enough to pay the cost of our Federal Government. The bulk of the money always comes from the men and women who labor in our workshops, on our farms and in our offices.

It is the little fellow who pays. It is the little fellow who suffers from Government extravagance. It is the little fellow who needs the safeguards of the Constitution—and particularly the safeguards against waste of the public funds.

One of the most important of these safeguards is the provision that all revenue legislation be initiated in the House of Representatives. This safeguard was put into our Constitution for a very definite reason. It was put in because the House of Representatives is the branch of our Government closest to the people. It was put in because the men who framed our Constitution knew the power of the purse. They knew that if injustice was to be prevented, the people, through their Representatives, must control the purse. This is as true now as it was in 1787.

But under this Administration revenue bills have not originated in the House of Representatives. They have been drafted by the executive branch of the Government and driven through Congress without adequate debate.

Hand in hand with the violation of this constitutional safeguard, has gone the demand of the President that Congress transfer to him its control over the spending of public funds.

Demanded Vast Sums.

Year after year the President has gone to Congress and demanded vast sums to be spent at his discretion. He has demanded blank checks totaling over $13,000,000,000. Congress felt the political power of these billions. It surrendered its responsibility over the public purse—its duty to protect the people's money.

And what happened when Congress surrendered this responsibility? What kind of spending did we get? To describe the kind of spending that deluged the country we had to invent a new word—"boondoggling."

Public money was spent to count the trees in the capital of your State.

Public money was spent to measure the cubic contents of buildings.

Public money was spent to build a giant concrete checker board.

It seemed to matter little so long as public money was spent.

We got exactly the kind of spending the President assured us we would not get. When he demanded a blank check for $4,800,000,000 he said it would be used for useful projects. In fact he said, "to put 1,000 men to work with picks and shovels to dig up a water main on one side of the highway, and lay it again on the other side of the highway, is not only a silly project, but it destroys the morale of the men, who are doing the job."

The President was right. This kind of work does destroy morale. But taking up a water main on one side of the highway and laying it down again on the other is not as bad as taking up people from one part of the country and putting them down in another. Two hundred and seventy-five million dollars was allotted to this resettlement project. It cost more than the whole standing Army of the United States last year. All the new soak-the-rich taxes of 1935 could not pay for this one piece of extravagance alone.

Cannot Afford Such Waste.

When we do things like that we have lost all sense of proportion. No government can afford such waste. It can afford it least of all when its people are struggling out of a great depression.

But there is an even more serious side to this violation of the constitutional rights of Congress This is the enormous power which money gives the President. It enables him to short-circuit State governments and thereby to exercise powers not granted to him by the Constitution.

But even this is not all.

This Administration has used the power of the purse to do more than break down home rule. This Administration has used it to coerce voters.

No one knows better than the people of Pennsylvania the brazen manner in which this policy has been applied in the name of relief. The unemployed have been told that if they do not support the President they will be thrown off the relief rolls. Scores of millions of public money have been poured into Pennsylvania in a desperate effort to carry the State in the coming election. No one knows better than the people of Pennsylvania the growing resentment of the public against an Administration so callous to public decency that it tries to force people to sell their votes for bread.

When I take office as Chief Executive I shall put an end to the use of relief funds for political purposes.

And I shall put an end to the use of public funds for political purposes.

And I shall put an end to the use of public funds for the building and maintaining of a propaganda machine in Washington. This has been a growing evil for many years, but never before has it ever approached its present size.

Time to Call Halt.

It is time to call a halt to this growing abuse. The national committee of the party in power should pay its own bills.

It is also time that we restore the Bureau of the Budget to its proper place in our Government. Fifteen years ago this bureau was established to hold down expenditures and weed out waste and extravagance. It is supposed to be an independent agency. Its job is to take the budget estimates of the various departments and pare them down to the minimum. But since August, 1934, when Lewis W. Douglas resigned in protest against the financial policies of the Administration, we have had only an acting director of the budget. The bureau has become a part of the White House spending machine. I intend to restore this bureau to a position of independence with a competent director at its head.

And unless the present Chief Executive acts in the meantime, I shall fill still another office which is vacant—the office of Comptroller General.

The Comptroller General is the legal watch dog over expenditures. He is the final judge of whether expenditures are made according to the law and for the purpose intended by Congress. The office has been left vacant since last July. Everyone knows what happens when the boss is away. In the multitude of activities performed by our Government we cannot afford to be without the protection of a determined, nonpartisan Comptroller General. We must be sure that funds are spent for the purpose, and only for the purpose, for which they were appropriatel.

Being a free and easy spender may be pleasant—for a while. A spendthrift lives more handsomely—for a while. A spendthrift nation can put on a show of prosperity—for a while. But the day of reckoning always comes. Sometimes the spendthrift must pay the bills.

If we continue our spendthrift course, if we continue our unbalanced budget, if we refuse to cut out the waste and frills of Government, our day of reckoning will come sooner than any of us imagine. We need an administration that realizes even Uncle Sam can go broke.

Lesson Clear for All.

The lesson of national bankruptcy is clear for all to read. We have seen what happens in nation after nation of the modern world. We have seen democracies fall and dictatorships rise. We have seen societies planned and liberties destroyed. And we have seen hard won constitutions first ridiculed and then, section by section, discarded and thrown away.

Human liberty, like a tree, grows slowly. For more than seven hundred years the race has struggled for the liberties embodied in our Constitution. But an ax can fell the sturdiest tree in a few short hours. Our liberties can be lost almost as quickly. This Administration wields the same ax which has destroyed the liberties of much of the Old World: An unbalanced budget, inflation of the currency, delegation of power to the Chief Executive, destruction of local self-government.

Let us then, here in Philadelphia, where the charter of our liberty was born, make this high resolve. Let us take an oath that the bell which rang here 160 years ago, shall not have rung in vain.

Campaign Cost Twice Greater Than During '32

yesterday was a report of the National Republican Congressional Committee, showing disbursements of $3336,636 between January 1 and October 22. Its contributions during the same period were $376,235.

The National Jeffersonian Democrats reported campaign expenditures of $56,924 from September 6 to October 22. Contributions received by the organization in that period were reported as $39,152. The group also reported it borrowed $50,000 from John J. Raskob of New York, one-time chairman of the Democratic National Committee, bringing the organization's total receipts to $89,152.

Among the principal contributors listed by this group were David K. E. Bruce, of Syosett, N. Y., $5,000; Lamont du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., $5,000; E. T. Weir, of Pittsburgh, Pa., $200; Alfred P. Sloan, jr., of New York, $500; Emma B. Auchencloss, of Fairfield, Conn., $2,500, and Hugh D. Auchencloss, of Washington, $2,500.

The American Labor Party, of New York, pledged to the support of President Roosevelt, listed expenditures totaling $118,081 and receipts amounting to $82,953, between July 21 and October 24. Most of its contributions came from union organizations, although 50 cent membership dues brought in $27,806.

The United Mine Workers, also supporting Mr. Roosevelt, reported a total outlay of $342,148, while contributions amounted to $12,677. Disbursements included donations of $156,250 to the Democratic National Committee and $140,878 to labor's Non-Partisan League.

Expenditure of $4,447 from August 1 to October 21 was recorded by a group of individual coal operators backing the Republican candidate. The group's receipts were $4,475.

The National Committee for Civic Recovery, with headquarters at Cincinnati, reported disbursements totaling $15,640 up to October 21, and contributions of $16,505 between August 10 and October 19.

Union Party Funds.

The Union Party, organized to support the candidacy of Representative Lemke for the Presidency, listed receipts of $31,300 and expenditures of $31,297 between September 9 and October 24. Previous contributions brought the year's total to $52,244, while expenditures throughout the campaign amounted to $55,150.

Union Party contributions included D. H. Wilson, Bethlehem, Pa., $5,000; W. Seigel, Chicago, $4,000; T. W. Myles, Los Angeles, $3,000; George Taylor, New York City, $3,050, and E. H. Byrne, Chicago, $4,300.

Among the major contributors to the Republican Congressional Committee were Mrs. W. L. Harkness, New York, $5,000; John D. Rockefeller 3d, New York, $5,000; John Hay Whitney, New York, $5,000; Ogden L. Mills, New York, $5,000; Albert D. Lasker, Chicago, $5,000; Mrs. Charles S. Payson, Manhasset, N. Y., $5,000; Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, New York, $5,000; Mrs. Payne Whitney, New York, $5,000; William Nelson Cromwell, New York, $5,000; Ethel M. Dorrance, Radnor, Pa., $5,000; Chester Bolton, Cleveland, $5,000.

Iverson Gives $5,000.

Lorenz Iverson, of Pittsburgh, $5,000; H. E. Sheldon, Pittsburgh, $5,000; John M. Schiff, New York, $5,000; Mrs. Sarah H. Scaife, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Paul Mellon, Pittsburgh, $5,000; A. Atwater Kent jr., Philadelphia, $5,000; Mrs. J. K. Mellon, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Erle P. Halliburton, Duncan, Okla., $5,000; Worthington Scranton, Scranton, Pa., $5,000; George Whitney, New York, $5,000; Robert R. McCormick, Chicago, $5,000.

Other contributors to the Republican fund included Mrs. Hortense W. Avery, Chicago, $5,000; D. A. Whittaker, Montreal, Canada, $5,000; Mrs. Abby R. Milton, New York, $5,000; I. C. Copley, Aurora, Ill., $5,000; J. M. Lockhart, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Mrs. J. R. McCune, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Mrs. H. L. Mason, jr., Pittsburgh, $5,000; Sterling Morton, Chicago, $4,000; William Ziegler, jr., New York, $3,000; John A. Hartford, New York, $4,000; Annie B. Jennings, Fairfield, Conn., $4,900; Stephen O. Metcalf, Providence, R. I., $2,000.

Contributors to the National Committee for Civic Recovery included Harry F. Guggenheim, New York, $5,000; L. E. Phillips, Bartlesville, Okla., $5,000; Curtis B. Munson, Lake Forest, Ill., a $2,000 loan; Frank R. Elder, Cincinnati, Ohio, $1,000, and H. E. Manville, New York, $1,000.

Puerto Rican Official Is Shot During Speech

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Oct. 26 (AP).—Santiago Iglesias, Puerto Rican resident commissioner to Washington, was shot and wounded slightly last night while speaking to a crowd in the plaza at Mayaguez.

Police arrested Domingo Santaliz Crespo, 25, who, the municipal judge said, admitted the shooting and said he had gone to the meeting with the idea of killing Iglesias, who is a candidate for re-election as resident commissioner.

Rule in Madrid Is Humanistic, Envoy Asserts

Declaring that the present Madrid government is "humanistic, not communistic," and that the leaders of the present revolt in Spain flaunt "the standard of reaction," Ambassador Don Fernando de los Rios told newspapermen yesterday at an informal gathering in the Spanish Embassy that the internecine strife now raging in his land is "not civil war, but an invasion."

"The backbone of the rebel army is comprised of fez-adorned Moors and adventurers of the Spanish Foreign Legion," he said. "The people of Spain are back of the democratic government."

Reviewing the events that led to the first outbreak of hostilities in Spanish Morocco last July, the former minister of public education declared:

"The social condition of the Spanish people before the republic was established in 1931 were little better than slavery. The idea of the republic was, and has been, to improve social legislation in order to humanize the social life and economic conditions of the workers and peasants."

Reforms Outlined.

In accordance with that ideal, the Ambassador explained, wages were increased approximately 50 per cent, the church was separated from the state; 10,500 new schools were created under his jurisdiction as Minister of Education; 5,000 circulating libraries were established in little villages.

"The republic pledged itself to establish political, social and religious liberty," he declared, "but unfortunately we had no success because social forces of a reactionary—not a conservative character, made it impossible for us to accomplish our purpose. That is the real origin of the actual drama."

To support his statement the Ambassador pointed out that when the Lerroux-Robles regime of the Right controlled the government between 1933-'34 there was a definite swing to reaction.

"Salaries were cut, wages tumbled," he said. "The people of Spain answered this challenge with an overwhelming victory this year for the Popular Front government."

Career Is Brilliant.

The courtly, bearded representative of the legal Spanish government has had a brilliant academic and political career. Graduating as doctor of laws and philosophy from the University of Madrid, he took graduate courses in economics at Berlin, London, Jena and the Sorbonne. In 1910 he returned to Spain to take the chair of political science at the University of Madrid. When the Spanish republic was inaugurated, de los Rios was appointed minister of justice, then minister of public education and later secretary of state.

As minister of justice, he caused the disestablishment of the feudal church and promulgated a law granting the right for divorce, till then forbidden in Spain.

When the first shot was fired in the present revolt, he was representing his country at Geneva. He was residing in Paris when Premier Francisco Largo Caballero appointed him to his present post.

Lawyer Says U. S. Acts As 'Collector' for Soviet

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—The United States Government was accused of being "a collection agency for the Soviets" by Robert J. Sykes, Manhattan lawyer, in a State Supreme Court action disclosed today.

Sykes' assertion was made in connection with a suit by the Government to obtain funds aggregating $244,113 of the defunct Czaristic Northern Insurance Co. of Moscow, Russia, held by the Bank of Manhattan Co. for which Sykes is counsel.

The money, "nationalized" by the Russian government in 1918, was assigned as a partial debt payment in 1933 to the United States Government, which sued the bank, representing creditors of the company to whom the money was awarded by a previous decision of the same court.

Count Says Japan Won't Fight Unless Existence Is Challenged

China is a house divided and the clouds hang loweringly over both sides.

Interviewed in his room at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday, Count Michimasa Soyeshima, Japanese representative on the International Olympics committee and member of the Imperial House of Peers, gave Nippon's side of the question that now is threatening to embroil the Orient.

"Japan's aims are not imperialistic," he declared, Japan never will take up arms unless its existence is challenged. If China would only come to understand what kind feelings we have, there would be no necessity for demands and punitive landing parties.

"Unfortunately the Chinese republic is, and has been, in a chaotic state; only a minority of the people wish to be friendly with my country, the majority being anti-Japanese.

"Japan is the only guarantor of peace in the Far East. It is only to preserve that peace that we summon our bayonets."

Does Japan wish then to maintain a Pax Romani in the Orient?" he was asked.

"Japan invites the co-opertion of the other great powers," he replied, remarking that in 1900 Lord Beresford called upon Great Britain, America, Germany and Japan to preserve the peace of the world.

"That was before the Great War," Count Soyeshima recalled. "Japan was then a small power. The war taught us a lesson. It taught us what conflict on a world-wide scale will do. It proved to us that a renewal of that strife will be the death rattle of civilization."

To the question: Is there grave danger of an outbreak of hostilities in Europe? he replied:

"Yes. I traveled through Germany, Italy, the Soviet Union. Everywhere there is feverish preparation. Everywhere armies, armed to the teeth, march and countermarch. The ominous tread of these legions spells inevitable cataclysm."

Only two nations can stave off Armaggedon, the Japanese peer declared—Japan and the United States—adding that the interests of both countries are "absolutely identical."

"Poor England," he replied with a typical Oriental twinkle. "It's no longer the England of yesterday and the English Channel is too narrow. England would immediately be drawn into the vortex of another European conflict."

Then you consider the League of Nations impractical? he was asked.

"Quite the contrary," he replied. "The League of Nations failed because of lack of co-operation. It was America's baby, left at the door of Europe, but America refused to assume parental responsibility. If she had taken an active part in the council halls at Geneva, world peace would now be assured."

Count Soyeshima denied that Japan instigated the recent revolt in the Kwangsi (southwestern Chinese) Province and justiled the recent demands made upon China's dictator, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, as forced by Chinese terrorism.

"The lives of Japaese citizens in the Middle Kingdom were endangered," he declared. "A section of the Japanese Army was justified in asking for atonement."

The Japanese peer branded the Soviety system as "a menace to the peace of the world" and stated that if offered a choice between Fascism and Communism he would "unhesitatingly accept the former."

"Russia is the real aggressor in the Far East," he stated. "Already she has interfered in internal Chinese politics.

Disclosing that Japan's unemployed number only 300,000, the count said that the idle are cared for by relatives.

"We have no need for governmental relief," he stated. "Age-old custom in Jauan leaves their care up to friends and relatives."

Count Soyeshina expressed gratification at the Japanese showing at Berlin this year and promised a big turn-out for the 1940 Olympic meet at Tokyo. It will be held within the compounds of the Emperor Meiji Shrine, he said, and already $5,000,000 have been set aside for improvements. The stadium accommodates 80,000; the swimming pool, 12,000; the baseball field 70,000 and the basketball arena 10,000.

Paris Pair Missing On 13,800-Mile Hop

Paris (Tuesday), Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Officials today became alarmed when they failed to hear from Michel Detroyat and Baston Durmon, leaders in the 13,800-mile flight from Paris to Saigon, Indo-China, and return. They were last reported from Baghdad, Iraq.

The pair reached Baghdad at 1:26 p. m. yesterday and should have reported from Karachi, India, at 11 p. m. Last reports placed them near the gateway to northern India.

France's most popular airmen, Detroyat and Durmon found more than $80,000 in prize money in the world's longest and most arduous air race, almost within their grasp, barring mishaps, when the six-passenger Caudron Goeland plane flown by Andre Japy and Maurice Arnoux crashed at the airdrome in Karachi. The latter had piled up a lead of nearly 1,700 miles over Detroyat and Durmon.

Solomon to Lead In Caravan Unit

Samuel J. Solomon, manager of Washington Airport, was appointed flight commander of Unit 15 of the Roosevelt aerial caravan yesterday by James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

It will be Solomon's duty to assemble a fleet of planes to fly over Washington and Maryland towing banners with Roosevelt inscribed on them in letters 7 feet high, it was explained.

Fliers who join the caravan donate their planes and their services to the Democratic National Committee and agree to stay in the air two hours daily. On Saturdays they fly over football fields.

Chopin Reading Of Sklarevski Draws Ovation

Peabody Pianist Received by Enthusiastic Crowd at Barker Hall.

Piano recital by Alexander Sklarevski, under auspices of the Washington Music Teachers Association, at Barker Hall, Seventeenth and K streets, last evening. The program: Variations from Sonata in A major by Mozart, "La Poule," by Rameau, Capriccio, E major by D. Scarlatti, Sonata, Opus 111 by Beethoven, four Etudes, A flat, Op. 10, A minor, Op. 25, F minor (posthumus) and E minor, Op 25, by Chopin; Prelude in D major Rachmaninoff, "Hopak," by Mousorosky-Rachmaninoff, and Arabesques on the "Blue Danube Waltz," by Strauss-Schultz-Evler.

In a world where specialization has invaded all professions and most of the arts, the term "exponent' takes on a vague meaning, and is too often repeated to convey its true value. But in a world of musicians, there is one pianist to whom "specialist" may at some later date, be truly applied—Alexander Sklarevski, newest interpreter of a great piano composer, Chopin.

The applause that greeted his playing of four Chopin Etudes last night may be prophetic. For, after the E minor Etude had died away, Mr. Sklarevski bowed again and again to an enthusiastic audience. The insistence was rewarded by the Impromptu in A flat, a hackneyed student-pianist tour de force that gained new beauty under his fingers.

Technically, Mr. Sklarevski's Chopin approaches the ideal. His is a sure fleet touch, brilliant but never brittle, deft in the light, bright velocity that Chopin gave to piano literature.

But Mr. Sklarevski's musicianship is not limited to the romantic school. His classic numbers, particularly the Mozart variations and the Scarlati Capriccio were played with clean-cut craftsmanship that was manifest in a delicately controlled tone, intricate pedalling, and a strict adherence to form.

It is not often Washington music-lovers have an opportunity to hear Bethoven's Sonata, Op. 111. Less often do they hear it performed with the dignity and insight Mr. Sklarevski gave it.

To a program as well chosen as it was performed, Mr. Sklarevski added four encores, Chopin's A flat waltz, a lovely lyric Rubenstein Barcarolle, another waltz by Liadov, and lastly, the "Turkish March" from "Ruins of Athens," by Beethoven.

Wanderer Identified.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 26 (U.P.).—A youthful victim of amnesia, who for days has wandered over the South in search of his lost identity, tonight was identified as Dwight Saunders, 18, sophomore at the University of Texas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Saunders, prominent residents of Fort Worth, Tex.

Marathon Mother Plans New Derby

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 26 (AP).—A new 10-year plan for child bearing was announced today by Mrs. Lily Kenny, the marathon mother. It starts, she said, just as soon as she gets the half million dollars from the present 10-year stork derby which ends Saturday.

Mrs. Kenny, with nonchalant disregard for the legal tangle toward which the Millar will settlement is headed, figures to wave about $100,000 of the prize money in front of Toronto mothers who didn't have a chance in the present affair. Thus she would carry on—and maybe on and on—the idea of Charles Vance Millar when he decided to leave a fortune to the most prolific Toronto mother.

A number of events, however, were threatening tonight to make a monkey wrench of themselves in the Millar marathon machinery. One development was the announcement that births may be legally registered a year after their occurrence, in which case the courts might decide to wait until October 31, 1937, before closing the books on Millar's estate.

Roosevelt's Kin Aids Campaign At Alexandria

Daniel Webster Delano, of New York, a fourth cousin of President Roosevelt, visited Alexandria last night in the interest of the Presidential campaign, coming here under the auspices of the City Democratic Committee and the Young Democrats Club, headed respectively by Armistead L. Boothe and Robert V. Duncan.

Delano was accompanied by a group of automobiles containing Democrats from a number of States.

The caravan stopped first at King and Royal streets, where a talk was given, and proceeded on King street to Fayette, for another speech, thence to the corner of Mount Vernon avenue and Randolph avenue.

A meeting will be held tonight in Mount Vernon School annex. Short talks will be made by Mrs. Tucker Brown, nationally known Democratic woman worker; Maurice D. Rosenberg, Alexandria representative in the Virginia House of Delegates, and Delano.

Music will be furnished by the Citizens' Band and a campaign song especially written for the occasion will be sung. At the conclusion of the meeting tickets will be distributed entitling persons present to an entertainment on the night of election.

Rawley J. Dunaway, 44, of Lincolnia, Fairfax County, is in Alexandria Hospital in a critical condition as the result of being struck by an automobile shortly after midnight. The car was driven by William Simmons, 20 years old, of 431 Raymond avenue.

The accident occurred on the River road, between Reed avenue and Four-Mile Run, near the entrance to Potomac Yards, where Danaway had been employed as a car repairer for the past 20 years. Simmons told the police he was driving south and that Dunaway ran in front of his car. Simmons was released in bond pending outcome of Dunaway's injuries.

A musical program will be featured at the Navy Day meeting of the Alexandria Rotary Club today, with luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the George Mason Hotel, when Stephen Davenport and Harold Smith, of the Kitt Studio, Washington, will sing. Dr. Felix Swope is program chairman and Dr. H. A. Latane, president of the club.

The Black Automatic

By William Byron Mowery.

As Noel stared around at the queer stone houses, the cooking pits, the ritual "sun stones," the crude pottery and primitive artifacts of this primitive band, an eerie sensation, weird, almost frightening, crept over him. The whole scene around him seemed unreal—touched with the strangeness of magic. He felt he was standing in an old stone town of a stone age folk; that in coming from that airplane up the back stone path to this abode of a hunting and fishing people he had walked out of the modern present, walked back across history and human progress into an ancient mound builder village, exactly as Harla once had said.

The Dinokui men and women left the kozgee and dwellings and came near, and Tah-Gomaugh called to them, repeating some guttural phrase over and over. With no sign either of friendliness or hostility, they kept coming closer and closer till they were standing in a circle around Noel and Harla.

Tall and muscular, with coarse black hair and red copper skin, they looked at Noel not unlike modern Crees or Assiniboines of pure stock. The men, bare from the waist up, wore caribou leather trousers and pointed moccasins and carried daggers of black obsidian at their belts. The women were clad in shirt and trousers of some whitish skin; their quilled moccasins were dyed a pretty vermilion, and all of them wore hammer-wrought ornaments of raw virgin silver.

After staring sharply at Noel and listening to Tah-Gomaugh's explanations, one of the men, apparently a tyee or chief, raised his hand and gave a harangue to the rest of the group.

"What did he say, Tah-Gomaugh?" Noel asked, trying to shake off the eerie dreamlike feeling which lay upon him like a spell.

"He say you welcome. He say you come as friend. How know? He say no man take his squaw 'long on war trail."

Though the tyee's premise was somewhat askew, Noel was vastly relieved at his conclusion.

"Tell them," he bade Tah-Gomaugh, "that we have medicine for their sickness. Tell those who are still well that we are going to vaccinate them so that——"

Harla spoke up: "They'll never understand that, Noel. Medicine and vaccine mean nothing to them." She instructed Tah-Gomaugh: "Tell them that we have little boxes full of powerful magic. Tell them that the sorcerers of the white man have fashioned a hollow needle filled with friendly familiars and that the needle's burning point will let those familiars into their blood. Tell them they should come out of their houses; that the evil familiars of their sickness are withered by the lord sun."

She turned to Noel. "That's the way you've got to talk to get across. Everything that you do here, make a ritual of it. And don't break into any of their superstitions. If we appear to be forcing alien ideas on them, they'll likely blame the very next death on us and drive us away."

In the Dinokui tongue, sounding mostly like clicks and grunts, Tah-Gomaugh began speaking to them as Harla had instructed.

Even before Tah-Gomaugh finished speaking, one of the younger women, carrying in her arms a little tot of 3, evidently her first born, stepped out of the group and came up to Harla, touched Harla's arm and pointed at the child and said something in low imploring voice. Noel knew that she was begging to save the tot. Though the woman was so sick that she could scarcely stand, she asked nothing for herself, no help or magic—only a healing touch for her child.

For Noel the incident snapped the tension of the queer scene and surroundings. The dream quality of the old stone village faded. The odd people around him became men and women who were little different, at heart, from himself and Harla and all the rest of mankind. A mother asking that her child be saved—that was universal humanity speaking, a humanity common throughout the lands of the earth and back across the centuries of history.

For 12 hours on end, without rest and with only a few bites to eat, Noel plowed through one task after another down at his part of the village.

After much persuasion he induced the men to leave the dark chill kozgee; and under the pines behind it he set up an open air camp, making pallets of pine boughs and bighorn robes.

By evening he had straightened up the lower camp well enough that some one else could take it in charge, and he decided to whip back to Manitou when Strap went. With Flood so scared, so certain to take some drastic steps, these hours were critical.

Near 7 o'clock Thomkins came down with word that Harla wished to see him. Thinking that she might be laying some plan to get back to Manitou herself, he knocked off work and walked up to the stone cross where Strap was cooking supper for himself and Tomkins and Brannigan.

"She's over yon," Strap informed, jerking a thumb toward the canoe landing. "Tea for two, you lucky devil. Us plain bozos don't rate. Scram or I'll throw some soup on you."

Wondering what Strap meant, Noel walked across to the river bank and found Harla waiting there. At the edge of a pine clump she had spread a supper for herself and him on the carpet of needles. She had prepared the meal herself and had gone to considerable trouble to make it ni.. laying a blanket for tablecloth and even gathering a cluster of arctic poppies.

They sat down and Harla poured tea for him. He knew that this would be their last meal together and he forced himself to be friendly, in the old way. She seemed pathetically eager to make atonement for the last fortnight.

"Why I wanted to see you alone, Noel," she said, seeking excuse for the privacy of this supper for two, "I found out something awfly important this afternoon. It's about this contagion—how it ever struck this isolated band. Besides those mountain barriers, this basin and a big block of surrounding territory is the Dinokui preserve. It's rigidly barred against whites and metis and alien Indians. The Indian bureau had it made defendu by an order in council."

"What! Defendu?" Noel echoed, astonished.

WPA 'Scab Army,' Coughlin Declares

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 26 (AP).—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin tonight called Franklin D. Roosevelt the "scab President" and termed him "the greatest employer of scab labor in all history."

The WPA, he said, was a "great scab army," which he added was paid an insufficient wage. A throng which jammed Cleveland's public hall gave the priest a noisy welcome, and interspersed his remarks with viogorous applause.

Asserting that the WPA workers were paid $50.03 a month, Coughlin was interrupted by a voice from the gallery shouting: "And they want some of that back."

The priest resumed his address saying, "now I understand why the scab editors support the scab President."

"The great scab army has had a prevailing wage paid to it," the priest said. "They call it a New Deal, but its the same new deal that was handed out to the poor Negroes in the cotton fields of the South before the days of Lincoln. There's no man who can support himself and his wife on $50 a month, nor on $100 a month."

From the strange contradictions that made up the life and character of Edgar Allan Poe Sophie Treadwell has created a play of stark frustration that betrays a grim determinatino to stress every hapless aspect of a genius' bitter struggle against a world he deemed bourgeois, greedy and unbalanced.

Thethree acts and six scenes of the new play presented for the first time in the National Theater last night takes up the story of the poet upon his return from college to the home of his foster father in Richmond on Christmas Eve, in the year 1826, and follows it through to the night of his death in a Baltimore hospital in 1849.

The period of the play is an unbroken intervnal of disappointment, disillusionment and grief. The three acts are without any vestige of enlivenment and cling tenaciously to thegrim developments in a life from which the cold hand of tragedy never was lifted.

Events Are Rearranged.

From the material at her command the author has fabricated a biological study that takes frequent liberties with fact. The circumstances of the death of Virginia Clemm, whom Poe had married when she was scarcely more than a child, are made the subject of dramatic license that presumes to have Poe absent from her bedside when she died. The episode of the invasion of the fashionable St. Valentine's Day party of the literati in the home of Miss Anne Lynch, in Waverly place, New York, although the most colorful scene in the play and its first disclosure of compelling "theater," is, I believe, wholly fictional.

This is no more against the integrity of "Plumes in the Dust" as an example of legitimate play building than were the similar liberties taken by R. C. Sherriff and Jeanne de Casalis in fashioning "St. Helena," the story of Napoleon's last years in exile, recently seen on the same stage. There is, however, an insistent note of defeatism in the present play that is continuously and thoroughly depressing.

At no time during the development of a drab narrative of shattered hopes and constant struggle against the disheartening privations of poverty is a cheerful note struck.

Although one of the longest casts of the season participates in the story of one of America's great literary figure's fight against adversity, deprivation and a sinister master vice, it is to Henry Hull, cast in the role of Poe, that the play is indebtede for the sum tota lof its effectiveness.

It is a long and exhausting role that Mr. Hull essays in his present assignment and one that he plays with a fluency, understanding and personal power that prompted so many curtain calls at the end of the last act that he was forced to respond with a brief speech—the first of the current season.

He makes of the author and poet a sensitive, slightly neurotic and intensely emotional figure of vaunting ambition, overpowering respect for his profession and deep and tender regard for those he loves. He walks with his head among the stars and lothes the mediocrity of those whose favor would bring him acclaim. He lives his lonely life isolated from the world, solitary in the loss of the one great love of his life, who married another through the chicanery of conniving parents who deemed him a wastrel and a vagabond.

To this many-sided character the star brings a comprehensino, a sympathetic understanding and an expressive change of mood and tempo that lend it both depth of appeal an dramatic vigor. There has not been so long-sustained a speech since the "Garden of Allah" as Mr. Hull's last-act delirium on the hospital cot when his life relives itself in his fevered brain as it slowly ebbs out and writers a period to a brilliant and a tragic carre.

Last Scene Inspired Ovation.

It was this tremendously moving display of the highest reaches of the actor's art that occassioned the tumultuous last-act curtain calls that set a season's record, more than any other factor in the evening's activities.

Mr. Hull's superb work is not even remotely approximated by any other member of the cast. Charles Kennedy contributes a forbidding and distasteful limning of a close-fisted Scotch merchant, excessively annoyed by the extravagances of a foster son just back from college, and Don Shelton is fine in an inebriated bit in the first act, but outside of that, the supporting cast offers nothing of note in the way of distinguished performance. To this blanket indictment, Mary Morris is the single exception. Her impersonation of Mrs. Maria Clemm is of the first order.

The scene of the St. Valentine's gala evening at Miss Lynch's is peopled more by caricatures than by believable people.

The play has been given a handsome setting by Arthur Hopkins, a producers whose standards are high and achievements many. It is regrettable that his present play is in no sense commensurate with the extraordinarily fine performance of its star.

About the Showshops

IT IS the helpful and informative Mr. Ray Henderson, one of the most erudite of the theatrical stentors, who calls my attention to the fact that according to the Billboard Index, recently published, Guthrie McClintic was the busiest stage director during the season of 1935-36, with five new productions and a sixth which he had directed the previous winter returning to Broadway.

BELL.

Jo Mielziner, who designed the settings for the Katharine Cornell and McClintic presentations during the year, was the busiest scene designer with ten plays to his credit and another one holding over from the previous season.

William Shakespeare, whose "Romeo and Juliet" Miss Cornell acted last fall, was the playwright to have the most dramas in New York—four, in all.

"Winterset," by Maxwell Anderson, says Mr. Henderson in an aside, which Mr. McClintic produced, leads the list in Burns Mantle's yearbook, "The Best Plays of 1935-36," which Dodd, Mead & Co., have published.

In case you haven't guessed, Mr. Henderson also labors in the Cornell-McClintic vineyard and helps them harvest many a grape.

It just goes to show how constant pounding away eventually will break down the sternest resistance. I mean about this Doris Nolan person, whose likeness decorates this page today. For weeks now the drama desks have been bombarded with a steady barrage of stunning photographic studies of Miss Nolan, the final shot having been a gorgeous pastel portrait 26x40 inches in size. Almost anyone, not excluding a case-hardened bachelor, might be expected to succumb in time to so persistent an onslaught of beauty.

Miss Nolan, by the way, is one of those disillusioned young actresses who once sat in Hollywood studios for months on end without ever being given a chance before the cameras. Returning to New York, she clicked on the stage and the scramble for her services started all over again, even the company that had ignored her striving vainly to recapture a talent it had had and tossed carelessly away. In her next picture for Universal, Miss Nolan will be billed as a full-fledged star. Every once in a while Hollywood plays a joke like this on itself—Gladys George in "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," at the Earle this week, for example.

Uptown Will Open to Public Thursday Night

New Warner Theater Will Be Fourteenth in Capital; Notables to Speak.

The Uptown Theater, Warner Bros. new picture playhouse, located on Connecticut avenue at Newark street, will be dedicated this Thursday evening, October 29, at 8:15 o'clock, according to an announcement made late yesterday by John J. Payette, Warner Bros. general zone manager. Doors will open at 7:15 to give patrons ample time to inspect the theater throughout.

Two distinguished Washingtonians—District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, and Thomas E. Clark, president of the Cleveland Park Business Men's Association—will take part in the program.

Other notable guests will include Maj. Albert Warner, vice president of Warner Bros., in charge of distribution; Joseph Bernhard, vice president in charge of theaters, and Herman Maier, in charge of construction for the Warner organization.

Premiere of New Film.

The inaugural attraction at the Uptown will be "Cain and Mabel," Cosmopolitan Production, released by Warner Bros., and starring Marion Davies and Clark Gable. The presentation Thursday evening will be the Washington premiere of this new musical comedy.

The fourteenth Warner Bros. theater in Washington, directed by Mr. Payette, the Uptown stands as the last word in modern motion picture theater construction. It embodies the knowledge and experience of John J. Zink, its designer, who has to his credit many outstanding theaters in the United States.

The most modern type of projection and sound equipment have been installed in the new house, which will seat 1,500 people in the orchestra, balcony and loges. Appointments throughout are the most modern available. Throughout the year, winter and summer, the Uptown will maintain an even temperature, the latest type of air-conditioning equipment having been provided.

Part of Expansion Plan.

The Uptown is the second theater to be opened to the public under an extensive building expansion program planned in Washington by Warner Bros. The Penn Theater, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, was opened last winter; the Sheridan, on Georgia avenue, is now being completed, and the Calvert, on Wisconsin avenue, will be ready by spring.

Walter Corsley, well known to Cleveland Park residents as manager of Warner Bros. Avalon Theater for the last six years, will assume the managerial duties at the Uptown.

Bill the Authors.

The Beatrice Lillie-Bert Lahr musical will require three days for one performance if the producers are to use all the material at hand. So far the authors are George S. Kaufman, George and Ira Gershwin, Moss Hart, Hoagy Carmichael, Dick Rodgers and Larry Hart, Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, Yip Harburg and Harold Arlen, Herman Hupfeld, Vernon Duke, with possibilities of further contributions from Noel Coward and Marc Connelly. "Thell with billing the stars," Eddie Dowling suggested to the Shuberts. "Bill the authors!" . . . The notoriously dumb wife of a prominent actor was sincere in bemoaning her plight last night. "My husband has such huge life insurance polices, that I'm worried," she complained. "If anything happens to him—I don't know how I'm ever gonna keep up the payments . . .

Paul Porter, who is casting "Othello," in which Walter Huston will star, decided to hire 15 wrestlers for the walk-on roles, which require big, strong men. He phoned Jacques Curley, the wrestling impresario, but wasn't successful. The wrestlers wouldn't accept any stage jobs, preferring to do their acting in the ring. . . . Lady Astor boarded a plane to Washington, and was photographed by the news cameramen. One photographer clicked the camera while her mouth was open. "I'm not pretty under any circumstances," Lady Astor pleaded, "so please be careful." . . . Delman's, the women's shoe store chain, recently opened a London branch. To assure its success, they sent over the sales staff of their best store. For weeks, strangely enough, and despite the ace staff, the British ladies refused to buy there. Only then did the management discover why—because the custom in England is for women shoe purchasers to be served by women salespeople.

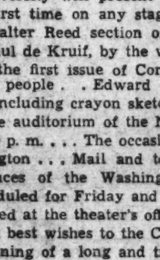
Hollywood, Oct. 26.

Jewelers hereabouts (especially those who socialize with movie folk to sell them wares) have established the custom of permitting actresses to wear gorgeous trinkets without purchase. Especially does this privilege prevail among lovely newcomers. It is common for an ingenue whose salary barely covers rent and food to blossom forth with a ten-carat diamond ring or headlamp sapphire.



JOAN CRAWFORD

The girls are given no instructions to announce at intervals, "This ring furnished by courtesy of Umpty-ump Jewelers, Inc." but there are three possible sources of revenue:

(1) The newcomer may zoom to four-figure salary overnight and become a real patron. (2) There may be a boy-friend who will make the purchase. (3) Other actresses, jealous of the newcomer's display, may hasten to buy costlier stones.

These reasons may seem inadequate, but you may take my word for it the jewelers have found their "loan system" a miracle road to sales. There are more purse-fat gem dealers in this town than in New York City.

Presence of Franchot Tone in "Gorgeous Hussy" with Joan Crawford was not accomplished without long, fiery arguments from Joan. She persistently fought against sharing the screen with her husband, and these were her reasons:

"The public takes seriously what players do on the screen. Let an actress portray a wicked woman, and she is indelibly stamped wicked. I have not wanted Franchot to make love to me in a picture—or worse, to quarrel with me—because I am positive audiences would whisper to each other, 'Uh huh, that's how they really kiss' or "Look at 'em fight! I bet they act the same way at home!"

So Miss Crawford fought the idea. I understand it was Tone himself who finally persuaded her to change her views, primarily because the role in "Gorgeous Hussy" was a fine opportunity.

Hundreds of movie-mad girls answered RKO's advertisement for young ladies to dance with Fred Astaire in a picture. It was a publicity stunt, of course, but a few were really chosen from among those who responded to the ads. One New York woman telegraphed: "I would walk 3,000 miles to Hollywood to dance one step with Astaire." The director wired back: "If you walk 3,000 miles, you will not be able to dance one step."

Stage Hit Brings Film Stardom

Doris Nolan, Universal's new "find," has attained screen stardom in her first picture, "The Man I Marry," soon to be released. Once before, Doris Nolan was in Hollywood for picture making and sat around the studio—not Universal—for six months without ever receiving an assignment. Then she returned to Broadway, scored in Al Woods' production of "Night of January 16" and almost over night again had all of the Hollywood producers dangling contracts before her. She put her name on the dotted line for Universal Pictures and now comes star billing.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Fritz Kreisler in violin recital at Constitution Hall, with Carl Lampson at the piano. Program: Fantasia in C major, Op. 131 (Schumann-Kreisler), Adagio and Fugue in G minor (Bach), Konzertstueck: first movement of Concerto in D major (Paganini-Kreisler), Cavatina, Malaguena, Rondo on a Theme by Beethoven, La Gitana, Caprice Viennois (Kreisler).

One may call it esteem, but a better word would be affection, which held a large audience waiting last evening for the arrival of Fritz Kreisler, delayed by a railroad accident. Following the announcement of the inevitable postponement of proceedings, a few impatient ones took advantage of the offer to redeem their tickets, but the greater part of the auditors either remained in their places or strolled in the lobby.

During an hour of the wait an extempore program was presented by Glenn Carow, Norman Frauenheim and musicians from the studio staff of the National Broadcasting Company.

Others than the writer were probably unwilling to depart without having heard Mr. Kreisler's rehabilitation of the Schumann fantasy and his revision of the first movement of Paganini's over-familiar D major concerto, both of which he is introducing to America this season. Even in its unrevised form, the Schumann work is virtually unknown to music lovers, for Joseph Joachim was practically the only violinist who played this music, which showed too plainly the waning mentality of the composer.

Mr. Kreisler has treated the fantasy with respect, strengthening its weaknesses here and there, making it more violinistic, enriching the orchestral part, and leaving the cadenza unaltered. The result, for all this loving care, is not first-rate Schumann, but a restoration which has the authentic accents of that amiable composer. Well worthy of preservation are the introduction with its rhapsodic flight, the tenderness of the lyrical second theme and the appealing cantilena.

With the Paganini movement Mr. Kreisler has taken more friendly liberties. As one violinist to another, he has suggested certain enlivening improvements to make it more in keeping with modern taste. He has added tricks of technique, quirks of wit, and more than a little of the inimitable Kreisler style. The title, "Konzertstueck," gives the clew to the transformation; it is no longer Italianate music, but Viennese.

Mr. Kreisler was in excellent form, despite the tribulations of travel. His reading of Bach had calm dignity and impeccable phrasing. His welcome was whole-hearted, and the enthusiasm mounted to a climax after the group of Kreisleriana.

Arts Club.

"NO MORE FRONTIER." The Arts Club Players present the drama in a prologue, three acts and eight scenes by Talbot Jennings, directed by Denis E. Connell, with costumes by Mrs. Charles Bittinger, Mrs. Edwin Eis and Pauline Stanley, and settings by Hugo Inden and Dorothy Keene. At the Arts Club, October 26, 27 and 28. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Three generations of pioneers of various sorts passed in review last evening as the Arts Club Players opened their 1936-37 season by presenting Talbot Jenning's quasi-biographical drama of Idaho from 1875 to 1929, "No More Frontier."

While "No More Frontier" offers ample opportunity for effective interpretations, Mr. Jennings has employed one basic theme in this discourse covering the ambitions of three generations—namely, let the son do as he pleases (he will anyway) and he will come out all right. It matters not whether it was the original settler's breaking home ties, or his son's so doing, or even his son's son's repeating, it is essentially the same story.

Yet in the blending of episodes, with a background of "civilization's advancements," such callings as the sea, the mountains, aviation and business give the drama variety.

Handicapped by the club's diminutive stage, the Players gave the play good production values.

Large Cast Required.

Of the large number of players—29 to be exact—few can be singled out for especial mention. Dorothy Winchcole, in rather a "bit" as the lonesome, longing pioneer woman, gave what seemed to this reviewer the most auhentic delineation, although Dennis E. Connell (who also directed), as the paterfamilias, and Wilma Wright Flood as the mater, contributed fine work.

Society Girl Makes Debut As Professional Singer

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Another society girl has broken into song. Last night, with distinguished guests present to hear her, Miss Ann James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Roy James, of Old Bay Farm, Md., and niece of Col. and Mrs. Julian C. Smith, of Alexandria, Va., made her debut at the Shoreham Hotel.

Col. and Mrs. Smith were hosts to a party of friends in honor of Miss James and the occasion of her first appearance as a night club singer. With them at dinner were the United States Minister of Norway and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., who arrived just in time for Miss James' performance; their parents, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia, who are spending a few weeks here; Maj. Gen. McCarty Little, Brig. Gen. John Beaumont, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. James M. Arthur, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. S. L. Howard, Miss Roberta Tull, Miss Annette Griffin, Miss Caroline Miller, Mr. Juan J. Tomadelli and Mr. James Meade.

The young artist, who will laughingly tell you she is not really a singer but a dancer, having devoted most of her study to that art rather than to music, is as lovely to look at as to listen to. She is of no more than medium height, slender, with even features, soft, wavy brown hair and a ready smile which reveals even white teeth. Her costume at dinner and for the first performance last evening was a two-piece gown of black satin, the skirt made with circular hem and the tunic flaring around the hips. It was high-necked in front but low in the back and sleeveless. With it she wore a corsage of gardenias. Her gown for the second performance of the evening was white satin.

Miss James was presented to society at a tea in Philadelphia two years ago. Recently she has studied classical dancing under Estelle Dennis, in Baltimore and has cherished ambitions to be a dancer until a sudden opportunity was offered her to sing. Her sister, Miss Mary Rolfe James, who studied last year at Peabody Institute and is now at Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, has intended all along to be a singer but has not yet launched on her career. Mary is a soprano and Ann a contralto. When they are at home they have grand times singing together. Mary's studies prevented her being present last night for her sister's musical debut.

Envoy and Wife Hosts at Dinner

The two delegates who will represent El Salvador at the Pan-American Peace Conference in Argentine next month were the guests in whose honor the Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro entertained at a dinner party last evening at the Shoreham. The delegates are Dr. Max Brannon, who has recently been in New York to attend a conference, and Senora de Brannon, and Senor and Senora Joaquin Leiva, who are visiting the United States.

Also in the company were the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos; the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Lozano; the United States Minister to El Salvador, Dr. Frank Conigan the Charge d'Affairs of Nicaragua and Senora de Bayle; the Secretary of the Honduras Legation and Senora de Caceres; the Secretary of the El Salvador Legation, Dr. Pena Valle; Dr. and Mrs. Nelson H. Darton, Dr. and Mrs. George B. Trible, Mrs. Louis Schapiro, Mrs. William Kerlin, Miss Marian Fisher, Miss Maria Lidia Tercero, Miss Concha Gonzalez, Dr. Alfredo T. Bustamante, Dr. Luis Chaparro and Mr. Mark Schapiro.

Debs to Be Guests Of Messrs. Cureton

Buffet Supper to Precede Richardsons' Party.

Mr. West Cureton and Mrs. Stewart Cureton are entertaining at a buffet supper tomorrow evening for members of the debutante and sub-debutante group who will attend the party sponsored by Mrs. Neitah King, to be given later in the evening at the Virginia home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson.

At the party, guests will come dressed as their "favorite bores in public life." Among the Baltimore debutantes present will be Miss Frances Snowden Ehlen, who will be presented at the Bachelors' Cotillion.

Gillettes in D. C.

Maj. G. W. Gillette, U. S. A. and Mrs. Gillette are at the Martinique for a few days.

Mrs. M. A. Paisley, the former Miss Marion Gaddess, an August shower given on Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. John Weyrick by members of the faculty of the Wheatley School, where Mrs. Paisley is a teacher. The principal, Miss Florence C. Mortimer, and the faculty of the school were present. Flowers from the school gardens were the decorations.

Rose d'Amore Gives Reception For Sklarevski

Miss Rose d'Amore, one of the Capital's distinguished young pianists, was hostess yesterday afternoon at a reception in the Pan American room of the Mayflower in compliment to Mr. Alexander Sklarevski, of Peabody Institute, who presented a concert here last night in Parker Hall. Miss d'Amore is one of Mr. Sklarevski's artist students and will be heard here in recital later in the season.

The room in which she received with the guest of honor was decorated with bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Miss d'Amore wore a gown of ashes-of-roses crepe with a short jacket and a pearl brooch. Her fair hair was in a braid which formed a coronet about her head. She was assisted by Mrs. Ira Yarnall, who wore black with a plaited collar, and Mrs. David Barr, who wore gray.

Guest Tells Story.

Mr. Sklarevski amused one group of friends with the story of how he chose Baltimore for his home some years ago. He lived in Russia under the Czarist regime and was obliged to escape through Siberia to Japan at the time of the revolution.

After his arrival in Japan, he had offers from various colleges in this country to join their music faculties. With a map of the United States before him, he selected Baltimore, where he is now head of his department at Peabody, because "it was in the sunny South, where there would be no snow or ice." To his surprise, he found it was not far enough south for the perfect climate to which he had looked forward, but he has remained there, nevertheless.

One of the interesting guests was Miss Alice Tully, who was there with her sister, Mrs. Reeve Hoover, whom she has been visiting for two weeks. Miss Tully, a dramatic soprano noted here and abroad, tomorrow will return to New York, where she will present a concert in Town Hall the evening of November 28. She arrived in September from Paris, where she has been for some years, and has done much work in both concert and opera.

She wore a striking costume of gray yesterday, a short military cape of the same material as her dress, held with silver fastenings at the front which accentuated the military effect. Her shoes and hat were of the same gray shade.

Mrs. Jeter Horton, who is closely identified with things musical in the Capital, was also among the guests, wearing a costume of black with an ashes-of-roses scarf at the neck. With Col. Horton, she went from there to the tea at which Rear Admiral and Mrs. William H. Standley entertained yesterday.

Among Others Present.

Also among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke. Mrs. Burke in black with a gay little veil trimming her small black hat; Mr. Lyle Brookover, with his sister, Miss Laura Brookover, whose black costume was brightened with a touch of red at the neck; Mr. and Mrs. Yarnell, Mrs. Charles H. March, wife of Col. March, Mr. Lowell Mason, former United States Senator from Illinois; Miss Delphine Desio, the young blind cellist, who wore black, trimmed in white; Mr. Robert Freer, Federal Trade Commissioner, and Mrs. Freer, who wore flame-color with a silver fox fur and a black hat; Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson accompanied by her sister, Mrs. M. H. Justice, of Norfolk, Va., who is visiting her; and Mrs. Hesslebach, president of the Washington Teachers' Association, which sponsored Mr. Sklarevski's concert.

Reed to Be Guest Of Democratic Club

Women's Group Will Give Dinner Friday.

The Solicitor General, Mr. Stanley Reed, will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given on Friday evening by the Woman's National Democratic Club. Mrs. Reed will accompany her husband, who will be introduced by Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, president of the club.

Mrs. George W. Stimpson, president of the National Press Club, was the guest of honor at the Forum luncheon of the club yesterday. He discussed the highlights of the campaign, and was introduced by Mrs. Edward Keating.

THE MERRY WHIRL by MARYLYN

Plans are under way for a very large and gala party which the Henry L. Dohertys will give at Thanksgiving time for their daughter, Helen, and her husband, Theodore Wessel, who will be here for a time. Rumors are whizzing around to the effect that there will be cocktails in the lounge first—incidentally, the guests will number way up in the awe-inspiring figures—then there will be a sumptuous repast in the dining room. After that the entire assemblage will hie themselves to some spacious portion of the Shoreham Hotel, where three opera stars, not as yet named, will entertain them. Then, when every one has had his fill of song and wine, there will be an adjournment to the grand ballroom, where two orchestras will play till the wee sma' hours. Who said that Washington was going to be quiet?

Little Eleanor Campbell—she of the huge brown eyes fringed with thick lashes (that's not taken from a story book, but the honest description of the young lady) is by no means just a little, dainty creature who graces the dance floor, or a tea table, or who embroiders beautifully—no, every Saturday, at least she is out horseback riding. It all came out when someone was commenting upon the I-A. H. S. (we all know what that stands for by now) and she used a horsey term that brought fourth further elucidation. She has ridden most of her life, tackles half-broken animals and the wilder they are the better she likes and handles them.

Lolita Batlle has just returned from New York plus an assortment of very swanky clothes—frocks that have tiny waists, broad shoulders and ice-skating style skirts, hats that don't look like hats except when atop a brave head—and she is now minus her long raven locks. The new coiffure, a soft swirly bob turns saucily up on the ends and there is a little curl—not in the middle of her forehead—but coyly peeking out from one side.

Ah, ha, so the Army aids are being lined up for the coming year. This past summer, with its transfers and weddings, has taken a deplorable toll of the young gallants who politely answer questions and escort people around at the White House functions. All that's left of the old guard includes Jack Reybold, now stepped up into Horace Smith's place as head aid; Dave Erskine (his deserting the ranks of bachelors any day now would not surprise us), George Grunert and Jack Seaman. Among those who are stocking up on all sorts of formal and fancy uniforms are Johnny Pugh, recent comer from Fort Riley, and Clark (Snuffy) Lyon. Then, too, those who should know are saying that George Millholland will be attending parties at the Executive Mansion with significant regularity. George, unfortunately, is not in these parts at present, and so cannot speak for himself.

Peggy Wheeler, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Raymond Wheeler, has returned to Washington. She was graduated from high school in Panama and later from Vassar with all sorts of honors. We remember her when she was just a little girl going to school on Massachusetts avenue. Although she is much taller, she looks very much the same. There is the same delightful twinkle in her blue eyes and keen sense of humor.

University Women Give Luncheon for Directors

There was a luncheon for the board of director at the Women's University Club yesterday, followed by a tea at 4 o'clock, with a talk given by Mr. Walter E. Myer, on current events. Mrs. George B. Wood was hostess for the tea.

Wednesday there will be a Halloween dance at the club, at which square dances will be a feature. Mrs. Leslie Whitten will be hostess.

Mrs. Standley Gives Second Farewell Tea

Naval Wives Assist Host; Third Function Will Be Held Nov. 4.

Mrs. William H. Standley, wife of Rear Admiral Standley, chief of naval operations, entertained yesterday at the second of her series of farewell teas. Admiral Standley will retire in January.

The hostess, who wore a gown of dark blue lace, was assisted by Mrs. George Pettingill, wife of the Commandant of the Navy Yard; Mrs. Thomas Hart, wife of Rear Admiral Hart; Mrs. John Russell, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps; Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, wife of Rear Admiral Andrews, and Mrs. Emory S. Land, wife of Rear Admiral Land.

Mrs. Alfred Johnson, wife of Rear Admiral Johnson; Mrs. H. E. Lackey, wife of Rear Admiral Lackey; Mrs. Chester Nimitz, wife of Capt. Nimitz, U. S. N.; Mrs. Forrest Royal, whose husband was aid to Admiral Standley last year, and Mrs. Arthur Ayrault and Mrs. Roscoe Schuirmann, whose husbands are aids to the admiral this year, and Mrs. Norman Smith.

Among the younger members of Washington society who assisted Mrs. Standley were Miss Catherine Knox, Miss Catherine Nimitz, Miss Isabelle Hart, Miss Betsy Rowan, Miss Priscilla Watson and Miss Christine Gawne.

Miss Mary Dwight Will Be Honored At Two Dinners

Mr. John McLean, son of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, will entertain at a dinner on Friday evening in honor of Miss Mary Dwight, whose wedding to Mr. John McAfee Preston will take place on Saturday at Epiphany Church.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. John Henry Dwight, mother of the bride-to-be, will give a dinner in her daughter's honor at the Chevy Chase Club. On Sunday Mr. Edward Gardiner entertained at a cocktail in honor of the engaged couple, His niece, Miss Mary Louise Marsh, is a member of the wedding party.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Harrison, of Evanston, Ill., have arrived in Washington and are stopping at the Shoreham for a few days before going to New York City.

Mr. Angus Duke, Miss St. George Will Be Married

Tobacco Heir, Roosevelt Cousin Will Be Wed on January 2.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. St. George, of New York City and Tuxedo Park, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Priscilla St. George, to Angier Biddle Duke, son of Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson and the late Angier Buchanan Duke. The wedding will take place January 2, at St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church, Tuxedo Park.

Miss St. George's mother is a daughter of Mrs. Price Collier, sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, and therefore a first cousin of President Roosevelt and the late Warren Delano Robbins.

Party Will Mark Golden Wedding

Johan Kondrups to Be Guests of Daughter at Fete Wednesday, Nov. 4.

Mrs. Frank L. Peckham has issued invitations for a reception Wednesday evening, November 4, in her home at 2556 Thirty-sixth street, in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johan Kondrup.

Mr. and Mrs. Kondrup are unusual in this city of frequent comings and goings in that they were both born in Washington and have lived in the same house in Georgetown for 39 years. Mrs. Kondrup is the former Miss Theresa Johnson and her wedding took place in the parsonage of St. Patrick's Church. She has another daughter, Mrs. J. Winter Graves, and one grandchild, Mr. Kondrup Graves, who is engaged in engineering work in Peru.

There have been 300 guests invited to the reception, which is from 8 to 10 p. m.

Mrs. Joseph Auerbach is passing a week in New York with her son, Mr. Joseph Auerbach, jr.

Society Notes

The Ambassador of Spain and Senora de los Rios, and the Minister of Canada and Lady Marler, who recently presented their credentials to President Roosevelt, were received yesterday for tea by Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, in her apartment at the Carlton Hotel.

The Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis have issued invitations for a dinner Thursday evening at the legation on Massachusetts avenue.

Representative Aubert C. Dunn, of Meridian, Miss., is stopping at the Hotel Raleigh enroute to the North, where he will make a series of campaign speeches for President Roosevelt.

In Mr. Dunn's party are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gaithright and Mrs. Jim Tims, also of Meridian, Miss., who will accompany him on the trip.

The Counselor of the Hungarian Legation, Mr. Anthony de Balasy, has left for a short vacation in Mexico, where he will remain until early next month.

Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor and her daughter, Miss Gloria Grosvenor, will return this evening from a stay of several days in New York City.

On Friday, November 6, Mrs. Grosvenor and her daughter, a debutante of the season, will entertain at a luncheon at their home, Wild Acres, for Mlle. Therese de Laboulaye, daughter of the French Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton Phillips have leased a house on Ashmeade place for the winter. Mrs. Phillips is the former Miss Natalie Keeney, of Washington, and spent the summer in Wilmington, N. C. She and Mr. Phillips have been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Campbell Prichett.

Mrs. Louise Ayres Robert and her mother, Mrs. C. D. Pearson, of Atlanta, Ga., are visiting Col. and Mrs. John H. Hester at their home in Washington. Mrs. Hester entertained at luncheon yesterday in their honor.

Mme. Fahmy Wissa Bey Feted at Newport.

Mme. Fahmy Wissa Bey, a leading feminist of Egypt who visited the Capital recently, was guest of honor at a team given last weekend in Newport by Mrs. James Griswold Wentz at her home there. Following the tea, Mme. Wissa gave a brief talk on her work.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules White, of Pittsburgh, are the guests of the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Palkin.

Mrs. Woodring Is Guest As 'Plumes' Opens Here

Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, was a guest of the Misses Eleanor and Justine Corby last night for the opening of Sophie Treadwell's new play, "Plumes in the Dust," starring Henry Hull, at the National Theater. The performance drew an audience including many members of official and diplomatic society despite the fact that the great Austrian violinist, Fritz Kreisler, was appearing at Constitution Hall.

After a few weeks in which no choice has been necessary in things to attend, with usually only one important entertainment in an evening, Washington last night had music and the theater, Sunday music and the horse show and tonight has the opening concert of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, with several other affairs of lesser magnitude also claiming attention.

Last night's performance was sponsored as a scholarship fund benefit by the Washington Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi, national women's fraternity, and many prominent Pi Phis were in the audience. Mrs. Robert Dyer was one of those who entertained at a large box party. She was in black velvet with rhinestone girdle and band at the neck.

With the Misses Corby, in addition to Mrs. Woodring, was Miss Elizabeth Hawes, of New York, noted dress designer, who is their guest. Mrs. Woodring wore black velvet with a velvet wrap and ermine collar, attractive with her fair hair. Miss Eleanor Corby was in a purple and blue brocade, made with a tight bodice, a gown she brought home from her summer trip to Germany. Miss Hawes was in a gown of her own design, called Serena Blandish, made of blue nun's veiling and embroidered in gold, silver and blue.

Mrs. Ernest Walker and her son, Mr. Mannix Walker, were among those who attended the play. Mrs. William Wallace Chiswell was accompanied by Mrs. E. S. Seigle, of New York City.

The Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza, one of the regular first-nighters, and the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. don Umberto Cugia, Marquis of Sant'Orsola, another who has been attending the openings this season, were greeting friends in the foyer during the intermission.

In a seat far back in the theater was a person who remained unnoticed by most of those who attended—Miss Treadwell, dressed in black and taking care not to be recognized as author of the play. Also there by special invitaiton were Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson and Miss Elisabeth Poe.

A Woman's NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

WHILE the celebrated Simpson case is having its day in court—as loyal and reticent England plays its little game of "hush-hush!" and some of our newspapers go quite mad—I am sitting quietly in my chimney corner and chuckling, in a lady-like way, at how Prof. Walter D. Pitkin must be feeling these days.

It was the good professor, of course, you remember, who stirred up the folks with his fetchingly titled "Life Begins at Forty." Now the lively Wally, who should probably be known as "Her Peppiness," arises to confirm the pedagoguge's most cheering words.

If she has done nothing else, Mrs. S. has focused the world's attention on the fact that the day of the woman who "lets herself go" at 40 is as dead as the ornithorhynchus, if any. At the age when our grandmas definitely gave in to the lace cap, the black silk and the cane-bottomed rocker, this zestful Baltimorean is at the very top of her game—which is good enough to enthrall the bachelor monarch who presides over half the earth.

If any of us need a lesson in pulling up our socks and keeping on punching, the vivid daughter of the old Free State has certainly administered it. Cynics snickered at Pitkin's book and its box-office title when the tome hit the book-stalls. I know the fellow well, for he professed me for a time at Columbia. I think I'll call him up and say, "Well, Doc, you win!"

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—All is sunshine and laughter again at the Harrison Williams home, I suppose, since the missus once more has been named the best-dressed woman in the world by a Parisian jury whose business it is to sell elegant clothes. My sleuths are still trying to snoot out how and why she missed in '35. The foundations of the republic tottered there for a spell!

Our department stores are getting rosy with service all the time. Now one is specializing in inexpensive and soothing massage for that occupation disease of our sex known as "shopper's foot," while another cheerily announces a perpetual "food show," whereat we may not only pass along eyeing the toothsome grub, but may grab a tidbit here and there—free. Why go home at all? . . .

Our town's famous cat expert, Eleanor Booth Simmons, like sto tell the story of Tommy Lamb, famous tom cat mascot and pet of the Lambs Club and known to all the actor members as "the great lover of Forty-fourth street." Eleanor says James Montgomery Flagg is going to paint Tommy's portrait soon, unless the tom's sparring partners ruin his beauty first . . .

Clinging momentarily to the subject of our dumb chums, as Wodehouse says, one of our inspired shops advertises innerspring beds for dogs—the 24 springs being covered with felt! And there is a ducky litle mattress, too, stuffed with kapok and cedar shavings. And do you remember how people used to say, "Gee, I wouldn't treat a dawg that way?" . . .

The local board of school supgrintendents, after years of deep thought, has just come up with a honey of an idea. They have actually decided to place women principals in charge of all girls' high schools! I have a notion that anyone but school superintendents would have figured that out early in 1822, or less.

There's a new handbag wrinkle, which is raging at present among our young girls. I pass it along. If you have a mink coat, trim your brown bag with a mink head or tail. If the coat is black sealskin, the handbag gets a strip of seal instead of metal across the top. The same, obviously, goes for all furs. It's cute and new—but don't ask me for old, odd strips of mink and so on! That's your problem!

Shoe Wardrobe Demands Planning

Several Pairs For Ensemble Best Economy

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

The season's shoe wardrobe should be planned as carefully as the season's supply of frocks and hats. It is an economy to buy several pairs, or even an entire shoe wardrobe, if the purse permits, at one time. The same pair of shoes should never be worn two days in succession, according to authorities. When this is done, the expanded leather does not have a chance to contract properly and the life of the shoe is not only shortened considerably, but the original shape is soon lost.

If you can afford only two pairs of shoes to get you through a season of daytime wear, alternate their wearing. They will wear better and longer and keep up a good appearance indefinitely—if they are of a good grade to begin with. It is also false economy to buy cheap shoes; this is one place in the wardrobe where budgeting just doesn't pay.

When shoes are removed they should be thoroughly brushed and placed in shoe trees. A pair of trees for every pair of shoes you own is an absolute must, if you want your footwear to retain its original smart contour. Shoes that have become wet from rain or snow should be immediately placed on trees and allowed to dry slowly—never near a radiator, as this tends to crack the leather and is bad for both soles and uppers.

Run-down heels are not only a mark of carelessnes in the wearer but they are hard on both the shoes and feet. If the heel is out of balance, so is the shoe; if one doesn't walk properly because of this hitch in equilibrium, the entire body is thrown out of balance. It is necessary to have a graceful and proper carriage these days to be able to wear the smart "swing" and period-influenced costumes, or the general picture is incongruous instead of chic.

Shoes this season are surprisingly varied, and this goes for materials, designing and trimming methods. They have echoed all of the clever ideas in the style scene, period influences, moderne touches and the intricate "dressmaker" details. There are the new bandaged and corseted shoes to give the illusion of slimness; ankles as well as waistlines are belted and buckled; buttoned-up frocks and buttoned-up boots are synonymous; back interest in frocks has inspired shoes with interesting back treatment; smart touches of color accent appear on costumes and shoes alike.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl's Love for Man Shorter Than She Is Cause of Great Distress to Her Parents; She Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been going with a young man for almost a year and am very much in love with him. He is so thoughtful, kind and considerate. And yet the thing that arouses so much discussion and makes us both so miserable is the fact that he is shorter than I am! That minor difference, Miss Haworth, has caused me so much unhappiness!

• • • •

My parents are continually telling me how people criticize me when I am seen with him. They feel that people don't look up to or respect a small man. My mother says her nerves won't stand much more if this affair continues. It worries and humiliates her when people tell her they can't understand what I see in him, and comment on the few inches difference in our heights.

• • • •

My love for my mother is such that I wouldn't do anything in this world to hurt her—but isn't there some way of explaining to her that it is foolish to worry over such a trivial matter as I feel this to be?

• • • •

I have told you all there is to tell, Miss Haworth. There is honestly nothing wrong with this dear boy except the lack of a few inches in height when I'm walking on high heels; and, too, because he can't compete with Robert Taylor in looks. Please help me. I am in desperate need of some real good advice. Sincerely,

PUZZLED POLLY.

Absurd Objection.

DEAR PUZZLED POLLY: It is almost beyond belief that a mother in full possession of her faculties would become hysterical over her daughter's love for a fine young man who was not quite as tall as she. It is news to me that persons do not look up to or respect a small man. I did not know that inches had anything to do with character, ability or personality—and I am sure this would be the consensus of opinion of all intelligent persons. It seems quite probable to me that the man of less-than-average stature, subconsciously realizing his slight psychological handicap, would compensate for it by developing more outstanding and compelling intellectual capabilities than his six-foot fellowman, who might be tempted to let his physical appearance carry him through.

• • • •

It must be that your parents have some other objection to the young man than his height—or lack of it—and that they are trusting to the weapon of ridicule of this particular feature to break up a match, which they object to for reasons which they are not admitting to you.

• • • •

Persons who openly criticize another's physical features, and make such features the basis for argument against social acceptance of the individual criticized, are violating every precept of good taste and good breeding, which stems from a kindly heart. Persons who voice such criticism are more to be avoided than the person criticized, in my opinion. I cannot feel that your parents are doing a very admirable thing in lend an ear to the young man's critics, in letting such opinions influence their attitude, or in retailing those boorish remarks to you.

• • • •

If you are old enough to shoulder the serious responsibility entailed in choosing a lifetime companion; if you are quite sure the young man is a splendid character and that your parents' only possible objection to him is his lack of height, and that it is only your high heels which make him appear shorter than you, then my advice to you is to turn a deaf ear to this most ungenerous attack on your happiness. Discard your high heels, dress to make your inches correspond more closely to those of your young man, and leave it to your parents to get control of themselves.

• • • •

Your willingness to consider your mother's feelings is a beautiful, an admirable, a precious attribute; but in my opinion she is placing too heavy a tax on filial devotion by threatening to have a nervous collapse if you continue your romance with the short-statured young man. However, too many women are given to such hysterical threats. The thing that surprises me is that your father backs her up in it. Men as a rule show more good sense. It is just possible you may have to hurt your mother in order to achieve happiness for yourself. And it will take courage to hurt her. Also, there is the possibility that if you should marry the young man, she and your father will never let the relationship alone, but will redouble their efforts to break up the marriage, having failed to break up the courtship.

• • • •

This is a problem which no one but yourself can really solve. You must choose between bending to your parents' wishes and asserting your own right to name your own husband.

M. H.

'Fit the Crime' In Punishment Parents Told

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

PUNISHMENTS can be divided into three general classes. The first, and unfortunately the most prevalent one, is punishment for revenge. Parents do not always realize that when they punish a child for a piece of carelessness, they are often merely giving vent to their own spleen.

"You have injured me, so I'll pay you back," is the real thought in their minds. This kind of punishment is childish, and only rouses resentment in the victim.

Next there is the type of punishment which aims to terrify the child so that he will not repeat the offense. The theory is that when a child does wrong he must be so severely punished that the fear of consequences will prevent him from repeating his wrongdoing.

In time, however, the memory of the punishment fades or the child outgrows his fear. Often he will decide in favor of the offense. There is nothing lasting or rational in such a foolish system.

The third form of punishment looks ahead and builds for the future. It is consistent, well thought out, and imaginative. Often it contains a hint of humor, and it is always impersonal. It is best described in the line, "to make the punishment fit the crime."

The penalty should grow out of the offense, and seem as natural and inevitable as fate. Nature punishes those who break her laws, and if one trees as far as possible to imitate nature's methods, the child certainly should be able to see the justice of the punishment.

One should never seek retribution for what is past, but should try to construct for the future. If this course is followed punishments will be infrequent, but effective.

Directoire Suit Offered For the Cocktail Party

Paris (U.P.).—For cocktail wear, Jean Patou makes a suit of directoire inspiration. The black wool skirt is slim fitting and comes to ankle length. The directoire jacket is short in front like a man's waistcoat, then swoops down in back in a flaring basque. The blouse is made of white slipper satin with a high neck and frilled jabot.

Suit for Country Wear.

Paris (U.P.).—Jean Patou makes a practical suit for country wear in plaid wool. The divided skirt is of red, white and green plaid and is worn with a high-necked red woolen sweater. The tailored jacket is of green wool and is matched by a green felt hat.

High Colors New In Bathroom Linen

Are Stealing Limelight From Former Pastel Hues.

This year lace and linen do not tell the whole story when you are considering your table and bathroom linen.

High colors as dubonnet, chartreuse, brown, bright reds, dark blues and even black, are invading the linen field and are stealing the limelight from the pastel colors that have reigned undisputed for so long.

Dinner cloths, luncheon sets, hand towels, Turkish towels and wash cloths all come in these high colors this fall and can be had in solid hues, or in designs emphasizing the colors. They add a refreshing note of newness to the scheme of decoration and may mean a new deal for our linen closets.

Women have now learned that, with reasonable care, they can rely on the colors to be steadfast.

We have long been used to hand-blocked luncheon sets, bridge sets, guest towels and runners, but it is something new to have a hand-blocked dinner coth. These are not mere upstarts, but have a definite place in our dining rooms.

Cup Good Substitute For Pie Chimney Use

English cooks use a china device called a pie chimney for preventing fruit pies from boiling over into the oven. It is set in the middle of the pie before the top crust is put in place. The opening in this funnel-like arrangement permits the escape of steam and helps to prevent the juice from bubbling over.

Fur Bow Knots.

Paris (U.P.).—Fur collars this season can be of almost any shape. High round collars are shown on most of the new coats, although great bow knots of fur, or flat applied pieces of fur trim the necks of many coats.

Family Too Small For One Turkey Given Helpful Hint

IF A TURKEY is too large for your small family and you are turkey hungry, buy half of a bird.

If your butcher hesitates, find some friend who has the same craving, yet the same difficulty with the size of her family, and buy the bird between you.

The meat man surely will do you the favor of drawing it, splitting it through the center, and weighing the halves so you can estimate the cooking time.

To prepare one-half of a turkey, put toothpicks or small skewers close together along the two cut edges of the skin. Put your stuffing in the bird and lace up the fowl with white twine. The neck skin can be sewed together neatly. Stick a steel skewer through the wing and one through the leg and tie the lacing around. In this way they will be held close to the body.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE HAVE always been fascinated by the amazing intricacy of Oriental rug patterns . . . what the designs stand for, how they were conceived. We read a book once that enhanced our interest in the motifs of these floor coverings. The book was "Of Human Bondage" by W. Somerset Maughan,—here is the part about rugs that caught our attention and has lingered in our thoughts ever since:

"Have you ever been to the Cluny, (the museum in Paris)? There you will see Persian carpets of the most exquisite hue and of a pattern the beautiful intricacy of which delights and amazes the eye. In them you will see the mystery and the sensual beauty of the East, the roses of Hafiz and the wine-cup of Omar; but presently you will see more. You were asking just now what was the meaning of life. Go and look at those Persian carpets, and one of these days the answer will come to you."

This was Cronshaw, the poet, speaking to Philip, the leading figure in the book. It was years before Philip came to understand what Cronshaw had meant, but eventually the answer did come to him:

Out of the manifold events of his life, his deeds, his feelings, his thoughts, he might make a design, regular, elaborate, complicated or beautiful. . . . In the vast warp of life . . . a man might get a personal satisfaction in selecting the various strands that worked out the pattern. There was one pattern, the most obvious, perfect and beautiful, in which a man was born, grew to manhood, married, produced children, toiled for his bread, and died; but there were others, intricate and wonderful. . . . Whatever happened to him now would be one more motive to add to the complexity of the pattern, and when the end approached, he would rejoice in its completion. It would be a work of art, and it would be none the less beautiful because he knew of its existence.

Trotzky Sues Oslo Paper.

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 26 (AP).—The conciliation board today admitted the libel suit of Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian Bolshevist leader, against the newspaper Arbeideren, Norway's principal Communist organ. Trotzky last Saturday said the suit was based on a dispatch from Moscow which accused Trotzky of co-operating with the German secret police.

Contract Bridge

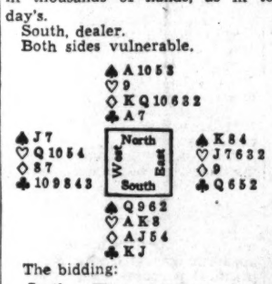
By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

"Without exception the world's greatest player and teacher," Ely Culbertson says.

Why Guess?

It is not, as a rule, the average declarer's misplays that cost him so dearly; in the large majority of cases it is the things he leaves undone. Errors of commission, if not too frightful, often may be righted by subsequent cleverness; errors of omission can seldom be straightened out. The cashing of a trick at the proper time is the key to success in thousands of hands, as in today's.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 N T	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

North and South were not using asking bids.

West opened the ten of clubs; declarer won with the King, and drew two rounds of diamonds. He then cashed the Ace and King of hearts, discarding one of dummy's spades, and then with much agonizing attempted to guess the position of the outstanding spade honors. Fortune, however, did not crown his efforts.

After leading to the spade Ace, he returned a small spade toward his Queen-nine. East, not being charitably inclined, played low on the second round. Without the slightest hesitation, declarer now attempted to force the King by playing his own nine spot. All he managed to force, however, was the Jack from West's hand, and West now had the perfectly simple exit of a club into dummy's blank Ace. The spade King still had to be conceded to East for the setting trick.

This hand could hardly have been easier, entailing as it did the simplest form of elimination play. After winning the opening club lead (no matter in which hand) declarer should have drawn the outstanding trumps. He then should have cashed the other club and played the Act and King of hearts, discarding a spade from dummy on the latter, after which the third heart should have been ruffed. Then the South hand should have been entered with a trump, and a low spade led to dummy's ten.

Regardless of the position of the King and Jack, this would have assured declarer against losing more than one spade trick. If East won the ten with the Jack, he would either have to return a spade, giving declarer a free finesse against the King, or a suit that declarer could ruff while dummy was discarding its last spade.

There are enough unavoidable guesses at bridge without creating new ones.

Three Days Remain to Enter Post Presidential Poll Contest

Deadline for Entries Is Midnight Friday; Letters Explaining Predictions Must Be Submitted by All Contestants for $1,000 in Cash Prizes.

There are only three more days in which readers of The Washington Post may compete for 34 prizes totaling $1,000 in cash awards in The Post's 1936 Presidential poll contest.

All entries must be in the hands of the contest editor not later than midnight, Friday, October 30, or mailed in envelopes postmarked before that time.

Read the rules and regulations of the contest carefully. Then clip the accompanying Presidential poll prediction form, fill it in, write a letter explaining how and why you made your predictions, and mail the letter and coupon to The Contest Editor, The Washington Post.

Purpose: To encourage interest and study on the part of the public in methods of measuring public opinion on important national issues.

Requirements: Each contestant must write a letter of 250 words or less, describing his, or her, method and material used, between now and October 30, in arriving at predictions on:

1. The winner of the Presidential election. 2. The States carried by the winning candidate. Contest letters, on the merits of which prizes will be awarded, must be accompanied by the contestan's predictions, indicated on the Presidential Poll Prediction Form printed on this page, or on a facsimile of that form drawn by the contestant. (Letters will not be judged on the basis of literary merit—but, rather, on the clearness, conciseness and simplicity of the contestant's explanation of the method and the material used in arriving at his, or her, predictions. The letter of a 15-year-old schoolboy or girl — which tells, briefly and clearly, how he, or she, arrived at conclusions as to which candidate would win and which States he would carry — will be judged on an equal basis with that of a political expert.

Rules: 1. It is not necessary that contestants be subscribers to The Washington Post. (Copies of America Speaks polls, special articles on election trends in various parts of the country and other similar material of assistance to the contestant may be obtained at The Washington Post Building at The Post library, or in copies of The Post on file at the various public libraries.)

2. All contest entries must be in by midnight, Friday, October 30, 1936. (All contest letters accompanied by Presidential Poll Prediction Forms, must be received at The Washington Post Building, E street at Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., by that time, or in mailed envelopes postmarked previous to that time.)

3. All persons are eligible to enter the contest, with the exception of employes of The Washington Post and employes of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

4. Each contestant may submit only one entry.

5. The Washington Post will be the sole judge in awarding the 34 cash prizes, totaling $1,000.

6. Winners will be announced as soon as possible after official results of the election are known and the winners of first, second, third and fourth prizes must call in person at The Washington Post to receive their awards. Checks will be mailed to the other 30 winners.

Prizes: First, $500; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50; fifth prize to thirty-fourth prize, $5.00 each.

Jury Inquest Set In Sewer Fatality

A coroner's jury tomorrow will investigate a cave-in at the District's Blue Plains sewage disposal plant which caused the death of Crestes Patrick Burke, 34, of 3336 Prospect avenue northwest.

Burke was killed October 20 when he was crushed under falling earth when the walls of a sewer excavation gave way. Working with Charles Wood, 27, of 326 Raleigh place southeast, Burke was installing pipe lines.

According to police, a light wood framework, holding back the earth, gave way burying the man underneath. Wood was rescued. When Burke was removed from the cave-in he was taken to Providence Hospital where he died.

Oil Promoter Found Dead.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 26 (AP).—Holland S. Reavis, 60, wealthy oil promoter, editor and writer, was found dead shortly before noon today at his home in Amherst County. His body was found dangling from two belts in the attic.

Appeal Is Denied Man Who Threatened King

London, Oct. 26 (AP).—George Andrew McMahon today was denied permission to appeal his conviction of producing a revolver "with intent to alarm his majesty" at King Edward's constitution hill parade last July. He has been sentenced to a year at hard labor.

Lord Chief Justice Hewart termed McMahon's story that he had been approached by an agent of a "foreign power" to shoot the King as a "cock and bull story." McMahon has asserted he had intended tossing a revolver at the feet of the monarch's horse to put him on guard and "save" him from death.

The astonishing story of GULFPRIDE

THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

For only GULFPRIDE is made from choice Pennsylvania crude...refined to equal the best motor oils on the market ... and then further refined by Gulf's exclusive Alchlor process.

This process was developed by Gulf after 15 years of scientific research—the kind of painstaking research that is behind every Gulf product.

Read the facts below. Then replace your summer-worn oil with WINTER GULFPRIDE now. At all Gulf dealers.

A GULFPRIDE USER* drove from Bennington, Vt. to Portland, Ore., averaging 400 miles a day. He did not add a single drop of oil. An unusual record, yes. But expect GULFPRIDE to take you farther before you need a quart than any other oil you ever used.

EASTERN AIR LINES'* Great Silver Fleet uses GULFPRIDE only in every one of its 21 mighty planes. No other oil will do, because no other oil can match GULFPRIDE — the world's finest motor oil — for safety, stamina, and low cost per mile. *That's just as true in your car, too.

BEATING THE BEST.* No other process refines oil so thoroughly as Gulf's Alchlor process. When a blend of 6 of the finest Pennsylvania motor oils—already highly refined—was put through this process, 20% waste came out. Proof that the Alchlor process makes GULFPRIDE finer than the finest other Pennsylvania oils.

WARNING!* Winter's on its way. Don't get caught with thick summer oil in your crankcase. Drain and refill with WINTER GULFPRIDE. This oil tops all U. S. Government specifications for winter motor oil. It flows freely below zero, starts quickly, saves your motor and battery. Don't delay—refill today.

BE PREPARED! CHANGE TO WINTER GULFPRIDE

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

Samuel Lubell, The Post's Federal Diarylst, has been called to New York City by illness in his family. His column today is written by Col. Charles Stengle, president of the A. F. G. E., who suggests a program for elimination of overlapping Government agencies without throwing workers out of a job.

By Col. Charles I. Stengle.

President, American Federation Government Employes.

Economy.

Prospects of Government employes' legislation are much to the fore at this time in view of the coming session of Congress, which convenes in January, and the fact that two and possibly three committees will report to Congress, probably during that month, on personnel problems and Government reorganization.

It has been no secret for some months that a great deal of pressure for economy will be brought to bear during the coming session. Various propagandists for economy have been active during the past year, and as far as some of these are concerned it would appear that their principal interest in balancing the budget is to cut as deeply as possible into the jobs and income of Government employes.

Fortunately, the American public has been educated during the past few years, through the activities of the American Federation of Government Employes, and otherwise, to a realization that the employes of Uncle Sam, for the most part, are hard-working, conscientious men and women who obtained their jobs on the basis of merit and who hold them on the same basis.

The public understands at last that the Government employe is not a highly paid, inefficient taxeater, but a man or woman who for the most part receives a small salary and is for the greater part of the year overloaded with work.

There is still a feeling in many quarters that although Government employes work hard for their money, there are perhaps too many of them. The size of the governmental establishment, of course, is by no means determined by the employes themselves, but is a matter for Congress and the President to decide.

Neither Congress nor the President is likely to create new agencies unless there are sound reasons for their existence and a widespread popular demand for them. As a matter of fact, every governmental agency now included in the present establishment was set up because some important group demanded it; and when those persons who clamor most vigorously for governmental personnel reduction are asked what agencies they would eliminate they find it rather difficult to pick them out.

As a matter of fact, I imagine Senator Byrd's committee has already found this to be the case, and that the task of reorganization, a task on which a good many able men have thrown up their hands, is not as easy as it looks.

Overtime.

Of course, in an establishment as great as that of the United States Government, where agencies have grown up without effective co-ordination at all times, there is sure to be duplication and overlapping, and if these can be eliminated and a greater degree of co-ordination brought about, that will be an accomplishment of real importance. There is undoubtedly room for work along those lines, and room for work along the lines followed by the President's personnel commitee, which will endeavor to bring about a more unified administrative system.

The report of the committee on overtime, however, will undoubtedly show that Government employes work a great deal of overtime and that if they are placed on reasonable, human hours, a great deal of overlapping and duplication can be eliminated without justifying any reduction whatever in Government personnel.

I believe it will be found that this represents the real situation, and whatever the pressure for economy, the American Federation of Government Employes will hold unflinchingly to the position that adequate wages and suitable standards of working conditions must be maintained in the Government service.

Our legislative program calls for a minimum wage of $1,500 per annum for all full-time employes—certainly a fair and reasonable wage under present-day conditions. It calls for the five-day week, in line with enlightened practice in a great many private industries. It calls for extension of the merit system and for extension of the classification act to the field; it calls for 30-year optional retirement, for night differential, for payment of prevailing wage, for repeal of Section 213—the so-called married persons clause—for establishment of a career service, for optional S. L. and for creation of a civil service board of appeals.

Enactment of this legislative program, I submit, would do more to promote efficiency and high morale in the Government employ than any other measures that could possibly be taken. The satisfied employe is always the best employe.

200,000 Here Will Witness Navy Day Fete

Roosevelt and Swanson Congratulate Service for Efficiency.

Proclaimed by President Roosevelt and Secretary Claude A. Swanson, Navy Day will be celebrated today wherever the American flag flies, with more than 200,000 persons expected to join in Washington's observance.

From 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. the gates of Washington Navy Yard will be open to visitors, for whom an elaborate war pageant, including aerial bombings, gun drills and a sham battle will be staged. Officials predicted last year's record attendance of 171,240 will be shattered.

Large crowds are expected at the Naval Observatory, which will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and, by special card, from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Exercises will be held at 12:15 p. m. at the John Paul Jones Monument in West Potomac Park at the foot of Seventeenth street, sponsored by the Military Order of the World War and the advisory board of Masonic clubs in the district.

Capt. C. W. Nimitz, assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation, will speak on "Sea Power and the United States Navy" before the Civitan Club meeting at the Hotel Mayflower.

President's Letter.

"The yearly recurrence of Navy Day," said President Roosevelt yesterday in a letter to Secretary Swanson, "is to me personally a happy reminder of my delightful association with the naval service.

"Although happily we are on terms of peace and amity with all nations, we cannot close our eyes to the fact that in many parts of the world conditions are disquieting and signs are portentous. An efficient Navy, adequate in men and material, is entirely compatible with the good neighbor policy enunciated by this Administration as the keystone of its foreign relations. We rejoice that we are at peace with all mankind.

"In congratulating the Navy on its splendid efficiency, I desire to emphasize the fact that an adequate defensive force is, at the same time, an instrument of peace and good-will. We, as a people, seek no conquest. We have no imperial designs. We are actuated by a stern determination to avoid armed conflict by every honorable means.

"I salute the American Navy and believe the American people share a common pride in its purpose and in its traditions."

Swanson Gratified.

In a message to all United States naval ships and shore stations, Secretary Swanson voiced gratification "that recent legislation assures us a Navy that by 1942 will have attained present treaty limits."

"The sympathetic attitude of the Administration, the Congress, the public and the press," he said, "is inspiring and justifies the pride we take in our service. It is to stimulate the interest of the people of this country in their Navy, responsibilities and aspirations, that the Navy is at home on its ships and shore stations on Navy Day.

"A more intimate knowledge of our life and purposes will cause the American people to recognize in our Navy an instrument designed to preserve the peace and security of our country. Vessels in United States waters full dress ship from 8 a. m. until sunset Tuesday, October 27."

Representing months of painstaking preparation, under supervision of Commandant George T. Pettengill, the Navy Yard program will be replete with thrills and color. Vessels in port for the occasion are the destroyer Claxton, the new Coast Guard cutter William J. Duane and the well-known cutter Apache.

Marines to Land.

All-day band concerts, hourly deep-sea-diving exhibitions, the firing of a torpedo, a rubber-ball bombing of the Navy Yard, a parade of sailors, marines and coast guardsmen, life-saving demonstrations, antiaircraft-gun drills, formation flying—these are but a few of the attractions which will be set before the throngs today.

Climax of the day's events will be a sham battle, scheduled for 4:30 p. m., in which marines from the Fleet Marine Force, Quantico, Va., will simulate landing operations against a hostile shore.

Visitors also will be permitted to view the drop-forging of gun parts, manufacture of cartridge cases, pouring of molten brass and other operations—rarely shown to outsiders—of the naval gun factory.

Statue of Liberty Essay Wins for Girl

Edna Falk, 17-year-old high school student of Pueblo, Colo., was announced yesterday as the winner of a gold medal, a round trip to New York and a round trip to France in a Statue of Liberty essay contest.

The girl, according to the National Park Service, will attend rededication ceremonies at the Statue tomorrow when President Roosevelt will give an address. The contest was sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

More than 100,000 high school boys and girls between 14 and 18 competed, said the Park Service, which maintains the Statue of Liberty. Second prize winner was Beverly Jane Rank, 16, of Salt Lake City, and third place went to Frances Ross, 16, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

District Youth Held as Driver In Auto Death

Arrest Made a Few Hours After Hit-Run Victim Succumbs.

Eugene Edward Ballenger, 18, of the 1100 block of Olivet road northeast, was arrested s a fugitive of justice late yesterday on a hit-and-run charge a few hours after Charles R. Anderson, 30, of 4223 Lee avenue, Boulevard Heights, Md., died in Casualty Hospital as the result of injuries suffered Sunday, when he was struck by an automobile on the Marlboro pike, near Maryland Club Gardens.

Detective Sergt. William J. Liverman, the arresting officer, said the windshield and door of the youth's car were broken. Ballenger asserted, according to Liverman, that he was driving on the Marlboro pike Sunday with five other young persons and "struck something," but failed to realize it "might have been a person."

Several persons were injured in traffic accidents in and around the District yesterday.

Woman Badly Hurt.

Mrs. Mary B. Yates, 43, of 1243 East Capitol street, was injured seriously late last night when she was struck by an automobile at Fifteenth and Allison streets northwest, driven, police said, by Robert M. Dawson, 23, of the 5500 block of First street northwest.

Physicians at Emergency Hospital found she had suffered a skull fracture. They said they would have her transferred to Mount Alto Hospital as soon as her condition permits. She is a former yeomanette.

Police said the car was driven by Samuel Lumine, of Reading, Pa. Brauer was taken to Casualty Hospital, where physicians said his condition was serious, but not critical.

"Hit-Run" Case.

William Docket, 25, colored, of Clinton, Md., suffered skull injuries when his automobile was struck and overturned by the car of a hit-and-run driver at Sixteenth street and Benning road northeast. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Dr. W. Allen Griffith, of Berwyn, Md., chief physician at the University of Maryland, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when his automobile was crushed between two heavy trucks on the Baltimore boulevard, near College Park.

James K. Whitcomb, of Pikesville, Md., driver of one of the trucks, was given a summons to appear in police court. The physician was bruised slightly.

Mr. and Mr. Poore Married 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kengla Poore, who were married in St. Anne's Church half a century ago, and went to live in a house atop Mount St. Alban, site today of the Washington Cathedral, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today.

Their three daughters and their son will give them a party at their present home, 621 Irving street northwest.

Poore, who is 76, is eight years older than his wife, for years was a grocer and active in the Retail Grocers Association here. He joined the Bureau of Engraving and Printing staff years ago, however, and only recently was retired. Both Mr. and Mrs. Poore are natives of Washington.

Their children are Mrs. Lillian Sawyer, Mrs. K. C. Boyer, Mrs. Charles McDermott and Louis W. Poore. They have five grandchildren and a great grandchild.

A new red menace appeared yesterday.

But the Bureau of Fisheries has the situation well in hand. The 70 reds, of a type strange to Washington, have been tanked and their ears pinned back.

The invading element is known to the ichthyologist as Lepomis Duritus, to the fisherman as red-breasted bream and to the South Carolinian, suh, as rare eatin'.

For years the bureau has been trying to catch enough of these red-breasted fishes to set up an exhibit in the Commerce Building Aquarium. But something always happened. So it's no wonder Charles E. Jackson and Fred G. Orsinger, proudly surveying a tankful of healthy specimens yesterday, were extra gay.

"This was our third attempt to round up a collection," chortled Jackson, deputy commissioner of the bureau, "and it worked."

"You know," chimed in Orsinger, aquarium director, "these animals had a part in the outcome of the Revolutionary War."

No!

"Yes," answered Orsinger, who personally escorted the red breasts on the 600-mile truck ride from below Columbia, S. C. "You see, Lord Cornwallis was spending lots of money and using lots of men to protect his foothold in South Carolina. This did not please the king.

"What's the idea, going to so much trouble and expense planting the flag in those worthless parts," Orsinger paraphrased the message of George III to Cornwallis.

"'Chief,' replied Cornwallis, 'if for no other reason, the palatability and quantity of red-breasted sunfish in this neighborhood is justification enough to keep up the Carolina campaign.'"

That's Orsinger's story and he stoutly argues the history books bear it out.

The fish that captured Cornwallis' fancy is as scrappy as a bass, which makes it popular with anglers, achieves a length of 10 inches, weighs up to two pounds and has black flaps on either side of the head which look like ears, but aren't.

But its most distinctive feature is the vivid breast. The rest of the body has a pinkish tinge, giving the owner a perpetual blush. Red-breast bream are found principally in the Black, Lynches, Little Pee Dee and Edisto Rivers of South Carolina and less attractive ones may be caught in North Carolina and Georgia.

It should be stated, however, that this information comes from Jackson, who may be prejudiced in South Carolina's favor, because that's his State.

Boy, 13, Shot by Chum Playing 'Cops, Robbers'

Louis Dorsey, colored, 13, of 639 L street northwest, was seriously injured yesterday when he was shot in the abdomen by a playmate while they were playing "cops and robbers."

Police are holding Moses Mann, colored, 14, of 622 S street northwest, at the Receiving Home pending the outcome of Louis' wound. According to police, the boys were playing in a second-floor room of 918 Eleventh street northwest, when Louis was shot with a .32 caliber revolver.

Citizens Group Plans to Study 'Jitney Service'

Reaffirming its stand against extending the use of one-man street cars, the Trinidad Citizens Association last night appointed a committee to study the advisability of establishing "jitney service" on streets paralleling those where one-man cars are now in use.

The Trinidad citizens, in setting up the committee, declared the public should have the opportunity of determining the type of transportation it uses. Their action, they said, was intended to meet the contention of the Capital Transit Co., that the public is satisfied with the present form of transportation.

Resolutions were adopted favoring the establishment of the three-platoon system in the Fire Department and asking for more fire alarm boxes in the newly-built up area bounded by Morse street, Mount Olivet road, Trinidad road and Bladensburg road northeast.

The association opposed imposition of any additional automobile or gasoline tax on any diversion of the present tax from use in maintaining roads and bridges.

It was voted to ask Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, for a new elementary and junior high school to be located at Mount Olivet and Bldensburg roads northeast.

It also was voted to write President Roosevelt asking him to withhold acceptance of the resignation of William A. Roberts, people's counsel.

Officers elected are: President, George J. Cleary; first vice president, S. J. Shilling; second vice president, Mrs. J. M. Selby; secretary-treasurer, Martin J. Stecker. Cleary and John H. Thomas were named delegates to the federation.

Society to Honor Citizen

Washington's most outstanding man—whoever that may be—will be honored by the Society of Natives, it was decided at the society's monthly meeting held in the Washington Club last night.

A committee was appointed to study achievements of District natives and make a report to the organization. A certificate then will be presented to that person. No time limit was set for the committee's findings.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly and J. S. Duhamel, group historian, made short talks. Willam E. Richardson, recently elected, presided.

Roberts Puts Fiscal Plans In Bill Form

Proposal Would Set Up Permanent Body to Control Finances.

People's Counsel William A. Roberts yesterday began drafting a bill to establish a permanent commission on fiscal relations between District and Federal governments in response to a request from J. L. Jacobs, director of the President's survey.

The committee, which heard Roberts along with civic and trade representatives Friday and Saturday, expressed a desire to see his proposal in the form of legislation.

The proposed commission would include the three District Commissioners, Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of the Treasury and Director of the Budget.

Each year it would determine the amount of Federal contribution to be recommended to Congress in advance of preparation of the District budget by the commissioners.

Three-Fold Bases.

Its recommendation would be based upon findings in a three-fold inquiry, Roberts said:

First, it would determine as accurately as possible actual cost to the District of furnishing services to the Federal Government. Second, it would estimate the extra costs to the District of Capital improvements designed on a broad scale because they are for the National Capital. Finally, it would ascertain the amount taxpayers of the Nation should contribute to developing the Capital.

Roberts' bill also eliminates the necessity of the commissioners submitting their general budget to the Bureau of the Budget.

Repeals Some Laws.

After the fiscal relations committee arrives at its recommendation, the commissioners would draw up their budget and submit it to Congress together with estimates of anticipated revenue to cover all proposed expenditures.

The measure consequently carries a provision repealing several existing laws, including a requirement the District budget be approved by the Budget Bureau and the inoperative 60-40 law governing the Federal contribution.

The latter plan is an outgrowth of the study of District government he made several years ago under instruction of the Senate District Committee.

Brown Must Report.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan this week will call upon Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, to submit a report to the fiscal relations committee in justification of the size of the Metropolitan Police Department.

The justification, District officials believe, is necessary because of the remark of Clarence A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, that the 1,385 policemen seem "like an astronomical figure to me."

The committee will return to Washington November 7, after studying the mass of information submitted by the civic and trade spokesmen last week. No further public hearings are scheduled.

Seabrook Tells Fantastic Tale Of Black Magic

A beautiful Russian aristocrat, a half-dozen Bermuda onions, a hexagram painted on the door to the subconscious and a strange Chinese philosophy were some of the ingredients in a tale told last night by William Seabrook, author, adventurer and former alcoholic.

Chilled gasps of incredulity ran through the audience at Roosevelt High School, where Seabrook was lecturing under auspices of Sigma Tau Delta, Wilson Teachers College Society.

Seabrook has spent much of his life studying "black magic." In New York City he met a man named Alastair Crowley, who had a vast knowledge of a Chinese book called "Ye King." This knowledge the two frequently used to put into practice.

Try It on Anastasia.

Anastasia, instructed by Seabrook and Crowley, took a half-dozen specially designed sticks, threw them on the floor so that they made the pattern of a hexagram, a figure formed by six intersecting lines, forming a star.

Next Anastasia fixed the pattern of the hexagram firmly in her mind. She was told to close her eyes and imagine a wall in front of her, with a door in the wall, with the hexagram painted on the door. She was told to concentrate on that image.

She did.

Three-quarters of an hour elapsed while Seabrook and Crowley waited. Then Anastasia spoke.

"The door is opening," she said. "I'm going to go through."

There was silence for a moment. Then she spoke again, relating her experiences as she wandered about in a brightly subconscious world.

"There's snow on the ground . . . there's a wood . . . I'm running . . . the snow is driving hard into my face . . . but I don't feel cold . . . it's funny . . . I seem to be clothed in fur . . . why, I'm running on all fours . . . on all fours."

Seabrook and Crowley watched with considerable interest. It was apparent that Anastasia, for all impractical purposes, had been turned into a wolf.

Howl Clinches It.

It was even more apparent when she started to howl like one.

Seabrook said that he and Crowley began to feel quite unhappy. They tried to get Anastasia out of the trance. But when they snapped their fingers the beautiful young aristocrat curled back her lips in a snarl, leaped into the air and, landing on all fours, galloped madly about the room, finally hiding behind a davenport.

Stern methods seemed to be in order. After all, as Seabrook said, Antstasia was a nice, sweet girl and obviously couldn't spend the rest of her life running around on all fours snarling at people.

The two magicians bethought them of medieval cauldrons bubbling over with outlandish potions. Then they thought of a simpler remedy—onions. Onions, it appears, are always used in transmutation cases.

Luckily Crowley had a bag of onions in his kitchen, probably kept for occasions like this. Seabrook chopped up a number of choice specimens and let Anastasia sniff.

Presto! She became a girl again! And she was none the worse for her experience in running with the pack.

Court Orders Girl Enrolled In D.C. School

Corporation Counsel Plans to Appeal Ruling on Mandamus.

Eleven-year-old Lois Kemp was the possessor of a court victory yesterday and yet it may be months before she is permitted to enter Gordon Junior High School, the objective of her legal skirmishing with the corporation counsel and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Defeated in their efforts to keep the Clarendon, Va., girl out of Gordon on the grounds of nonresidence, Dr. Ballou, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal and Vernon E. West, the latter's assistant, will confer this morning on the question of admitting the child pending action on their appeal.

Justice Jennings Bailey, in District Court, yesterday signed a formal order directing the school superintendent to permit the enrollment of Lois, whose father is John S. Kemp, assistant disbursing officer in the Public Works Administration.

However, an appeal was noted immediately by West, which has the effect of suspending the writ of mandamus signed by Justice Bailey. Pending a verdict by the Court of Appeals, it is within the power of Dr. Ballou to deny the girl admittance.

Upon issuance of the court order, Robert E. Lynch, attorney for the Kemps, said he was "reliably informed" Gordon School has room for Lois—overcrowding led to the ban on nonresidents this semester—and that he would urge school officials to register his child client and keep her as a pupil in the interim.

It was indicated that Seal and West would recommend this course to Dr. Ballou today. Ever since the opening of the school year last month, Lois has been denied normal public school instruction, patronizing a Washington tutor instead.

Dr. Ballou asserted the Board of Education, as well as the corporation counsel's office, will have to pass upon the question before ny action is taken on the girl's plea. The next regularly scheduled meeting of the board is November 4.

Approval Expected For Road's Closing

The District Commissioners are expected to approve the Trinity College petition to close Lincoln road northeast from Franklin street to Michigan avenue as the result of a public hearing yesterday.

Although they deferred action pending a study by the District co-ordinating committee, indications were the proposal would be adopted as Glenwood Cemetery, which heretofore had opposed the change, withdrew its objection.

The plan includes extension of Franklin street across the south border of the campus and donation of land by the college. The property offered by the college exceeds by 57,000 square feet the Lincoln road section which it would absorb.

Trinity, through Daniel W. O'Donaghue, jr., argued the use of Lincoln road has retarded its development.

Rivers Floors Scott, Wins Split Decision at End of 10 Rounds

Texan Saved By Bell in Second

2,000 Watch Contest; Ingram Is Held to Draw by Straiges.

By Bill McCormick.

Saved by the bell in the second round, Howard Scott pulled himself together for a glorious finish at Turner's Arena last night, but that finish fell just short of earning him a draw against California Joe Rivers in the best lightweight fight the District ever has seen.

Judge Frank Schuyler and Referee Charley Reynolds balloted for Rivers, while Judge Bob Eller was declaring the hectic battle a stalemate as far as he was concerned. The bout was so fast and furious and so close that immediate steps were taken to rematch the two doughty gladiators for a 15-round encounter which would involve Scott's local title, not at stake last night.

A near-capacity crowd of 2,000, most of whom expected Scott to repeat his two previous victories over Rivers—scored out of town—was kept on its feet from bell to bell as first one clouter then the other rammed home staggering blows, shifting the tide of battle with almost every wallop.

Knocked Down Three Times.

Rivers' blows packed just a mite more authority, however, or perhaps Howard's chin wasn't as durable as that of his Mexican opponent, and Scott found himself on the canvas no less than three times.

The first time Scott bit the dust was in the second round. He forgot to duck a sizzling right and down he tumbled, dragging Joseph behind him. Rivers untangled himself from the sprawled cowpuncher's person, jumped to his feet—and Howard followed him up within a split second.

Scenting the kill, Rivers rammed home three more rights to the head. The third right reached its target just a wink before the bell clanked. Down went Howard—down and out. His seconds dragged him back to his corner and worked furiously to bring him to for the third.

They got him in some kind of shape, but he still was glassy-eyed coming up for the next three-minute period of fighting. Within a minute or two, however, he had fought himself out of the fog and

N. J. Governor May Purchase Dodgers

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26 (AP).—The Newark Star-Eagle said in a copyrighted article today that Gov. Harold G. Hoffman "is in the market to purchase the Brooklyn National League baseball club at a reported price of $1,000,000."

The newspaper said it was reported Gov. Hoffman's intention "is to retire from politics when his term as Governor ends January 1, 1938, and devote his time to the direction of the ball team."

Gov. Hoffman, reached later at a meeting in Newark, denied he was interested in or negotiating for the Brooklyn team.

"The Legislature is bad enough. Why should I take on the Dodgers?"

A New Jersey Governor cannot succeed himself.

The Star-Eagle said George H. Warren jr., of Summit, N. J., fish and game commissioner, is negotiating in the Governor's behalf for the Brooklyn team.

Warren admitted last week he was "interested" in purchasing the Dodgers and that he had conferred with the present owners.

Gorman Spikes Rumor.

Brooklyn, Oct. 26 (AP).—John Gorman, business manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today that no one representing Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey had attempted to buy the Dodgers.

National League's Crowds Increase

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—The St. Louis Cardinals were the only team in the National League that did not increase its attendance last season over the year before, Ford Frick, president of the league, said today.

Frick did not release the attendance figures, but said there was a 15 per cent increase all over the league. Despite their record at home, the Cards were the most popular club on the road, he said.

Shocked Duquesne U. Prepares for Detroit

Pittsburgh, Oct. 26 (AP).—Clipper Smith gathered his Duquesne University football squad together today for the first time since the unexpected 2-to-0 defeat by W. Va. Wesleyan and told his Dukes he wanted them to redeem themselves against Detroit University.

He outlined preparations for the contest with the Titans in the Michigan metropolis Friday night, but confined actual practice to brief unlimbering drills.

Nebraska '02 and All-American '09

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

No? Well, then, let's get down to cases, maybe it'll prod the memory. Try this—Fred Neilsen, head coach at Maryland University in '06 and '07, perhaps that'll give an inkling.

POVICH.

Well, anyway, this gentleman, Fred Neilsen can point a finger at any one of the four major Washington colleges and say, in truth: "I used to coach football there."

He's Judge Fred Neilsen now, an authority on international law with the State Department, but 32 years after he won his letter at Nebraska he's still an avid follower of football, just a bit amazed by the growth of the game he played before the forward pass was introduced.

The judge was moving in pretty good company yesterday when he addressed the weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club. The president of the Touchdown Club is a gentleman by the name of John McGovern, and that may not mean anything, either, unless you happen to be from Minnesota or its environs.

But out in Minnesota they know John McGovern as Johnny McGovern, Walter Camp's All-American quarterback in 1909, 145 pounds of muscle and hustle, the smallest All-American in All-American history. So, it was in fairly good football company that the judge, as I say, was moving yesterday.

Judge Neilson took his audience back a matter of 40 years to tell about the first football game he ever played in—on the sandlots at Omaha—and you were a bit puzzled when he said he learned more football in the first minute of that game than he imbibed in his entire career at Nebraska.

"I watched that game for awhile and then when they invited me to play I figured I had the hang of it. So, when I saw another lad loose with the ball I grabbed him and flung him down. It was a nice tackle, if I do say so myself. And then, as I was saying, I learned more football in that next minute than I ever learned afterward.

"Because the fellow I tackled happened to be the captain of my team and when he got up, mad as blazes, he didn't leave me long in the dark about this game of football."

The judge recalled that the late President Roosevelt, who never played a game of football, remodeled the game for the colleges with a White House statement.

"It was a bad year for football back in 1905 and people were beginning to complain that lads were being killed and seriously injured by the rough sport. It finally reached the ears of the President and Mr. Roosevelt warned the colleges that unless they tempered the game, he would take steps.

"It was plenty rough, too—all push and pull and piling on. So the authorities devised the forward pass to open the game up. That was in 1906 and nobody knew how to throw a pass. But they tried it anyway. They'd take the ball in the crook of their arm and wing it end over end to whoever was receiving it. It was kind of crude, but it got football away from those mass plays that were causing all the trouble.

"Boys were still getting hurt, though, and things began to look dark for the game again in 1909. The authorities knew that unless something else was done to ease the game, it might be abolished forever. That's when they made the rule that a ball carrier's teammates couldn't push or pull him and that helped."

But the judge is no keen admirer of the forward pass as it is featured by modern teams. "It may be exciting," he said "to the fan who is no student of football; certainly it brings the play out into the open, but to the man who has played football the pass carries none of the thrill or the spectacle of the end run, for example. The forward pass places too great importance on one or two specialized members of the team."

No reformer, Judge Nielsen nevertheless declared he doubts the value of football as it is played now. "The word overemphasis itself has probably been overemphasized in its application to modern-day football," he said, "but it's still a good description of the state of affairs.

"Somehow, I wonder," he continued, "if modern football isn't quite a bit overemphasized. The spectacle of two teams of boys out there battling in the middle of a crowd of 50,000 or 75,000 people can be just a little bit revolting. After all, it's the students' game.

"I'm afraid some of those boys who are toasted as heroes and get their names in the big headlines will get a false sense of values out of it all. That would be too bad. Then, again, perhaps I'm all wrong. Maybe I'm just an old fogey."

Packers Hold 3-Yard Lead in Ground Gained

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—By the slim margin of only three years, the Green Bay Packers again have taken the lead as the most powerful offensive team in the National Professional Football League.

The Packers have gained 1,642 yards to 1,649 for the Chicago Bears. Both have played six games, and meet next Sunday. As the result of their one-sided victory over Pittsburgh yesterday, the Packers also gained the lead in total points with 130 as compared to 119 for the Bears.

Coaching Ban On Officers Stands

By the Associated Press.

An apparent loophole in the War Department's order banning Army officers from coaching football at civilian colleges was found yesterday, but was quickly closed by Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff.

It developed that decision on outside activities, such as sports tutoring, by Army officers had been left up to the commanding generals of the various corps areas.

Under this arrangement, officials said Maj. Lawrence (Biff) Jones at the University of Oklahoma, and Maj. Ralph Sasse at Mississippi State College, might make new football coaching agreements at the expiration of their present contracts if approval was obtained from their commanding general.

But Gen. Craig explained the delegating of this decision to the commanding general was merely routine. He said corps commanders had complete charge of the officers in their territories but that the spirit of the War Department order of last January 1, forbidding Army officers to take coaching positions, still held good.

Outside Contracts With Schools.

In the past, officers with coaching ability have, after being assigned to Reserve Officer Training Corps at colleges, entered into agreements with the institutions to coach football or other athletics.

The War Department has no objection to officers assisting in a small degree with outside activities at their institutions, so long as it does not interfere with their military duties. However, it was said, officers could hardly spare the time necessary to handle a regular coaching posiflon and still thoroughly carry out their military assignments.

Order Not Retroactive.

The January 1 order was not retroactive and did not affect agreements already entered into by Jones and Sasse but barred them from future full-time coaching jobs.

Officers always have been paid for their coaching work, in addition to their Army salaries.

Jones and Sasse are believed here to be the only officers now acting as full-time athletic coaches in the course of R. O. T. C. assignments. Lieut. Gar Davidson is assigned to the United States Military Academy at West Point but this is regarded as part of his military duties.

Matsuyama, Cue Star, Will Return to Japan

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Kinrey Matsuyama, diminutive Japanese billard star, will return to Japan Wednesday to make his home after living in the United States for nearly 20 years.

Although handicapped by his size, Matsuyama has ranked near the top for several years in both balkline and three-cushion competition. The only major title he ever won, however, was the national three-cushion championship in 1934.

In his final match in this country, he defeated Willie Hoppe, world's three-cushion champion and balkline star, 600 to 585 in 575 innings.

G. W. and Maryland Elevens Share Top Rank in District

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Catholic University's defeat by Mississippi, not wholly unexpected, and Georgetown's tie with New York University, while Maryland and George Washington were winning their respective games with Syracuse and Wake Forest over the week-end, have revamped the local football ratings as completely as the World War changed the European map.

The Flying Cardinals, admittedly Washington's best and one of the East's most formidable elevens last season, sink to the bottom of the list, while George Washington and Maryland, still climbing toward gridiron prestige, share the No. 1 ranking. Georgetown, because of its disappointing performance against the Violet and in spite of its undefeated record, is placed third.

Some will give the edge to George Washington over Maryland, and, their scoreless tie with Mississippi and a 14-6 triumph over Arkansas to their credit, the Colonials seem to richly deserve such. But Maryland, whose bevy of fast, hard-hitting and sharp-thinking backs have lived up to all of their preseason press notices, and whose line has shown vast improvement with each start, is, in the writer's opinion, as powerful as the downtown school's men, possibly a shade better.

George Washington is represented by the best-looking team ever placed on the field under Jim Pixlee's regime. The line is aggressive, and is playing better offensive ball than any George Washington line of the past decade. Vic Sampson and Joey Kaufman are fast, clever broken-field runners, and Jay Turner hits a line with the ease of a baby falling asleep. The attack has been versatile and consistent and the defense, with but few exceptions, of the best. George Washington deserves its high rating.

But it is hard to laugh off Bill Guckeyson, All-America timber if we ever saw a stick; "Jumbo" Jim Meade, the line-bucking sophomore who made the grade in two games; Charley Ellinger, Coleman Headley and Johnny Gormley—all first-stringers; Charley Weidinger, Waverly Wheeler, Ed Daly and Jack Egan, reserves. Give those backs to any of the bigger schools, the "name" schools, and they would be household bywords.

The tip-off on Maryland's sound condition in the backfield is to find Coleman Headley in the role of pinch hitter. When a coach has a spare like Headley to rush into action for emergencies his worries about backs are over.

The Terrapin linemen have improved with each game. Vic Willis is enjoying his best season at end, and while he may be overrated, as we think, the fact remains that he's playing A-1 ball.

Blair Smith is coming through at the other flank; Fletcher and Birkland have bolstered the tackles, and Wolfe and Surgent are doing a fine job at guard. No apologies need be made for the line.

George Washington's line, retracing our steps for a moment, isn't any better than this one, even though Ray Hanken would outstrip any of Maryland's ends in actual combat, and Tim Stapleton could hold his own with any Marylander.

Maryland should win all of its remaining games, with a reasonable share of the breaks, and after this week's meeting with Rice George Washington should finish the season without losing.

Georgetown didn't play its game against New York University. It looked like anything but the smooth and well-knit unit that swamped Delaware, whipped a husky Cincinnati eleven on a muddy field and decisively spanked Bucknell. But there were a few redeeming features about the game.

In the first place, N. Y. U. is not the hollow shell that 60-0 shellacking at Ohio State's hands indicates. Dr. Mal Stevens has a big, fast line and a set of nice-looking backs. He could use a smart quarterback, for poor judgment cost the Violet a victory and almost a tie.

Next, Al Snyder's play at end for the Hoyas was absolutely sensational. He was in everything but the referee's pants in the first half, upsetting two interferers and dragging down the runner for a 12-yard loss on one play. He was down under punts like a whippet, getting his men like a "Mounty."

In Tony Barabas Coach Jack Hagerty at last has a back with the speed and an elusiveness the attack

Princeton vs. Harvard, Yale vs. Dartmouth on East's Card.

By the United Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Minnesota's mighty Gophers will slam into Northwestern's fighting Wildcats for a tremendous and significant brawl at Evanston, Ill., Saturday, with hopes for the Big Ten title and mythical national championship in the balance.

This collision between two perfect-record Titans of the Midwest easily is the banner game of the week-end, although three smashing encounters on far-flung fronts will command plenty of attention—Pittsburgh-Fordham at New York, St. Mary's-Marquette at Chicago and Auburn-Santa Clara at San Francisco.

Fresh from a 33-to-0 victory over Purdue, Bernie Bierman's Gophers will march determinedly upon Northwestern. The Gophers know that Lynn Waldford's Wildcats are the last menacing obstacle on their path to a third successive national title. Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin follow.

Near Record of Trojans.

Minnesota now has won 21 straight victories. Four more will tie the all-time record set by Southern California from 1931 through 1933. After their impressive display of power against Purdue, the Gophers will be heavy favorites.

These two teams are standouts among the Nation's ten remaining major perfect-record outfits. Fordham, Marquette and Santa Clara are included in that ten, and each of the trio risks disaster this week.

Rebounding from an upset by Duquesne, Pittsburgh's Golden Panthers sharpened their claws on poor Notre Dame last week and will try to make a meal of the Fordham Rams at the Polo Grounds. Meanwhile Marquette, after drubbing Michigan State, will entertain the same rugged St. Mary's outfit Friday night that Fordham nosed out by one point Saturday.

Auburn Invaders Frisco.

And at San Francisco, sturdy little Santa Clara will entertain Auburn, one of the strongest teams in all Dixie—strong enough to beat Georgia, Detroit and Tennessee and hold Tulane to a scoreless tie. Santa Clara has had an extra week's rest for this encounter.

Other hostilities may be mapped as follows:

East—Four excellent teams risk their perfect records against stiff opposition: Holy Cross vs. Temple, Army vs. Yale, Yale vs. Dartmouth and Villanova vs. Bucknell. Other pairings are Michigan State-Boston College, Miami (Fla.)-Boston U., Purdue-Carnegie Tech, Columbia-Cornell, Princeton-Harvard, Pennsylvania-Navy, N. Y. U.-Lafayette and Penn State-Syracuse.

Midwest—In addition to the Minnesota-Northwestern extravaganza, three other Big Ten games are slated: Indiana-Iowa, Michigan-Illinois and Wisconsin-Chicago. In the Big Six, leading Nebraska tangles with Missouri, and Iowa State meets Oklahoma. Outside the

By John R. Vosburgh.

With what is known as a "razzle-dazzle" inaugural, Tech High's Stadium becomes the scene of its first interhigh series game today, when Western and Tech put on their annual little football skit at 3:30 p. m.

Each boasting a strong aerial offensive and more assorted trick features than a Coney Island midway, the teams promise to put on a palpitating performance if nothing else. On the basis of the records, Tech rates a slight choice to repeat its triumphs of 15 to 6, in 1933; 26 to 0, in '34, and 24 to 0, last year.

The margin of victory, if any, should not approach the figures of the past two years, however. For probably the first time in Western history, the Red team has an offensive able to match the fairly strong lines which Coach Dan Ahern turns out.

Lots of Laterals.

Laterals behind the line of scrimmage and downfield, double and triple reverses, shovel passes and other sleight-of-hand art were noticeable in Western's 19-6 victory over Roosevelt in its first interhigh start. With 45 points already scored against it in four games, Tech must face this dangerous attack, with its own neat passing offensive as its best defensive. A high-scoring game is probable.

Tech's scoring punch hangs on the passing of Stanley Wells and Jack Belote and the receiving talent of Johnny Williamson, Jimmy King, Buddy Wightman and Walter Connoyl. Williamson has developed into one of the hardest driving backs in the city and in whatever ground-gaining is done from a running game, Williamson will be prominent.

Chief artisans in the Western razzle-dazzle cast are Len Weinstein, rangy, elusive fullback and Morris Snead, shifty, speedy quarterback. Both boys pass and kick and with any blocking at all are a couple of dangerous ball-carriers.

Western's objective is to shake them loose through the lateral or reverse route and, according to the Roosevelt game, this ball-carrying duo should provide Tech with no end of trouble.

With the exception of Fred Emerick at right tackle in place of Joe Veihman, the Western line-up will be the same that started against Roosevelt. Tech's line will outweigh Western's, 167 pounds to 160, with Western's backfield outweighing the Tech ball carriers an average of 158 to 154.

has needed so long, Barabas' defensive work was superb. He came up to nail runners like an express elevator, and reeled off several sizable gains carrying the ball, almost getting away for a touchdown on one run.

Georgetown will improve. It is going to win its share of the remaining games, but at this writing it must give way to Maryland and George Washington.

Catholic University's disastrous beginning, and consequent loss of prestige, is in tune with this season of upsets and we hesitate to attempt an explanation. Coach "Dutch" Bergman had a few words to say on the subject last week, but we are loath to believe he was serious in pointing an accusing finger at his own students. That was about as weak as the second pot of coffee, and it is hard to believe "Dutch" offered it as a serious alibi.

Certainly it is hard to replace Lajousky at guard, Karpowich at tackle, and Mulligan at end, but lots of coaches are replacing more men at that with material inferior to Bergman's and are getting by. Something is lacking at the Brookland school. It was evident in the first game and again in the second. La Salle was no setup and neither was De Paul, but Catholic rated so much better than either, on paper, it figured to win in a walk.

Bergman was confident of enjoying at least a winning season, if not an undefeated one, in September, and still can finish with a goodyy and still can finish with a good record in the matter of games won and lost. But the Mississippi game was his biggest and most important, and that 14-0 loss, together with George Washington's scoreless tie with the Rebels, has considerably reduced Catholic's prestige. It probably will affect its drawing power, too.

Second Down and Third to Go for Howard Scott

from then on it was give and take, with both boys giving more than is usually given in a fisticuffing fuss—and both taking more than is the wont of professional fighters.

In the sixth round Rivers again floored Scott, dropping him with a left hook to the chin. Howard spun around on his knees before dragging himself erect, but once he did pull himself up he was in rare fighting mood indeed. He tore into Joe with both hands and almost dropped him with a stiff right uppercut to the chin.

From then on, the tussle was one of those things often seen in the movies, but seldom witnessed in a real ring. First one, then the other of the 135-pound gamecocks would stagger the other, first one then the other would rip into the midsection, first one, then the other would jump into a slight lead, but in the final analysis Rivers had scored handily enough to be entitled to the decision which was awarded him.

Ray Ingram, one of Washington's best lightweights, and Joey Straiges, a newcomer from Camden, N. J., went six rounds to a draw in a wild and wooley semifinal. Straiges had the advantage at long range, but Ingram was clearly his superior at in-fighting.

Friedman was ahead on points for a few minutes but didn't figure after a first-round knockdown for a nine count as the result of a right-hand punch to the jaw. Scott dropped Jakie with another right to the jaw in the second and Friedman was so obviously out cold that Referee Muggsy Morris didn't even bother to count before halting the action.

Settlement Is Made; Band Not to Strike

By the Associated Press.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 26.—Rumors of a possible "strike" by Alabama's football band subsided today after Bandmaster Carlton Butler said the student musicians were "well pleased with the settlement" received by them in their recent request for more co-operation from the university."

Butler made the statement as he sent the musicians, called "Bama's Million-Dollar Band," through a brisk rehearsal of songs and drills for use at Lexington Saturday when Alabama and Kentucky clash.

East's Elevens Point for 'Big' Frays Saturday

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—In good condition after the St. Mary's game except for a few bruises and "Charley horses" which Trainer Jake Weber expects to eliminate before Saturday, Fordham's gridmen held a brief limbering-up drill today to begin preparations for Saturday's battle with Pittsburgh. Scout Hugh Devore, who says the Panthers have the best Pitt team he has seen, is slated to start defensive tutoring tomorrow.

Princeton, N. J.—Fritz Crisler gave both the Princeton varsity and scrubs a full day off but indicated an array of trick plays was being prepared for the Harvard game. Fred Ritter, veteran guard who was kept out of the Navy game by injuries, will be in shape to face the Crimson, Crisler said.

Philadelphia—Temple's gridders held a long defensive drill on a wet field. Chris Pappas, varsity fullback, still limped from an ankle injury and Coach Pop Warner indicated he may not start against Holy Cross.

Guards' Ring Team Aim for Tourney

The National Guard ringsters will kill two birds with one stone when they perform on the Farewell-to-Lou Gevinson card November 4 at Turner's Arena. Representatives in every weight will prime for the District Golden Gloves tourney due off November 10.

The soldiers have Joe Pricci competing as a flyweight, with Eddie Saugstad scheduled to hold down the 118-pound berth. George Pickeral, last year's bantamweight king, has moved up to the featherweight bracket and will try to fill in the hole in the Engineer lineup left by the departing Gevinson.

Out Fishin'

by Jack Hawley

Large bluefish were taken off Sharps Island Light several days ago while they were going south. A few anglers made lucky catches and by the time the stories reached our ears the fishing was over in those waters. Naturally we advised fishermen to locate further south at the mouth of the Potomac and make some good catches while the blues were on their way out of the Chesapeake. Those who took our advice are not regretting it.

However, the boatmen at Tilghmans grabbed at the chance of making a final harvest and being assisted by local anglers interested in profits other than bluefishing made a sellout over the past week to anglers who believe that fishing is a sport that cannot be other than above a board of honor. A certain organization which has an idea that the fishing public will fall for a ballyhoo of "prizes" in order to draw the fishing trade away from good fishing grounds to another shore which cannot begin to show even the slightest attraction other than a few hardheads in the spring should change their tactics.

Dr. J. Roy Pipes, Lloyd Wimer, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and E. H. Purdy and Jerry Feasted, of the Securities Exchange Commission, took it on the chin over this past week-end at Tilghmans Island fishing. Two bushel of chum for $5.00, after they had finished fishing. They left 1 bushel aboard unused an donated 4 dozen bloodworms to the boat captain who secured their fishing "chum" from the dock at the Tilghman packing house.

For those that took our advice and went to Solomons and Point Lookout we have received some very gratifying reports: At Plum Point, Sam Dixon caught 25 blues weighing up to 12 pounds. Most of them were taken below Sharps Island Light where they would be looked for by smart boatmen after being taken above this point. Dick Woodburn landed six blues off Cove Point Saturday evening, mixing in 35 trout and hardheads for good measure. His brother caught two blues weighing 10 and 12 pounds. Off Point Patience J. C. Webster, an old resident of Solomons, caught eight rockfish that weighed on an average of 5 pounds and one that weighed the limit, 15 pounds under the Maryland law.

With present weather don't spend your time looking for bluefish. Devote your time to the excellent rockfishing now beginning to show real signs of activity. Trout fishing will find you with few but they will be large. Don't pass up the rockfishing now because our reports concerning them are excellent. For bluefish—they're not worth printing and weather is getting unhealthy for them.

Bowling Lead Increased by G-Men

Bureau of Investigation gained a firmer grip on the No. 1 position in the Federal League last night at the Arcadia drives by whipping the National Park team three games. Astor Clarke turned on the heat for the G-Men, chipping the maples for a 363 set. The pace-setters featured their victory with a top game of 620.

Veterans Administration, in the runner-up position, spiled a total of 1,752 pins to gain an odd-game decision over G. P. O. Freddie Moore's big game of 155 failed to stop I. B. E. W.'s two wins over War and Charlie Stephenson's 387 enabled U. S. Senate in downing PWA twice. Civil Service dropped two to Labor and Navy took a forfeit from District Building, with Carroll Daly rolling 367.

Hal Phillips (Bureau Engineers) and Charles Suthin (Hydrographic) tied the season record set mark in the Navy Department League, each toppling the maples for a 400 set. Phillips had games of 150, 123 and 127 and Suthin 138, 119 and 143. Ordinance annexed high-team laurels with 610 and 1,675.

Spud Topley and Charles Dyer shared the individual honors in the Southern Railway League, the former shooting a 138 game and the latter a 362 set. Purchasing's 359 game and Operation's 1,609 set topped the team scoring.

With challengers galore awaiting to take on the winner, Astor Clarke and Meyer Jacobson have been paired up for a 20-game intercity match. The first ten games of the event are scheduled for Saturday at the Convention Hall alleys, five of which will be rolled starting at 2:30 p. m. and five at 8 o'clock. The final ten-game block will be shot Sunday at the Recreation Center in Baltimore. Total pins for the 20 games will decide the winner.

Florida's Coach Praises His Squad

"The boys met a real test in the Kentucky game and met it well and intelligently," he said. "I was well pleased with their defensive work, except for two ocasions—a blocked punt and Davis' return of a punt for a touchdown."

Pitt Seeking New Drive For Fordham Contest

Pittsburgh, Oct. 26 (AP).—Scouts told the University of Pittsburgh Panthers today that Fordham is a great defensive team and Coach Jock Sutherland immediately set about devising an attack which will shake Marshall (Biggy) Goldberg or some of his other fast backs loose.

The Panthers emerged from the 26-to-0 victory over Notre Dame with their morale rebounding from the previous week's defeat by Duquesne. Sutherland said Fullback Frank Patrick, slightly hurt, was the only casualty. The squad had a long workout today and heards the analysis of Fordham's play.

Sutton Heads D. C. Printer Golfers

Granger Sutton, of the Government Printing Office, last night was elected president of the Washington Chapter of the International Typographical Union Golf Association at a meeting at the Washington Hotel.

Harry Bjorkland, also of the Government Printing Office, was named vice president; Fred Stringer, of Judd & Detweiler, secretary-treasurer, and Gerard ("Eddie") Edward, of the Washington Star, corresponding secretary.

Ed Merkle, of Ransdell, Inc., who won the International Typographical Union golf championship at Olympic Fields, Chicago, last month, will be in charge of arrangements for the national championship scheduled in Washington in August, 1937.

Plans were mapped out for the championship. Efforts will be made to secure either Indian Spring Country Club or Kenwood. The tournament is 72 holes, medal play, and Commissioner Merkle expects about 300 to compete.

McDougall Tackles Campofreda Here

One of the strongest supporting cards of the indoor wrestling season was announced last night to augment the Cliff Olsen-Hans Kampfer feature match next Thursday at Turner's Arena.

Scotty McDougall, the original barefoot boy, has been assigned to leer in the general direction of Nicolai ("Old Nick") Campofreda; Harry Piers, New York scissorsmith, squeezes Pachyderm Pat McKay, and Abe Kashey returns to the local mat wars to tackle Stan Sokolis.

In the semifinal event Matros Kirilenko will square off with the distinguished Rudy Dusek. It will mark the first time these growling gentlemen have crossed paths locally for three years.

Navy, Piqued, Turns Guns On Penn

Middies Hope to Change Luck Saturday After Two Setbacks.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 26.—The Naval Academy football squad was given a holiday from practice today as the coaching staff hoped the coming Pennsylvania game would end the ill luck that has plagued the team in its last two contests and bring a few "breaks" to the Midshipmen.

For two successive Saturdays, against Yale and Princeton, the Navy team has outplayed their opponents, but lost. Against Princeton the Navy gained a total of 212 yards by rushing and passing to 126 made by the Tigers.

Off-sides, fumbles and intercepted or incomplete passes have blocked Navy scoring chances. Tom Hamilton, head coach, today said he had "nothing to say" about Princeton or Pennsylvania game. He gave the players the afternoon off, the first rest they have had since the practice season started.

Play on "Lucky Field."

Navy has some grounds for hoping the Pennsylvania game may bring a change of luck. Franklin Field, where the game will be played, is considered a "lucky field" by the Midshipmen, and Navy football teams have seemed to be a "jinx" for the Quakers. A Pennsylvania team has not scored against Navy since Hamilton began coaching. In 1934 his first year, Navy won, 17 to 0. Last year Navy won, 13 to 0.

The series is the oldest played by the Navy. It started in 1888 before the Army-Navy series. This year the Penn team is described as "precise in the air" and "ponderous on the ground," but the Midshipmen, feeling frustrated by the outcome of their games with Yale and Princeton, will be driving with an intense desire to break into the victory column.

The coaching staff is satisfied by the defensive work of the Navy team. The line is considered one of the best in years and has demonstrated its ability to stop a running attack. The coaches feel that the attack also is strong, but face the task of harnessing the power by smoothing out lost motion and fundamental misplays.

Washington Pros Prep for Arrows

Still in the running for the Dixie League flag, despite their 7-0 defeat by Portsmouth, the Washington Pros will resume practice tonight in preparation for their second invasion of Richmond next Sunday. This game with the Arrows looms as the most important of all the local club's league engagements, for defeat will mean virtual elimination from the race.

Dick Nelson, the team's ace passer and one of its triple-threaters, is not in the best of shape, but is expected to be ready for Sunday's fray. He played against Portsmouth with a bad shoulder. If he does not play, Washington's passing attack will be seriously impaired.

Richmond, although held to a tie by Baltimore last week, still remains in front of the parade and is the odds-on favorite to win the title.

Minnesota No 'Super-Team,' Wildcats Can Win, Says Coach

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP).—As solemnly as a man testifying under oath, Lynn Waldorf gave his Northwestern eleven a chance today of doing the "impossible"—a chance of upsetting Minnesota Saturday.

The broad-shouldered, deep-voiced the Wildcat coach, who has watched with something approaching amazement the development of his "kids" this season, hastened to agree with the rest of the football world that Minnesota merits ranking as "tops." He refused, however, to concede that Bernie Bierman has a super-team.

"Our scouts say that Minnesota is even greater than last year," he said. "They tell me that, with those laterals clicking, that offense up there really rolls. Against Nebraska, Michigan and Purdue, their defense hasn't been dented. Of course Minnesota is, and should be, a big favorite against us.

"But we are not regarding Minnesota as a super-team," he said seriously. "We gained a lot of ground against them last year and gave quite a battle before losing by a touchdown (the score in 1935 was 21 to 13). We are stronger this year. Whether we are good enough is something for Saturday to decide."

Waldorf's hopes for the most stunning of upsets are inspired by the "kids" themselves.

"I believe our 'kids' will come close to playing all the football they have in them Saturday. It's our home-coming game. They are not overawed. In fact, they are anxious to be stacked up against the yardstick by which all teams are measured these days.

Inter-American Horse Show Here to Draw Many More Foreign Teams in Next Year

The Inter-American Horse Show, which closed its second meeting here last Sunday, is destined to develop into the outstanding event of its kind in America, with teams from many foreign nations contesting the international military jumping which affords the highlight of the annual exhibition of horseflesh and horsemanship.

This is the opinion not only of those who conducted this year's highly successful show but of the majority of impartial observers as well.

Efforts are already afoot to book many more international military teams for next year's show and every indication points to a bigger and better inter-State team competition in 1937.

"Public response to this year's show has proved that there is plenty of room here for the biggest show of its kind in America," believes Maj. Frank L. Whittaker, who almost single-handedly, conducted this year's Inter-American. "Because we were so successful this year, we shall start immediately to try to book more international teams for next year."

It is understood that those responsible for the 1936 Inter-American will seek to book several more foreign teams at the National Horse Show, which opens in Madison Square Garden next month. The Chilean team, which won the international military jumping in 1934 and finished second to the United States this year, will, of course, be invited to attend in 1937.

The Mexican army team, which made its debut here this year, also will be invited next year, and is almost certain to accept the invitation. The sponsors of the show have high hopes of inducing the Canadian, Irish and perhaps a few other military teams to compete in next year's Inter-American.

Dyed-in-the-wool horsemen were especially pleased with the inter-State team competition, which brought into action the best horses from Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Sponsors of the show are confident that for 1937 there will be teams entered from many other States, giving the contest a real national flavor.

This year's Inter-American was a complete success, both financially and artistically. The artistic success of the show was proved by the response to a "teaser" emitted over the loud-speaker at Meadowbrook on the last day of the show.

"Would you like to see this show repeated next year?" asked an unidentified voice over the loud-speaker system just before the close of the show.

This year's Inter-American did very well the first two days, and exceeded all expectations on the final two days it was scheduled. Saturday, next to the last day of the show, the regular seats were all sold out and many were forced to stand. Sunday, the regular seats were sold out, additional stands were erected, sold out—and many still stood through the show.

E. De Camillis Rides Horse To Victory

Calumet Dick Is Second; $19.80 Mutuel Paid by Rose Entry.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 26.—Scatter Brain, a hunch play in almost any party, took a photographic decision from Calumet Dick at the finish of a mile and a sixteenth race that served feature purposes on the wash-day program of the Maryland Fair, Inc. Although the winner by a short head, Scatter Brain backers had to wait for the negative, but their patience was rewarded by a $19.80 mutuel. Third money in the field of six high-price claimers went to Aladdins Dream.

Scatter Brain, owned by A. C. Rose and ridden by Jockey Eddie de Camillis, chased the pace of Weston until that one collapsed and then, after being severely shaken up, barely saved the verdict from Calumet Dick's closing rush. Aladdins Dream, closer than usual during the early running, lacked his copyrighted stretch punch.

The Mad Hatter gelding stepped the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 1-5 over a track that was good despite the morning's intermittent showers. Sagging skies marked the afternoon with a crowd of 8,000 participating in the sport.

Harry's Dream, the property of H. E. Simpson, sent her backers away to a flying start with a $6.20 mutuel in the first race. The Transmute filly, ridden by Apprentice Jockey K. McCombs, came out of the pack to take a half-length decision from Clarion Call with Exhort third and a length and a half farther back. Ten juveniles competed and Harry's Dream hung up the time of 1:47 1-5 for the mile and 7 yards.

S. L. Burch's Princess Athene, one that showed 30 to 1 on the board until the horses neared the post, and then dropped to 6 to 1, made a show of her field in winning the second race at a $14.30 mutuel. She led Riding High by a length and a half at the finish, with Miss Careful, the favorite, third in the field of 13. Princess Athene had little opposition after she shook off Bread King at the far turn. Jockey M. Peters rode the winner, which ran the 6 furlongs in 1:14 2-5.

Danarco, running in the colors of J. S. Summers, triumphed in the third race, paying a $12.50 mutuel and completing a $34.70 daily double. Offender was second by a length, after leading most of the way. Third money went to Maebob. Danarco probably was much the best being forced to run wide all the way. The Caruso gelding was clocked in 1:46 3-5 for the mile and 70 yards.

Trainer Selby Burch saddled his second winner of the day when Parapet, ridden by the unfashionable apprentice, P. McDermott, scored a surprise victory to pay a $38.20 mutuel in the fourth race. Parapet came through on the rail nearing the stretch and galloped off with the decision by two lengths. She Knows was second and Stipulate third in the group of nine cheap platers. The winner ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:45 3-5.

Iron Ore, running in the colors of Jefferson Davis Cohn, brought Trainer Selby Burch his third winner of the program in the sixth race. The Sir Greysteel filly defeated the favored Acautaw by two lengths after the two had run teamed most of the way. Canpra came through on the rail entering the stretch to take third money. Iron Ore ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:45 2-5 and paid $12.10.

Plans for Court Clinic Discussed at Luncheon

Plans for the second annual National Capital basketbal clinic, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., will be furthered today at a luncheon to be held at the Central "Y" at 1 p. m. The clinic, at which rules, fundamentals, etc., are discussed, will be held early in December.

B. E. Phillips is chairman of the committee arranging the event. Other members are W. E. Johnson, Birch E. Bayh and J. Dallas Shirley.

Navy Football Tickets.

Club officials also announced that they have a number of tickets for the Navy-Notre Dame game, which takes place in Baltimore, November 7. Early reservations are urged since it is expected that the demand for tickets will be unusually heavy.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARRY'S DREAM, $6.20, $3.70, $3.30; CLARION CALL, $11.20, $5.70; EXHORT, $5.60.

HARRY'S DREAM, within striking distance of the leaders from the beginning, was raced along after moving up approaching the far turn, took command under a drive in the stretch and withstood closing bid of CLARION CALL. The latter was carried wide and shuffled back at the first turn, had to circle widely for racing room and was wearing down the winner at the end. EXHORT saved ground to go to the front at the first turn and closed willingly after setting the pace. BOULEVARD, overconfidently ridden under restraint while running with EXHORT, took command midway of the stretch and faltered. MR. DUNCANNON moved up menacingly along the backstretch, but hung thereafter. BRIEF dropped out of it after a half.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:07. Off at 2:09½. Winner, S. L. Burch's b. f. (4), by Pompey-Polyanthus. Trained by S. L. Burch. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCESS ATHENE, $14.30, $6.90, $3.30. RIDING HIGH, $5.80, $3.30; MISS CAREFUL, $2.90.

PRINSESS ATHENE ran BREAD KING into defeat to take command, and held away to the end under energetic handling. RIDING HIGH improved his position gradually and was going gamely at the finish. MISS CAREFUL was off in a tangle, gained steadily and was closing willingly. BILL BLEIWEISS came with a rush in the closing stages. COME BY CHANCE ran forwardly to the stretch and tired. CHINESE INDIAN gained on the swing for the stretch, but faltered and pulled up lame. OPHELIA was away poorly. BREAD KING stopped. MARSON was left at the post and was a distant trailer.

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:38½. Off at 2:42. Winner, J. S. Summers' b. g. (2), by Caruso—Diana D. Trained by A. J. Bedell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:15 1-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:46 3-5.

TULEYRIES LAD	(Balaski)	114	7	7	8	9	9	9	9	28.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DANARCO, $12.50, $4.40, $4.00; OFFENDER, $3.90, $3.90; MAEBOB, $6.30.

DANARCO, steered wide at the first turn to gain a contending position, moved up on the outside of OFFENDER to take command and easily held the advantage to the end. OFFENDER, sent to the front at once, was steadied along while running with MOLASSES BOB and MAEBOB and came willingly under a drive, but could not cope with the winner. MAEBOB was poorly handled and closed namely on own courage. MOLASSES BOB faltered after being a keen factor. TINDER BOX could not keep up. IRISHEEN showed nothing. IDLE LADY stopped early.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $34.70.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:10½. Off at 3:14½. Winner, Montpelier's ch. f. (3), by Dress Parade—Little Muff. Trained by S. L. Burch. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:45 3-5.

EXAGGERATION	(Root)	109	8	5	9	9	9	9	9	44.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARAPET, $38.20, $16.50, $8.90; SHEKNOWS, $4.60, $3.70; STIPULATE, $11.80.

PARAPET, allowed to settle into stride and much the best, went up on the inside with a bold rush to take command entering the final straightaway and drew out under hand riding. SHEKNOWS disposed of SKYRIDE to get the pace and continued willingly, but was no match for the winner. STIPULATE was hard ridden to reach the thick of contention and tired gradually. SIR ROSE made up some ground in the late stages. SKYRIDE was timidly handled while running between SHEKNOWS and SHYNO. SHYNO dropped out of it at the far turn.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:41. Winner, A. C. Rose's b. g. (4), by Mad Hatter—Fly by Day. Trained by F. Reuter. Value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCATTER BRAIN, $19.80, $7.50, $4.10; CALUMET DICK, $3.70, $3.00; ALADDINS DREAM, $3.00.

SCATTER BRAIN pressed the pace of WESTON to the far turn, took command, was shaken up entering the stretch and barely lasted ahead of CALUMET DICK'S rush. The latter was taken in hand when in close quarters at the first turn, gained gradually thereafter and was wearing the winner down at the end. ALADDINS DREAM, closer than usual, due to hustling tactics, hung in the stretch. BULWARK could not keep up. CHATMOSS began tiring at the far turn. WESTON was rushed to set the pace and faltered.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:10½. Off at 4:12½. Winner, J. D. Cohn's rn. f. (3), by Sir Greysteel—Floresline. Trained by S. L. Burch. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRON ORE, $12.10, $5.30, $3.80; ACAUTAW, $3.60, $2.70; CANPRA, $3.80.

IRON ORE, running in close quarters along the rail to the backstretch, was carried wide by ACAUTAW entering the stretch and drew clear in the closing stages. ACAUTAW could not resist the winner after showing good speed throughout. CANPRA had no excuses, saving much ground entering the stretch. WANDREL closed gamely. WATERMAN tired after running with the leaders. SIT OUT dropped back at the far turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:40½. Off at 4:41. Winner, Mrs. A. White's b. g. (4), by Sun Charmer—Fleet Fairy. Trained by A. White. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:42, 1:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FOREST CHARM, $27.60, $10.80, $5.60; POOP DECK, $3.70, $3.30; BALMACAN, $11.30.

FOREST CHARM had speed to get to the front in the rush to the first turn, opened a long lead and had to be kept to a drive in the closing stages to hold POOP DECK safe. The latter, within striking distance of the leaders, moved up sharply when called for the stretch and gained gradually through the stretch. BALMACAN, close up, came willingly under a drive at the end. STEPONIT hung on well after being closest to the pace for three-quarters. TAUNTON moved up menacingly entering the stretch, but hung. GLOWING COAL dropped back steadily. ITALIAN HARRY closed gamely. MOON PENNY could not threaten. GOLDEN PLAY tired.

Sears, Roebuck Votes an Extra $1.75 Per Share

This Year's Earnings Are Expected to Make New High Record.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Sears, Roebuck & Co. directors voted today an extra dividend of $1.75 per share on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents and indicated that an additional special disbursement would be made before the close of the fiscal year.

This action was taken, the announcement of directors indicated, because of the new Federal surtax on undistributed profits. At the same time directors voted to authorize the increase in capital stock of the company to 6,000,000 shares.

The extra dividend, directors announced, represents approximately one-half of the estimated amount of extra dividends which will be payable during the fiscal year, based upon information available at this time.

"About the middle of December directors will meet again and reconsider the estimates of the company for the fiscal year," the announcement said. "At that time a more accurate estimate of the earnings can be made than is possible at present, and the board will then determine and declare the balance of the extra dividend which will be payable about the middle of January."

Sears, nearing the end of its golden jubilee sales promotion year, has been doing an all-time record volume of business so far in 1936. The directors' statement indicated that sales volume for the year which ends January 29, probably would exceed $500,000,000, a new peak record, compared with the $440,000,00 volume of 1929.

Consolidated Edison Votes 25 Cents Extra

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Directors of Consolidated Edison Co., of New York, today ordered an extra dividend of 25 cents and a quarterly payment of 50 cents on the common stock.

The disbursements are payable December 15 to stock of record November 6. In the preceding quarter 50 cents was paid when the rate was increased from 25 cents quarterly.

Increased Selling Depresses Cotton

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Large ginning figures and an easier stock market today caused increased liquidation in cotton. January eased from 11.66 to 11.55 and closed at 11.56 with final prices generally 12 to 14 points net lower.

The market opened unchanged to 5 points lower. Ginnings of 8,567,678 bales prior to October 18, as reported by the Census Bureau, brought in commission house selling. Hedging continued and trade pressure increased, sending prices off into new low ground.

At the lows, they were 44 to 49 points under the levels of ten days ago, when the current decline started. Final prices were practically at the lows for the day.

New York City Borrows At Record Low Rate

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—The City of New York awarded today a $30,000,000 bond issue, maturing in one to five years, to J. P. Morgan & Co. on their bid of par and a premium of $44,070, at the lowest interest rate for serial bonds in the city's history.

The bid was equivalent to an interest rate to the city of 1.1176 per cent. First Deputy Comptroller Duncan MacInnes said the best previous interest cost on a serial issue had been 2¼ per cent on $9,750,000 of bonds sold last February.

Life Insurance Classes Opened For New Term

More Than 50 Students Enroll for Institute Courses.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

The Life Insurance Institute, sponsored by the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, opened yesterday in the assembly hall of Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.'s home office building with an attendance of more than 50 students.

Those in charge of the institute explain, that while sponsored by the association, its classes are open to every individual desirous of entering the business and that completion of the courses affords preparation necessary for taking examinations of the American College of Life Insurance and receiving the "chartered life underwriter" designation, if successful.

J. E. McCombs is trustee chairman for the institute; Winthrop G. Batchelder, registrar; Mortimer H. Wilner, dean; John E. O'Brien, secretary treasurer. The institute will conduct an all-inclusive educational study of life insurance and allied subjects. Members of the faculty are highly experienced in life insurance instruction as well as being known as outstanding and successful life underwriters. These classes will in no way conflict with educational plans of home offices.

Lost Policyholders.

Washingtonians will benefit directly from the search which the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. is carrying on for "lost policyholders" or their heirs. With nearly 200,000 policyholders on the books of the Connecticut Mutual, there are some each year who fail to give notification of address change, and although immediate steps are taken to trace them, some cannot be located and these are carried on the books as "lost policyholders." Previous searches made by the Connecticut Mutual have result in the distribution of over $300,000 to people who were in most instances unaware that money was due them.

A recent check by the company shows that there are 250 policyholders who are now classified as "lost" and insurance on the lives of members of this group amounts to over $180,000, and dividends of over $5,000 await payment.

The following Washingtonians, with the place where they were insured or where they were last heard from, are included in this "lost" group and information relative to their whereabouts or that of their heirs may be furnished to the McElfresh Agency, 1100 Woodward Building, or the home office in Hartford, Conn.: Claire C. Cantner, John W. Greevy, Lillian Lucy A. Marsh and John J. Rasmussen.

On A. B. A. Committee.

Vice President and Cashier Wilmer J. Waller, of Hamilton National Bank, has been reappointed to membership of the banking studies committee of the American Bankers Association. This important committee also includes Francis M. Law, former president of the American Bankers Association; Chairman Winthrop W. Aldrich, of Chase National Bank; A. P. Giannini and Henry Haas, another former president of the association. Mr. Waller was also appointed a member of the executive committee of this group and a member of the executive committee of the national bank division of the association.

W. J. WALLER.

Pendleton With McLachlen.

President Lanier P. McLachlen, McLachlen Banking Corporation, has announced appointment of Garrett A. Pendleton, a national bank examiner in the Fifth Federal Reserve district, as assistant treasurer of the corporation, effective November 1.

Mr. Pendleton is 32 years old, a native of Washington, and received his early training at Emerson Insti-

The Market

Stocks and Bonds Weaken in Reduced Trading Volume; Wheat Prices Higher.

New York, Oct. 26.—Lower prices were the rule in securities markets with a smaller trading volume. For the first time in more than three weeks the sales in stock failed to exceed 1,500,000 shares. Industrial stocks sank back to the mid-October level and rails gave up all the ground gained since October 2. December wheat closed ⅝ of a cent higher at 115¾ cents a bushel.

Stocks clearly were under the blighting influence of the election, so far as activity was concerned, and the bent of investors and traders to wait and watch helped to lower the price level. A dull market is not calculated to advance prices, and the comparative smallness of the price losses resulted from the fact that those with stocks to their account were not anxious to get out at any price.

Trade news, in spite of the natural effect of the election uncertainty to slow up orders for a while, was mostly favorable. After a slight setback last week the operating rate of the steel industry will advance a point to 74.3 per cent of capacity, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. A year ago the rate was 51.9 per cent of capacity. With the motor industry coming into larger production and with the full weight of larger railroad equipment orders still to be felt, the outlook for sustained activity in steel for the remainder of the year is promising.

The showing in steel may have steadied the stock market, but it failed to promote a rally, and for the moment the inflation factor probably is prominent in traders' minds. Many believe a certain amount of it is bound to come, no matter how the election turns out. Others think that assurance of it can only be had with the re-election of the New Dealers, with their great record of accomplishment in matters inflationary and with their willingness to use the tools of their trade.

Dollars Edge Higher.

Foreign exchanges puttered along without any squeaking of the brakes. Dollars moved a little higher on sterling and francs. Bonds were even less lively than stocks, and fully as lacking in will to advance.

Shifting for themselves, the majority of stocks gradually declined in price until early afternoon, when there was a tendency to mill around in a circle with little change. At their worst most of the leading issues were down 1 to 2 points and some in the higher price class gave up 3 points. Steels were soft as a group, disregarding the improvement in the industry. Rails declined 1 to 3 points, with Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern, Central and Sante Fe conspicuous.

Metal shares weakened in spite of an advance in copper prices. Anaconda gave up a point and Kennecott lost a fraction. International Nickel dropped 2 points. Cerro de Pasco was unable to hold an early gain.

Public utilities also receded. Consolidated Edison, recipient of an extra dividend of 25 cents a share, fell back a point. Most of the losses elsewhere were fractional. Average decline in the first class issues of the oil, chemical, motor, rail equipment, mail order, food and tobacco groups was 1 to 2 points.

The decline may be said to have been led by Steel, Standard Oil, du Pont, Chrysler, General Motors, Pullman, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse and Western Union.

Higher prices were paid for American Chicle, which opened at a gain of more than 3 points. Greene Copper, United Biscuit and Industrial Alcohol also stiffened. Norfolk & Western, about to have an extra dividend, sold at the highest price on record.

Personnel.

Washington observers familiar with the work of the Democratic National Committee refute the charges of some readers of the Sun that the weakness in the Securities and Exchange Commission's enforcement of the law against manipulation is due to incompetent political appointments in the trading division. One of the bitter disappointments of the committee is said to have been its inability to get jobs on the SEC staff of experts. Elsewhere in the commisison political friendship has been more helpful to appointees. As pointed out before, it is more fitting to criticize administrative policy of the SEC rather than the effort of the rank and file for the scarcity of visible evidence of control of manipulation.

Policy.

One virtue of the SEC that is developing to a fault is its tolerance, its deliberate progress in enforcing the law. The statement issued last week on the proxy solicitation in Consolidated Film Industries is illustrative. The commission undertook to explain the company's plan of recapitalization after deciding that certain statement in the president's letter "might be misleading." The only question in the minds of most people subject to the law is whether the statements actually were misleading. If they were not, then the commission has set an alarming precedent for itself as a meddler and a scold; if they were, then the commission must be charged with weakness in failing to act incisively against any offenders. The same appearance of indecision crops up in the lax enforcement of the rule for monthly reports on changes in ownership of listed issues. Either the law and the regulation are proper and should be enforced fairly on all persons, or the pretense of compliance should be dropped.

While They Last.

The old spirit of '29 is returning. One brokerage house letter this morning notes that "desite this month's advance" in stock prices, "many issues are still available" at 12 times estimated share earnings. Now, as was the case in 1928-29, many issues are selling at 20 to 30 times earnings, but even in the former period of easy optimism, doubts used to arise as to whether the old "ten times" rule was not a bit more proper than the new era idea of 20-30.

Service.

One of the dissenting stockholders of U. S. Leather Co. seeking proxies against the company's plan of reorganization has taken advantage of SEC rule LA6 to deliver his message to other shareholders. This rule requires issuers to grant requests of any security holder of record to mail proxies and statements in connection with the solicitation of proxies. Although the proxies for the management are sent properly at corporate expense, the companies must be reimbursed for the cost of mailing independent proxies. Otherwise any shaheholder desiring to make a stump speech by mail might put a corporation to unreasonable expense.

Higher Copper Prices.

The lifting of the domestic copper price by a quarter of a cent to 10 cents a pound, following last week's stiffening in foreign prices, was regarded as a favorable trade development. This was so principally because the important section of the industry had protested that it would never consent to the increase, and instead increased its production, just as recently foreign producers have been expanding their output. It is therefore assumed that the higher prices are being forced by growing demand for the metal, rather than by the device of production control. War preparations obviously are having much to do with the rising demand for copper, but the domestic market also is finding ordinary industrial use on the increase.

General Motors 9 Months' Net Top Since 1929

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—General Motors Corporation today reported the best third quarter and nine months earnings since the like periods of 1929. Net earnings for the third quarter amounted to $34,626,078, equal to 75 cents per share on the average common shares outstanding during the quarter, compared with $30,753,088, or 66 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1935.

For the first nine months of 1936 net earnings available for dividends amounted to $175,198,624, compared with net earnings of $114,482,926 for the first nine months of 1935. The nine months net earnings equal $3.92 per share on the average common shares outstanding, compared with $2.51 per share for the nine months ended September 30, 1935.

General Foods.

General Foods Corporation earnings for the first nine months of this year were $2.02 a share, compared with $1.67 a share for the same period last year, according to C. M. Chester, chairman. Earnings for the first nine months in 1936 were $10,617,200, compared with $8,770,437 for the first three quarters a year ago.

For the three months ended September 30, earnings were $3,773,272, or 72 cents a share on the 5,251,440 shares of common stock outstanding, compared with $2,907,715, or 56 cents a share in the third quarter last year.

Pennsylvania Railroad.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (AP).—Pennsylvania Railroad Co. today reported September net railway operating income of $8,432,728, compared with $6,546,213 in the like month last year. For the first nine months net railway operating income was $59,098,596, compared with $49,853,406 in the corresponding period of 1935. The company's gross revenues last month rose to $39,496,378 from $31,139,641 in September, 1935.

Passenger revenues for September, the fourth month of reduced fares, rose to $5,925,734 from $5,101,604 last year, a gain of 16.2 per cent.

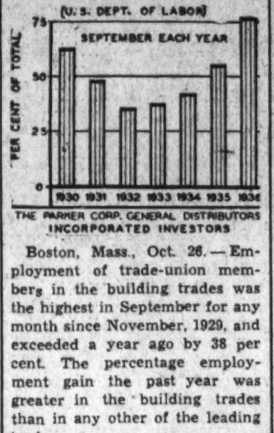
Business Failures.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Business failures numbered 160 in the week ended October 22, compared with 139 in the previous week and 234 in the same week last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Union Building Jobs 38% Over Year Ago



Boston, Mass., Oct. 26.—Employment of trade-union members in the building trades was the highest in September for any month since November, 1929, and exceeded a year ago by 38 per cent. The percentage employment gain the past year was greater in the building trades than in any other of the leading trades.

Curb Price Losses Run to 5 Points

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Curb stocks spun downward today in sympathy with the sharp decline on the stock exchange. Although losses ran to as much as 5 points in some of the trading favorites, volume was below that of recent sessions, approximating 315,000 shares, compared with 344,00 Friday.

In the absence of news to account for the selling movement, market observers expressed the opinion the pressure resulted from evening up of accounts for the election.

Copper Lifted To Ten Cents, Five-Year Peak

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Major copper producing companies today boosted the price of domestic copper ¼ of a cent to 10 cents a pound, the highest since March, 1931.

The advance reflected quickening demand for the metal owing to the faster pace of industry and was also seen in copper circles as an attempt to bring the domestic price into line with the recent mark-up in foreign copper.

The foreign metal last week was pushed up as high as 10.20 cents a pound. This, observers said, followed recent speeding up of the armaments race in Europe as well as heavier demand for industrial purposes.

The copper restriction committee, in London, today announced that effective November 1 output would be extended to 95 per cent of standard production, from 85 per cent. This was seen in trade circles as an effort to take care of sharper demand.

Copper men said that while domestic inquiries pending on books would likely be transacted at 9¾ cents a pound, new business would be done at 10 cents a pound, effective immediately.

The advance in the domestic price was the first since July 20, 1936 when it was raised to 9.75 cents from 9.50.

New Life Insurance.

New life insurance written here in September amounted to $4,453,000, which was the same amount written locally in the month last year, the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, of Hartford, Conn., reveals. Local business for the first nine months is 1 per cent better than of the coresponding period last year. Fifty-two per cent of the local offices reported policy gains over September, 1935.

Ross Back From Europe.

H. A. Ross, president of Ross Federal Research Corporation, returned recently from an eight-week survey of European countries, reports business conditions in England as excellent. Plans for the organization of a Ross Federal research force in Great Britain are now being discussed and an announcement will be made in the near future.

Chicago Wheat Advances With Upturn Abroad

Pit Prices Follow Gains in Liverpool and Winnipeg.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Influenced by a closing bulge in Liverpool and by a relatively stronger tone at Winnipeg, Chicago wheat prices averaged higher late today.

Traders here sharply watched the securities market, as a result of nervousness over the European political situation. Most of the Chicago buying of wheat was in the December delivery.

Wheat closed firm at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅝ higher; December, 115⅝@115⅛; May, 113¾@113⅞; corn, ⅜ off to ½ up; December, 94¾@94⅞; May, 90; oats unchanged to ¼ advance, and provisions, 5 to 12 cents down.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Oct. 26 (AP).—(United States Department of Agriculture.)—Asking prices were very firm in the Boston wool market today.

Substantial sales last week at strengthening prices stimulated efforts to secure further advances. Medium grades of Ohio wools were very firm. Combing ⅝ blood Ohio wools were, in some cases, held at prices higher than 40 cents in the grease, but there were some offerings available at 40 cents.

It was becoming difficult to buy good ⅝ blood Ohio or Michigan fleece wool under 39 cents in the grease. Early information from eastern wool markets indicated that strength there was being maintained.

'Pressure Selling' Laid to Democrat

By the Associated Press.

A complaint that an agent, claiming to represent the Democratic National Committee, had used "undue pressure" in attempting to sell 1,000 copies of the party's national convention book was studied yesterday by the Senate Campaign Funds Committee

J. Edward Jones, New York financier, submitted a lengthy statement, charging the salesman had asked him for a $2,500 campaign contribution under guise of payment for copies of the book at $2.50 each. The sale was not made.

Robert Jefferys, committee secretary, said Jones supported his charges with the transcript of a conversation with the salesman, recorded by a dictagraph in Jones' New York office.

A request that the committee investigate all records pertaining to the Democratic convention book was received from Republican National Chairman John Hamilton, Jefferys added.

Hamilton's telegram asserted advertising in the book had been sold to "corporations having Government contracts or dealings with the Government, or both."

Kentuckian Confesses To Murder of Wife

Richmond, Ky., Oct. 26 (AP).—Sheriff John McWilliams announced tonight Parkie Denney, 43, had confessed to slaying his wife, Ethel, 51, whose mutilated body was found near here September 18.

Asked for a motive of the slaying, Deney said he "wasn't satisfied with life."

Prelate in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Oct. 26 (AP).—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, arrived here by airplane at 3 p. m. central standard time today. He is making an aerial tour of the country.

On the Air Today

Not often does radio bring the voices of so great a number of nations' executive heads as does the peace broadcast today marking the first Northern Countries Day. The rulers are King Christian X of Denmark, King Haakon VII of Norway, King Gustav V of Sweden and President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud of Finland.

Each will speak from his own country, the voices being shortwaved to the country through the Statsradiofonien, Copenhagen, WJSV, at 1:30.

Hull Criticizes Foreign Affairs Talk of Landon

Assails His 'Generalities;' Says U. S. Relations Best in History.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull last night issued a brief statement criticising "the narrow, vague and confused generalities" of a speech on foreign affairs made by Gov. Alf M. Landon, at Indianapolis Saturday night.

Landon's address, his first major discussion of America's foreign problems, had contended that President Roosevelt's policies a year ago made "probable" United States entanglement in a foreign conflict.

The mild-mannered chief of the State Department, quick to answer any criticism of the Administration which reflect on his trade agreements or neutrality programs, said:

"The relations between the United States and all other nations are now on a closer and more friendly basis than has been the case within living memory.

"We have initiated and are carrying forward a constructive program to restore the economic welfare of the people and thereby to promote permanent peace. This program is now universally recognized as the only alternative to the fatal policy o fincreasing the armaments and of militarism, leading inevitably to war, which is being pursued today by many countries.

"This Administration has extended and strengthened friendly relations with the countries of this continent. With a vew to implementing further this mutual spirit of co-operation, and that of 'the good neighbor,' the United States will soon meet with the other American republic as Buenos Aires to take part in the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace suggested by President Roosevelt.

"The Administration's constructive record in its foreign policy speaks for itself, in contrast to the narrow, vague and confused generalities as well as the unsupported attempts at criticism contained in Gov. Landon's speech last Saturday night."

'Nazi Monarchy' Held Hitler Plan

Paris, Oct. 26 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler plans to re-establish a German monarchy to perpetuate Naziism, a dispatch to the newspaper l'Information from Berne, Switzerland, said tonight.

The dispatch cited "closely informed sources on German affairs" as its authority.

Hitler had decided on the Brunswick-Lunebourg family in preference to the line of former Kaiser Wilhelm II, the dispatch said.

The head of the Brunswick-Lunebourg house is Prince Ernest August Christian George. Hitler's decision, the newspaper said, was taken as the best means of perpetuating the Nazi regime, as the prince was said to have promised to make him chancellor for life and to give full guarantees for continuation of the Nazi power.

District 'Confesses' $95,748 Judgment

The District government yesterday filed a "confession of judgment" in a suit for $95,748.91 by the American Oil Co., which asserted that amount of money had been paid in excess of the amount required to be paid by law on gasoline taxes.

The money was paid, it was shown, and thereafter, accountants for the oil company discovered it had been erroneously computed. A claim was lodged against the municipal government but because of statutory provisions, the District could not settle. It was necessary for the company to file suit and then present its court decision to Congress, which will have to appropriate the money to satisfy it.

President Dedicates Howard Chemistry Building

Text of Roosevelt's Address of Dedication

I have a special interest in Howard University, because the Government of the United States has long had a special relationship to this institution.

Since 1879 Congress has made continuous and increasing appropriation year by year to help meet the general expenses of the university and its various departments—and to provide new buildings. And in part at least the Department of the Interior shares in the responsibility for the administration of the university. In a very real sense, therefore, Howard is one of the Nation's institutions.

But I would be interested in this university even though the Government had no such relationship to it.

University Has Grown.

Its founding as an institution for the American Negro was a significant occasion. It typified America's faith in the ability of man to respond to opportunity regardless of race, or creed, or color.

The American Negro's response to this opportunity in the field of higher learning has been prompt and eager as in other fields. In 1867, at the first term of Howard University, 94 students enrolled. Today there are nearly 2,000 students on the lists.

Howard University has not only grown steadily in numbers, but also in the range of its courses. To provide equal opportunities for Negro men and women, the university offers instruction in its colleges of liberal arts, medicine, dentistry and pharmacy and in the schools of law, engineering, architecture and music. A graduate school, recently organized, attracts graduates of other colleges and universities and has helped to make Howard University a real center of Negro culture in America.

Howard with justification may take pride in its high standards of scholarship among other American universities. Its schools of law and medicine are rated among the Class A schools in the Nation.

Despite the constant raising of the scholastic standards of the university, as the years went by, the demand for higher education among our Negro citizens increased to an extent which created a strain upon its facilities.

And so the Federal Government has provided three new structures for it. These represent the happy conjunction of two important Federal Government programs to meet the difficulties of the depression.

They are a part of our Nation-wide projects to reduce unemployment by building useful public works. They are also a part of our Nation-wide program to insure the normal maintenance and necessary expansion of educational facilities for use even in a time of depression.

Our purpose was not only to provide work in all sections for all parts of the population, but to enable them all to share in the benefits to be obtained from these works so long as bricks and mortar shall endure.

As far as it was humanly possible, the Government has followed the policy that among American citizens there should be no forgotten men and no forgotten races. It is a wise and truly American policy. We shall continue faithfully to observe it.

Howard University has shared as of right in our public works program. These Government-financed improvements in the facilities of this great center of Negro education should enable it to continue to provide for its students cultural opportunities comparable to those offered by other first-class institutions of higher learning in the country. At its last commencement Howard University sent forth 245 graduates to join nearly 10,000 alumni in all parts of the world. Here is a record of which America is proud. It is further fulfillment of our dream of providing better and better educational facilities for all our people.

Today we dedicate this new chemistry building, this temple of science, to industrious and ambitious youth. May they come here and learn the lessons of science and carry the benefits of science to their fellow-men.

Work Ordered to Start On 5 PWA Projects

Baltimore, Oct. 26 (AP).—Harry D. Williar, jr., deputy State works progress administrator, issued go-ahead orders today on five projects estimated to cost $107,888.

The largest item in the list calls for construction of a grand stand and athletic field at Morgan College, a colored institution in Baltimore, at an estimated cost of $68,730. Other projects are for Williamsport, macadam streets, $26,783; Frostburg, retaining wall at State Teachers College, $7,167; Reisterstown, 3,900 feet of sidewalks, $3,500, and Hancock, street and alley paving, $1,708.

U. of W. Alumni to Meet.

University of Washington Alumni Association will hold its annual fall dinner at 7 o'clock tonight in Wesley Hall. A feature of the after-dinner program will be a fall quarter campus quiz. Francis Lesourd is president of the association.

Law Congress to Study Patman Price Control

A discussion of the Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act will feature an open meeting of the Mussey Law Congress of the Washington College of Law at 8 p. m. today.

Dr. George P. Lamb, adviser to the congress, will conduct the discussion. The meeting will be held in the college, 2000 G street northwest.

McKinley High P. T. A. Will Discuss Guidance

Social, educational and vocational guidance will be discussed tonight at a meeting of McKinley High School Parent-Teacher Association.

Conferences between parents and teachers will follow a tour of the school and open forum meeting. Miss Jessie Coope, assistant principal, will speak.

40 U. S. Navy Planes On Pacific Maneuvers

Honolulu, Oct. 26 (AP).—Forty United States Navy seaplanes of the Pearl Harbor base roared westward today, beginning extensive secret maneuvers over a large area of the Mid-Pacific Ocean.

The planes, carrying 41 officers and 120 enlisted men, will range between Honolulu on the east, Midway Island to the west and Palmyra, Baker, Howland and Jarvis islands southward on the route of a proposed airplane line to New Zealand and Australia.

Klick in South Africa.

Johannesburg, South Africa, Oct. 26 (AP).—Frankie Klick, San Francisco lightweight, has been signed to fight Laurie Stevens, British Empire 135-pound champion from South Africa, during the empire exhibition here. The date, pending the arrival of Klick, has been tentatively set for December 5.
